THE COMING OF SPRING.

SOME NOTES ON FASHIONS AND THE MANNEQUIN.

Our Spring Show commences on Wednesday; in the meantime we are busy preparing for that. What an event that is in a Modern Store; what a significance it is, not only to the votaries of Fashion, but to us all!

On Wednesday, then, we will be showing under one roof the Fashions of the World, the Creations from the West End, the Millinery of Paris, the Weavers of France, the Linen of Ireland, the Lace of Flanders, the Model Gowns from the Master Hands of the Old World, together with a thousand and one products from the Markets of the Globe, coupled with the work of our own workrooms—for Australia, too, is beginning to take its place in the World's work, and we as a Company are doing our part in its production.

FULLER AND LONGER SKIRTS.

Skirts will be fuller and a little longer, but only a little. They still in almost all instances maintain the narrow slender effect in a modified form. In some instances a short train is worn. The Parasol is carried on all smart occasions, and those delightful Tapestry Bags are a de regle. These are Bulgarian and Turkish in design, while some of the Striped Bags are Greek, and have all the gorgeous decorative qualities of that past civilisation.

MILLINERY.

"THE FLOWER POT SHAPE."

Hats are still large, but the Contour is different, the drooping brim having given place to a less drooping effect. Trimmings are shown more on the top of the hats, and give a greater idea of height. Feathers and Military-effect Ospreys are used; Flowers, too, are seen in abundance. The Flower Pot Shape, with its attendant trimmings, is a distinctive note in the way of head gear.

THE NEW COLOURS—

Chevalier (Grey),
Bleu de Roi (A Royal Blue),
Ortolan (Champagne),
Aconit (Saxe Blue).
Serpolet (Reseda).

These are the Prominent Shades for the coming season.

A WORD ON SILKS.

Foulard is a Leading Fashion in Silk, and it is seen in a charming collection of revived old designs. Shantung will be in the fore in an entirely new texture, showing a cord effect, and is specially designed for the New Coats, for which purpose it is largely worn. This is a new and altered Shantung to those that have been produced in former years, it having been yarn dyed, and is consequently now, as the Manufacturers say, a fast colour, which it is hoped will do away with all our troubles in this respect, and make Shantung the most popular of all Silks.

THE REVIVAL OF LACE, AND HOW IT IS USED.

Lace is largely used, but in quite a different way to formerly. Gowns maintain their simplicity, but Muslin Frocks are a feature, and Lace is greatly used for their trimmings. Lace in wide bands round the foot of the Skirts, from 6 to 18 inches wide; and Lace again on the Corsage. These Laces are on Fillet Grounds, with conventional pattern in revived old designs, giving them a most delicate and delightful effect. Amongst them may be found reproductions of the Old Viennese Lace, a few of which are:—

New Fillet Insertion, in handsome patterns, on a coarse square mesh.

A reproduction of Rose Point Guipure, resembling as near as possible the Real Point; something rare and new this season.

Carrick Ma Cross Applique, also new this season, with Net Ground and Muslin Applique design.

THE COMING OF THE MANNEQUIN.

As we previously announced, at our Spring Show on Wednesday the Mannequin will be a feature. On this day and every succeeding day a number of Mannequins will parade on our First Floor in Gowns typical of the Season's Fashions. These Displays will be held from 10.30 to 12 o'clock in the morning, and from 3 to 4.30. To-morrow we will have more to say about the coming Fashions. We are very enthusiastic about them, for never have they been so charming. Never before have they had so many possibilities, and it will be our pleasure and business to put before you many of them. These early Spring Days are regarded by us as Exhibition Days, and we cordially invite all those that are interested to come and view these goods, without any obligation to purchase.

EMBLO PORTRAITS.

THE ARTISTIC AND PERMANENT QUALITIES OF EMBLO PORTRAITS ARE AN APT ILLUSTRATION OF THE FAMILIAR SAYING, "A THING OF BEAUTY IS A JOY FOR EVER." EVERY MONUMENT THAT MAN HAS THOUGHT MOST LASTING YIELDS TO TIME. COINS RUST WITH AGE, STATUES OF MARBLE AND BRONZE CRUMBLE OR CORRODE, INSCRIPTIONS ARE OBLITERATED, STONE WALLS FALL TO THE GROUND—EVEN THE PYRAMIDS ARE SLOWLY DISAPPEARING—BUT EMBLO PORTRAITS ARE THINGS OF BEAUTY AND OF JOY; THEY LAST FOR EVER.

THEY ARE THE HIGHEST STANDARD OF MODERN PORTRAITURE, AND ARE IMMEASURABLY SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS.

EMBLO PORTRAITS ARE ONLY OBTAINABLE AT THE CROWN STUDIOS.

LYRIC THEATRE.

A Great and Exclusive Drama, entitled

"THE TEMPTATIONS OF A GREAT CITY."

(This Silent Drama is over 2000 feet long).

A Drama of the Metropolis.

A production fairly teeming with Thrilling Incidents and Climaxes of the most Absorbing Interest.

SEE THE STORY OF AN ONLY SON'S DOWNFALL.
SEE THE GAY LIFE IN A BIG CITY.
SEE THE BESETTING SINS OF A GREAT METROPOLIS.
SEE THE RESCUE OF THE DOWNFALLEN BY LOVE.
SEE THE STORY OF A LOVE EVEN STRONGER THAN A MOTHER'S.
SEE THIS GREAT DRAMA, WHICH WILL CAUSE AN AUDIENCE TO SMILE AND WEEP ALTERNATELY; THAT WILL HOLD IT SPELLBOUND FROM START TO FINISH.

The production of this great Drama by photo-play is an absolute triumph of the biographical art. The wonderfully illustrative power of the camera was never before used to better advantage. The scenery in this photo-play is marvellous.

THE STORY is of an only son of a wealthy mother coming to the City, where women, wine, and gaiety encompass his ruin. He gets into the hands of a money-lender. You see him with his boon companions at the theatre, and worshipping at the shrine of Venus in the shape of an actress. How he is discarded eventually when his money is gone. Desperate, he is tempted, and commits forgery. Then comes discovery. True Love shows him his awful mistake.

RETRIBUTION. REDEMPTION. REFORMATION.

BEALE HIGH-GRADE PIANOS.

Let us send you a Free Copy of the Town and Country Journal, containing photographs which will show you something of the extent of our Factories—the largest in the British Empire, and the most comprehensive in the world.

We make HIGH-GRADE PIANOS, on patented systems, which specially suit them to this climate, and which greatly improve the tonal qualities. These patents are not obtainable in any other Pianos. Their value has been proved in all parts of Australia, and in many foreign countries. We have now made and sold nearly fifteen thousand Australian Pianos, after having imported in former years over twelve thousand foreign Pianos. Our knowledge of the Piano Trade is therefore unique, and we are in a position to supply you with a better instrument than you can obtain elsewhere. You are cordially invited to call and inspect the Beale High-grade Pianos, or we shall be glad to send you our "Black Catalogue," post free.

ENGLISH AGENCY.—The Undersigned, established upwards of 60 years, confine themselves exclusively to a General Commission Business, are well acquainted with Australian requirements, and possess special facilities for purchasing goods to the best advantage in the English and Continental markets.

Indents should be accompanied by cash remittances or bank letters of credit, to ensure full trade discounts. Account sales of produce under consignment rendered promptly, and net proceeds remitted, or invested to order.

The Shipping Department has been largely developed of late years, and where Indents are sent direct to manufacturers the shipment and insurance of the goods are effected upon the most favourable terms.

Children Thrive on Angier's.

There is nothing better for a delicate child than a course of Angier's Emulsion. Approved by the medical profession and used in children's hospitals, it has an established reputation as a safe and efficient remedy for the little ones, and moreover one which children all like and take with pleasure when they refuse other medicines. Soothing to the entire mucous tract and a splendid tonic and builder, it makes the little ones eat better, digest better, sleep better, and rapidly gain in weight, strength and colour. The medical profession prescribe Angier's Emulsion for coughs, bronchitis, whooping cough and all lung affections; also for scrofula, rickets, anæmia, malnutrition and for wasting diseases generally. No mother should be without a bottle of Angier's in the house.

ANGIER'S EMULSION

ORDERED BY THE DOCTOR.

Dear Sirs,—I am writing to tell you that my little boy, aged seven years, has derived great benefit from Angier's Emulsion. He is developing into a strong, healthy boy, and our doctor has ordered it for him all this winter. It is so very pleasant to take that my other little boy is only too pleased when I give him some. I can strongly recommend Angier's Emulsion for delicate children.

"THE CHANGE IN HER IS WONDERFUL."

8 Hampden Street, North Sydney, Aus.

Dear Sirs,—My little girl has been a constant anxiety owing to loss of appetite and a very trying cough. I was so pleased to see her relish her food after she had had a sample bottle of Angier's that I got a large (4/6) bottle, which she has just finished. The change in her is wonderful; the cough is quite gone, she has put on firm flesh and has a good colour and appetite. To have accomplished this with a really palatable mixture is a great cause of thankfulness to me, and you have my full consent to publish this letter in case it may persuade other mothers to try Angier's Emulsion. (Signed) (Mrs.) K. WILKINS.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Dear Sirs,—I cannot speak too highly of Angier's Emulsion, as it did my boy a world of good, and I am sure was the means of saving his life. He was very ill and wasted with bronchitis and whooping cough, and your Emulsion was the only thing he could keep down. It gave him great relief and built him up wonderfully, for which I was very thankful after the weary nights of continuous coughing. I am always pleased to recommend Angier's, as I think it is the best Emulsion on the market and especially good for delicate children.

(Signed) (Mrs.) A. M. HEASELL.

FOOTBALL.

KEEN INTEREST IN LEAGUE MATCHES.

SOUTH SYDNEY'S FIRST DEFEAT.

GLEBE AND SOUTH SYDNEY LEVEL.

UNIVERSITY AND NEWTOWN LEADING THE UNIONISTS.

BALMAIN STILL LEADING IN RAWSON AND ASSOCIATION CUPS.

Saturday was an ideal day for all outdoor winter pastimes, but more especially that of football, for hardly a cloud flecked the sky, and a pleasant westerly breeze, which tempered the rays of the sun, was quite exhilarating. Despite the fact that a heavy programme of first-class matches has been played, interest in Rugby League matches remain unabated.

At the Sports Ground, the Glebe-South Sydney fixture drew a record attendance of 16,000, over £400 being taken at the gates. Play was watched with keen interest. Glebe's victory was well deserved, for during the greater part of the second half they played with twelve men, and later on, when Maher retired with a dislocated jaw, with only eleven, yet the team played with that grit and determination which is characteristic of the town of Red, and scored six points to nil, the final margin being 9 points to 5. It has to be stated, however, that there were thousands of spectators who did not see eye to eye with touch judge Bolton, when he notified the referee (who had allowed a brilliantly got try by South Sydney, that M'Kivat had been illegally interfered with.

The matches played under the Rugby Union code were continued on Saturday, notwithstanding that the State team was away at Brisbane. The most interesting match was that between University and Manly, at Manly Oval, when for the second time in competition matches, University met with defeat, the Villagers thus demonstrating that their earlier victory was gained on its merits. Newtown and University are now level at the head of the competition table.

Although defeated by Granville in the Rawson Cup, Balmain still lead in both the Rawson and Association Cups, with Granville a close second in the one, as will be seen from the table published elsewhere.

The first-grade matches played under the auspices of the Australian League were suspended on Saturday on account of the absence of prominent players, who are en route to Adelaide to represent this State in the interstate carnival.

RUGBY UNION.

Newtown defeats Western Suburbs by 24 points to 3.
Manly defeats University by 10 points to 3.
St. George defeats Glebe by 6 points to nil.
North Sydney defeats South Sydney by 12 points to 8.
Eastern Suburbs defeats Balmain by 11 points to 6.

In pleasant weather, the metropolitan competitions were advanced another stage last Saturday. The attendances recorded during the previous matches were sustained, and the play was well up to the standard, despite the absence of the representative team in Brisbane. The result of the matches in the "A" division of the first grade leaves Newtown and University equal, and the premiership struggle is now confined to them. The meeting of these two sides next Saturday is creating interest, and should provide a keen exhibition. In the "B" division, the favourites (Glebe) were defeated, and this competition is in a most interesting stage, no fewer than four of the six teams being at the one mark. At the University Oval the premiers proved too good for Western Suburbs. In the first spell the play was of an even nature. On reversing ends, however, the Blues were easily the better side, and scored 18 points to nil in this half. Western Suburbs were shorthanded at the finish through a player being ordered off for striking an opponent, but apart from this offence against the spirit of the game, play was clean throughout.

For the second time this season Manly defeated University. On Saturday at the village the local team's win was an even better one than on the occasion of the first meeting of these teams, and they thoroughly deserved their win. The collegians have only suffered defeat on two occasions during the competition, and on both occasions at the hands of Manly. Saturday's game showed that the 'Varsity side did not adapt itself to altered conditions. It was expected that after the lesson gained in the first game the students would be prepared for the particular game played by the Manlyites. Spoiling work by the forwards and [illegible] following by the backs were the principal features responsible for the villagers' win.

Glebe, the leaders in the "B" division, found the task of replacing the five men now in Brisbane a severe one, and as a consequence suffered defeat from St. George. The play was even throughout, and was not very interesting, both sides seemingly lacking vim and dash. The defeat has made the "B" division more interesting, and with Eastern Suburbs only two points behind the leaders, a final is now almost certain to take place.

In the Eastern Suburbs (shorthanded) and Balmain match, the Suburbs proved better all round. Some of the back play of the tricolours was excellent, and the game was marked by the strong individualism of Wickham, the wing three-quarter.

North Sydney revenged their former defeat at the hands of South Sydney by defeating them at the Sydney Cricket Ground. With their principal scoring player (Mayo) away with the rep. team, it was thought that Souths at full strength would win, but the shoremen are a much-improved side.

Sydney Training College, by defeating University II., have firmly established themselves in the second-grade competition, and now have a lead of four points, with University and Newtown equal next.

NEWTOWN BEAT WESTERN SUBURBS BY 24 POINTS TO 3.

Played at University Oval. Teams:—

Newtown: P. Luscombe, full-back; F. Talbot, E. F. Booth, A. R. Dunbar (captain), F. Luscombe, three-quarters; C. Hodgins, L. West, half-backs; P. Gilroy, W. Dibley, S. Gilroy, R. Hill, R. Wighton, W. Watson, A. Tilly, and D. Cooper, forwards.

Western Suburbs.—W. Williams, full-back; J. Liddy, B. Barker, C. Dickson, A. Anderson, three-quarters; A. Prentice, W. C. Prentice, half-backs; B. Webster, W. Sully, A. Craig, C. Alderson, J. Edginton, S. Rosenthal, O. Prentice, and D. Reid (captain) forwards.

Referee, Mr. R. I. Swannell.

Western Suburbs won the toss, and played with a fairly strong breeze, Dibley kicking off for Newtown from the scoring-board end. The Blues attacked by forward rushes, with Hill and Watson prominent. A long kick by A. Prentice, however, sent the ball into touch at half-way, and from the throw-in Barker secured, sent to A. Prentice, to Webster, and back to Barker, but a good tackle by F. Luscombe stopped the rush. Again the premiers' rushed play into West's territory, and Hodgins and West exchanged passes under goal. However, Barker (classed as a centre three-quarter, but playing more of a wing forward game) secured, and, running well, transferred play to the 25, were Booth tackled him. The Blues worked back, and from a scrum West sent to Hodgins, and the five-eighth scored a good try. Wighton's attempt just dropped under the bar. From the kick-off West's dribbled to F. Luscombe, who punted into touch at the 25. Attacking again a score seemed imminent, but Dunbar cleverly screw-kicked out in the same place. Play now settled about half-way for a time, when from a long line-out Barker kicked past Booth and Dunbar, and racing after it was joined by Anderson, and the pair dribbled past the full-back, and over the line, where Anderson scored in a good position, but Reid failed at goal. 3 points all. The Blues now took a turn at attacking, and the forwards, securing the ball in the scrums, West, Hodgins, Dunbar, and Luscombe brought off a nice passing rush, which ended in the lastnamed being grassed a couple of feet short of the line. From the scrum Barker and Webster were penalised for off-side, while the ball was in, and Booth made an excellent attempt at goal from a difficult angle. Shortly before the interval the premiers added another score, Booth kicking an excellent goal from the touchline at the 25. Newtown 6 to 3.

The fairly even first half led the spectators to expect a good exhibition in the second spell; but West's were completely outclassed. The Blues practically controlled the game, although on one or two occasions the Blue and Whites put in a dash which took them into their opponents' territory. The premiers rushed the ball over the line almost from the kick-off, but Williams forced. Then, from a high kick to Williams, whose judgment in catching high balls was faulty, the ball went over again, but a knock-on pulled up the attacking Blues. Hodgins, picking up from a dribbling rush, shook off a couple of weak tackles, and got over near the posts with a couple of opponents hanging to him. Booth converted, and Newtown led by 11 points to 3. At it again, the Blues narrowly missed another score, but the respite was only temporary, and Watson went over near the corner after a series of short passes among the forwards. Booth just failed to notch another goal. Newtown, 14 points to 3.

West's forwards now dribbled well into Newtown's 25, but Webster, off-side, gave the Blues relief, and it was not long before that side added to it's already large score. Gilroy, breaking through, raced to Barker, where he transferred to Talbot, who, securing with full pace up, outdistanced all opposition, and grounded in the corner, just as Anderson, who had crossed from his wing, went at him. Booth, by an excellent kick, added the goal points, and Newtown were 19 to 3. West's were now entirely out of it, and were playing shorthanded, one of the forwards having been ordered off for striking an opponent. The Blue forwards, racing like three-quarters, sent the ball from one to the other, and Dibley went across in the corner, and then, running round, beat a couple of half-hearted tacklers, and scored under the posts. Booth easily converted. Newtown, 24; Western Suburbs, 3.

ST. GEORGE v GLEBE.

Played at Rushcutter Bay Oval. Teams:—

St. George.—Full-back, R. Freeman; three-quarters, G. Tuffy, H. Mullarkey, E. Beer, C. Hughes; half-backs, A. Bossi, R. Tuffy; forwards, G. Graham, A. Walny, N. Gates, W. Williams, M. Krambach, J. Proudfoot, R. Crouch, H. Billingham.

Glebe.—Full-back, M. White; three-quarters, M. Lomax, G. Ferrier, C. M'Carthy, W. Pullman; half-backs, Buckle and P. Buchanan; forwards, H. Logan, G. Walters, S. Middleton, Smith, R. Waddell, H. R. Baird, Massey, Westrop, Holdsworth.

Play was late in starting, when Glebe kicked off, and play hovered in the vicinity of mid-field for quite a period, St. George, if anything, having the better of matters on account of the combination of the backs being superior. Glebe, however, gradually assumed the offensive, and should have been over on several occasions but for being unable to put on the finishing touches when openings presented themselves.

The game continued fast, and the first try registered was the result of a fine effort by Williams (St. George), who, picking up near centre, sprinted fast, and scored between the posts. Bossi failed to convert. Resuming, Glebe had a splendid chance of equalising had the ball been passed to White. Glebe were attacking when half-time arrived.

On resuming Glebe were called upon to defend, but subsequently play was transferred to the other end, St. George taking a turn at defence. After uninteresting play, a St. George forward secured, and there was some warm work near Glebe's line, but nothing resulted. Play was suspended for a while, a St. George player being injured. Shortly after resuming St. George scored their second try—the result of some fine passing near the centre. Lomax was the last to receive, and he scored, White injuring his left arm whilst attempting to tackle him. The extra points were not added. Glebe attacked, and next secured a free right in front of the goal posts, but the easiest of chances was missed. Full time, St. George gaining their second win this season by 6 points to nil.

EASTERN SUBURBS v BALMAIN.

Played at Drummoyne, and was won by the former by 11 points to 6. Teams:—

Eastern Suburbs.—Full-back, D. F. Acton; three-quarters, S. Garratt, T. Milner, C. Wallach, and A. Wickham; half-back, W. Lorne; forwards, M. Duffy, J. Duffy, S. Smith, P. Butler, F. Milligan, M. McKenzie, and P. Russell.

Balmain.—Full-back, R. Wooles; three-quarters, C. Marsh, H. Craig, and E. Wicks; half-backs, K. Klook and A. Johnson; forwards, F. Ballerum, P. Morgan, H. Kirby, R. Nelson, C. Small, R. Featherstone, D. Christiansen, and F. Plumb.

Referee, Mr. F. Cody.

Balmain kicked off against the wind, and the ball was in neutral territory for some time, being then gradually worked back towards Balmain's posts. Here Wallach nearly scored from a free kick. Later on Balmain worked down to Eastern Suburbs' line, where a scrum ensued, from which A. Johnson obtained and passed to Wicks, who scored a try, which was unconverted. After this Eastern Suburbs began to attack, and Balmain had their work cut out to defend their vulnerable points. It early became evident that a continuation of the tactics adopted by Eastern Suburbs would bear fruition, and shortly afterwards Miller passed out from a scrum to Wallach, who worked over the line. His attempt at goal was resultless, the ball striking the post. The scores were now level at the interval.

In the second half play was in favour of Eastern Suburbs, with the exception of a try secured by Balmain at the close of the game. Wickham started the scoring by securing at centre, and scored behind the posts after a very clever run. Wallach converted. Eastern Suburbs, 8 points; Balmain, 3. Later on Balmain were awarded a free kick, but Kirby failed at goal. Eastern Suburbs were defending when Wickham caught the ball on the full from a punt, and after a good run scored his second try, but Wallach failed to convert. Eastern Suburbs leading by 11 points to 3. For a long time play was of an even character, until shortly before time C. Small (Balmain) scored a try, but the attempt at goal failed. The final scores were: Eastern Suburbs, 11 points; Balmain, 6. The victors played one man short throughout the game.

SOUTH SYDNEY v NORTH SYDNEY.

Played at the Sydney Cricket Ground, North Sydney winning by 12 points to 8. Teams:—

North Sydney.—Full-back, H. Thomas; three-quarters, L. W. Seaborn, S. A. Geddes, R. Higgins, W. Thomas; half-backs, L. Harrison and S. Gilbert; forwards, C. H. Hicks, J. Hughes, T. Britton, R. D. Hughes (captain), A. O. Hodgson, K. Amphlett, N. Graham, H. J. Johnston.

South Sydney.—Full-back, W. Wall; three-quarters, H. Mailer, G. T. Radcliffe (captain), W. Buist, J. Coll; half-backs, R. Fusedale and A. Sandilands; forwards, V. Coll, E. Castle, T. Wall, C. O'Donnell, W. Lenton, J. Vagani, E. Pengelly, A. Anderson.

Referee, Mr. W. G. French.

South Sydney kicked off against the breeze, and J. Hughes placed North Sydney in an attacking position with a lengthy line kick, and shortly afterwards R. D. Hughes kicked a neat penalty goal. North Sydney, 3. Buist put in a good run for South Sydney, but just when matters were becoming interesting his pass was missed. North Sydney then returned to the attack, and W. Wall, being hemmed in on his goal line, kicked weakly across the field, where W. Thomas picked up and scored an easy try. R. Hughes failed at goal. North Sydney, 6; South Sydney, nil. The Shoremen's pack was too heavy for their opponents, who were repeatedly pushed back off the ball; but the handling of the backs was faulty, otherwise numerous tries would have resulted. After a time South Sydney forwards started a foot rush, and Fusedale, joining it, picked up, and after a short run spoilt a good opportunity by throwing forward. Seaborn livened the proceedings with a run, but he was unsupported when tackled. Half-time: North Sydney, 6 to nil.

On resuming, South Sydney made the play more open, and appeared to greater advantage, causing North Sydney to force three times in quick succession. Another scrambling rush was more successful, Castle picking up a yard from the line and scored. Fusedale failed at goal. North Sydney, 6; and South Sydney, 3. South Sydney were keeping play in their opponents' quarters. The forwards brought play to the goal-line time after time, only to lose golden opportunities by fumbling, and Fusedale was kicking far too much instead of passing. Geddes (N.S.) broke away in his own territory, but his pass was intercepted, and the play set going in the opposite direction. A lively rally followed, Buist being prominent, with a smart run, which Gilbert terminated with a tackle. North Sydney worked the line and brought play to the corner, but a force was the only outcome. A free to North Sydney for illegal interference was turned to good account, D. R. Hughes scoring with a good kick. North Sydney, 9; South Sydney, 3. Next W. Thomas cross-kicked, and, Geddes securing, scored an easy try, but R. Hughes failed at goal. On resuming, South Sydney forwards rushed up the ground, and from some ruckful play right under the goal Pengelly scored. Fusedale converted. Final scores.—North Sydney, 12 points; South Sydney, 8 points.

MANLY v UNIVERSITY.

Manly defeated University, on the Manly oval, by 10 points to 3. Teams:—

Manly.—Full-back, S. Perry; three-quarters, O. G. H. Merrett, J. Randell, J. O'Connor, and C. Terry; halves, D. Fitzgerald and C. James; forwards, A. Buckly, C. Elrington, T. D. Richards, J. Dickings, E. Kirke, D. M'Cubbin, R. Farnell, W. Lees.

University.—Full-back, L. Hinder; three-quarters, E. S. James, J. Harden, R. C. Pockley, and J. James; halves, A. C. Jekyll, E. M. Fisher; forwards, G. B. Heath, J. Massie, J. Abbott, N. W. Broughton, J. Metcalfe, A. Maxwell, L. J. Reynolds, and N. Clatworthy.

Referee, Mr. N. R. Martin.

C. Elrington started the play for Manly, and Jekyll fielding the leather, returned to half-way. University were penalised, and Randell kicked for goal, the ball just failing to reach the posts. A fine passing rush by the Manly backs carried play well into the visitors' territory. University were the first to start the forward rushes, Reynolds and Metcalfe by good work taking the ball to Manly's line. Reynolds, from a mark, kicked a goal. University, 3; Manly, nil. Play hovered near centre for some time. The half-backs could not get possession of the ball, and a series of scrimmages ensued. Harden, for 'Varsity, broke away, with Pockley and James close at hand. Manly were now hard pressed, and University might have scored, but they failed to pass the ball out smartly. O'Connor rushed in and relieved Manly by a fine line-kick. The villagers' forwards now took a hand, and Farnell and Buckley were instrumental in carrying play well into University's quarters. Farnell then got hold again and passed to James, who, running well, gained much ground, and finally passed to Merrett. The speedy three-quarters took the pass at top speed, evaded the full-back, and scored under the bar. Randell converted, and Manly led by 5 points to 3.

On resuming, University attacked in great style. Manly defended well, and took the play to neutral territory by good dribbling rushes. The forwards on both sides were having a busy time. The Manly men, however, were solid in defence, and little advantage was gained. For kicking the ball continually in the scrum the referee interfered, and cautioned several players. Randell endeavoured to play a lone hand, but gained nothing for his side. For illegal play University were penalised, but Randell failed to pilot the ball over the bar. From a line-out near the 25, Fitzgerald secured, and passed the ball well in field. Merrett, following, smartly took it at full speed, and easily outdistanced his pursuers. Randell again converted, and Manly led by 10 points to 3. University made great efforts, but were unable to get through Manly's defence. The last few minutes of play were very lively, but neither side gained much advantage, and Manly won by 10 points to 3.

RUGBY LEAGUE.

Saturday's games attracted a substantial measure of public attention, most of which, however, was focussed on the struggle at the Sports Ground between Glebe and South Sydney. A draw would not have been unexpected, but Glebe displayed the greater solidity, and managed to win against opponents who were on their own ground, and were therefore in receipt of the greater measure of favour from the onlookers.

As is customary in such a strenuous game as Rugby, whether of the union or league variety, players occasionally did wrong things, but the referees are now disposed to be stricter—with good reason—and foul-play is to be promptly dealt with whenever noticed. Cautions administered to players are much more effective than non-players think. They hurt worse than a week's suspension, because they are publicly given, and the public sense of justice is generally with a referee. Two or three instances of foul-play were dealt with by referees on Saturday.

RESULTS OF MATCHES.

Glebe beat South Sydney by 9 points to 5.
Newtown drew with Eastern Suburbs, 13 points each.
Annandale beat North Sydney by 31 points to 11.
Western Suburbs beat Balmain by 21 points to 11.

The victorious career of South Sydney was checked on Saturday by their most dangerous rivals—Glebe—administering defeat by 9 points to 5 in a game that was as fast and as hard as any witnessed this season. Despite the counter-attraction of the boat race, about 16,000 people filled the Sports Ground, and enjoyed the many stirring incidents as the game as it progressed. For the first 15 minutes of play, South Sydney backs executed many fine passing moves, and generally had the better of the game, though unable to score, but after that the Reds were quicker to their men, and played a trifle stronger to the finish. Each registered three points, and, as Glebe had been favoured by the breeze, it was thought that South Sydney, with the wind in the next spell, would be much more in evidence.

In the second spell, the Reds early lost F. Burge (ordered off), and later on T. Maher was unfortunate enough to sustain a fractured jaw bone, necessitating his removal to the hospital, and leaving the side to battle to the finish, with only 11 men. Despite the handicap, they rose to the occasion, and, in addition to preventing the opposition crossing their line, they registered two tries from spirited rushes, and had, with their bigger forwards, the honours in the scrum and ruck play. M'Kivat's tactical play was always in evidence, and he urged his side on continually, after playing up in the forward division himself. The blot on the game was the faulty work in the scrummage, South Sydney putting the ball in the second row in the last half, and the tactics of Glebe causing the scrum to collapse repeatedly when they had been beaten for the ball. A penalty kick against them would have been beneficial to the game. One stirring dash by McCabe was the gem of the game, and he beat practically the whole team before Hallett and Gilbert were called on to participate in the move. After the latter had touched down the touch judge intervened, and the referee disallowed the try. It was unfortunate for South Sydney.

Eastern Suburbs very nearly capsized the hopes of Newtown, and the latter were fortunate to secure a drawn game. Although without the services of Messenger and other good men, Eastern Suburbs played a hard and clever game, in which H. Corbett, a recent acquisition from Union ranks, took a satisfactory part. Some of the Newtown men did not like the penalties inflicted for breaches upon them by the referee, but Mr. M'Mahon had effective control of the game, and was not deterred from doing what he thought was right.

Annandale, a steadily improving team, put North Sydney well into the shade by a majority victory of 20 points. The Annandale back division is developing well. All its members are good in defence, and they are learning the lesson of unselfishness, the acquisition of which means club victories and credit for all instead of individuals. North Sydney are always hard to beat, but in the latter part of Saturday's game they were palpably below their usual quality.

Western Suburbs managed to secure their second win for the season by defeating Balmain on the ground of the latter team. Although second last in the competition list, Western Suburbs have not been any kind of gift to their opponents. Clubs higher up in the competition have had more points scored against them than they. Balmain's showing by no means flattered their supporters.

SOUTH SYDNEY v GLEBE.

Played at the Sports Ground before about 16,000 people, and won by Glebe by 9 points to 5. Teams:—

Glebe.—Full-back, R. Algie; three-quarters, D. Garlick, T. Maher, T. Gleeson, M. Muggivan; five-eighth, L. Cubitt; half-back, C. H. McKivatt (captain); forwards, P. Burge, F. Burge, J. Redmond, S. Pert, D. Kelly, H. Brighton.

South Sydney.—Full-back, O. Brown; three-quarters, C. Collier, H. Gilbert, A. Hallet, A. Conlin; five-eighth, A. J. McCabe; half-back, A. Butler; forwards, W. Cann (captain), W. Spence, H. Nicholls, S. Darmody, E. Hilliard, A. Hennessy.

Referee, Mr. L. Kearney.

McKivatt won the toss, and his side opened with the breeze in their favour and the sun shining in the faces of the South Sydney team, but that side opened the attack, and Glebe had to defend solidly. Butler ran Gilbert into action from a scrum, and then Collier accepted his transfer, and was well in the twenty-five when Garlick tackled him, and stayed the rush. Keeping the ball on the ground, the Red brigade forged ahead, and Algie tried at goal from a penalty, but was not successful. A further rush by the Reds ensued, until Gilbert booted hard and gave to Maher, who hesitated before going down on it, with the result that the flying McCabe was on to it, and in kicking at the leather accidentally kicked the player in the face. Butler sent out to Conlin, to Hallett, who was grassed near the line. Glebe experienced an anxious time here for a while, as McCabe went dangerously near to scoring. A burly forward changed play to centre, only to find the locals coming again in the corner, with Cann and Gilbert in the van. The attack was changed to the opposite wing by short passing between Butler, Cann, Gilbert, and Hallett, but the latter mulled his pass, and Collier carried the attack on. The pace was very fast, with the Red and Green the more prominent in attack, but the Reds' tackling was very hard, and they soon showed more favourably, as they gradually gained the upper hand.

Coming in a bunch, Red forwards kicked to Cubitt, who by a tricky run took the ball to the wing, but held on too long before sending on to Garlick. A scrum followed, and McKivatt darted round the open side but lost it, and the forwards toed on to the line, fighting fiercely and brushing the defence aside, until Redmond dived on it, and Glebe had registered first score. Algie failed to add the goal. Glebe, 3 to nil.

Urged by the cheers of their supporters, the Reds renewed the attack, first on one wing then on the other, but while playing the stronger game there was no weak spot in Souths' defence. They went perilously near to a score once through the agency of a central kick by Muggivan, which rolled between the posts. Collier was the first to chase it, but fell, and Darmody and a Glebe forward raced on. The referee had observed an illegality, and a free kick to South Sydney resulted.

McCabe beat the field, Algie excepted. When he was expected to resort to his usual trickiness he got flurried, and though well supported passed out wildly, and missed a scoring chance. Glebe repulsed an attack, but Spence and Hennessy headed another rush, and from a weak kick Hallett raked in and made for the wing, sending on to Gilbert, to Collier, who finished in the corner with a try after being lifted by Algie. Conlin failed to convert. Three all.

Glebe opened the second half with great dash, McKivatt, Cubitt, and Gleeson figured in the first rush, which was only stopped by a solid tackle by Conlin. Then another bustling move down the centre had Souths' rattled, and as the ball rolled back over the line Brown kicked out weakly to Garlick on the wing, and he was pushed into touch near the flag. Play was then transferred to the opposite wing, where F. Burge was sent off. For a time South Sydney made the pace, and kept their opponents quiet. McCabe darted up the centre, and transferred to Cann, and the forward went diagonally for the corner, with Conlin waiting for the pass out, but it never came, as he held on when Algie tackled him, and lost a certain try. The game was good to watch, and bristling with quick movements in attack and defence. Souths persisted in opening up tactics, and Butler, Cann, and McCabe were passing quickly down the centre. Suddenly swinging the attack to the right wing, by a cross-kick from McCabe, Collier made repeated dashes along touch, and slung a long pass in-field that resulted in the Red forwards dribbling clear. McKivatt ferretted his way through, and sent on to Cubitt, to Gleeson, who ran into Gilbert's tackle. McKivatt secured again, and sent it out to Muggivan, with the wing open. He was chased by Conlin and Hallett, but crossed in the corner after a great run. Algie failed again at goal. Glebe, 6 to 3.

The Red and Greens were not yet beaten, but pinned the Reds on the twenty-five line. McCabe treated the spectators to one of those spirited dashes that he excels in. McKivatt lost the ball in a tackle, and McCabe snapped up, and made for the left wing by short, quick dodges, but perceiving that the defence was closing up, he darted across-field, threading his way between a host of Reds. He whipped it out to Hallett, to Gilbert, and the latter crowned a stirring piece of play by grassing in the corner. A disappointment was in store, as the touch judge signalled an infringement, and the referee disallowed the try, to the disgust of the supporters of the Red and Green. The pace continued fast, and another loss resulted to the Reds owing to Maher having his jaw fractured in some close work in the corner. With only 11 men now, the Glebe put more energy into their forward game, and it is to their credit that they scored a further try against odds. McKivatt swung out of the ruck, and after making an excellent opening, sent out to P. Burge, who bustled through, and passed to Muggivan, who again scored a try. Cubitt failed. Glebe, 9 to 3. They backs made another effort to break down the vigorous defence, but save a splendid field goal dropped by Gilbert from the twenty-five, which made the score 9 to 5 in favour of Glebe, they met with no success, and sustained the first defeat of the season.

WESTERN SUBURBS v BALMAIN.

Played at Birchgrove Park, in the presence of about [illegible] spectators, and won by Western Suburbs by 21 points to 11. Teams:—

Western Suburbs.—Full-back, W. Medcalf; three-quarters, S. Wall, V. West, C. McFadyen, F. Franks; five-eighth, H. Naylor; half-back, J. Tully; forwards, E. Courtney (captain), J. Perry, W. Elliott, A. Joass, A. Stack, H. R. Thompson.

Balmain.—Full-back, C. Fraser; three-quarters, B. Wright, A. Latta, J. Hickey, J. King; half-back, Hilliard; five-eighth, A. Holloway; forwards, R. Graves, F. Ward, Jas. Woodward, A. M'Carthy, Jno. Woodward, J. Appoloney.

Balmain kicked off, and followed up by attacking, the ball remaining in the visitors' territory for a couple of minutes. Tully then obtained, and after a good run passed to McFadyen, who punted, and Joass, coming along, snapped up and got across. Medcalf failed at goal. Western Suburbs, 3 to nil. The visitors now began to force matters, and were soon in Balmain's territory again. There Joass picked up from a scramble and passed to Naylor, who dived through his opponents and scored. Joass failed to convert. Western Suburbs, 6 to nil. Centre play followed, and then Balmain, pressing, got right down to Western Suburbs' goal-line, the visitors being compelled to force. For an illegal tackle Western Suburbs were penalised, and Hickey sent up the red flag. Western Suburbs, 6 to 2. The locals were again put on the defensive, and though Fraser staved off danger it was only for the moment, as Western Suburbs attacked with vigour and skill. Wall was enabled to send on to Thompson, who ran round and scored behind the posts. Medcalf's attempt at goal was a failure. Western Suburbs, 9 to 2. Balmain again encouraged their friends by a fine dribbling movement to their opponents' 25, Graves, J. Woodward, and Appoloney being prominent; but they were driven back to midfield. There Jas. Woodward was injured, and had to leave the field, his place being taken by Jacobsen. Some clever passing by Balmain ended in Wright scoring a capital try. King failed to convert. Western Suburbs, 9 to 5. There was no additional score up to half-time.

The second spell opened with Balmain strongly aggressive, and the crowd cheering lustily. Several times the Western Suburbs had narrow escapes; but when Holloway picked up in mid-field and sent to Hickey, to Latta, to Wright, their immunity from disaster disappeared, as the latter scored cleverly. Hickey's attempt at goal failed. Western Suburbs, 9 to 8. Fast play followed, till Naylor, picking up in his own 25, started off, and fending off tacklers, got as far as his opponents' 25, where he passed to Courtney, to Thompson, who managed to get across with one of the Balmain back division hanging on to him. Thompson converted. Western Suburbs, 14 to 8. Balmain were penalised for off-side, and Joass landed an easy goal. Western Suburbs, 16 to 8. Smart play on both sides followed, and then Appoloney obtained and sent to Graves, who scored. Fraser failed to convert. Western Suburbs, 16 to 11. The visitors rushed the ball down to Balmain's 25, and after a melee there Thompson snapped up and sent to Joass, who easily scored behind the posts. Medcalf converted. Western Suburbs, 21 to 11. The play continued exciting right up to the close, Balmain endeavouring vainly to make up their deficit; but there was no further score. Mr. W. P. Finegan, referee.

ANNANDALE v NORTH SYDNEY.

Played at Wentworth Park, and won by Annandale by 31 points to 11. Teams:—

Annandale.—Full-back, P. Lillyman; three-quarters, Roy Norman, Rex Norman, F. Fraser, J. Wilcox; five-eighth, Ray Norman; half, F. Greshier; forwards, G. Munce, W. Thomas, T. Haddock, S. Gray, E. Burdett, R. Stuart.

North Sydney.—Full-back, A. Norton; three-quarters, J. Gilmore, W. Mitchell, O. Dean, A. Anderson; five-eighth, J. Neilson; half, A. McFarlane; forwards, Milne, E. Boland, W. Maher, T. Donnelly, W. Kelly, T. Bailey.

Gray kicked off for Annandale, who immediately began to press. After putting up a sterling defence, North Sydney's forwards worked the ball to Annandale's line, and drew first blood. Kelly picked up in the ruck and fell over. McFarlane did not improve the score with the kick. From a penalty, Morton made an excellent effort at goal from half-way, the kick just falling short.

For a time neither side gained much advantage, but Annandale kept up the pressure and Wilcox got over in a good position, after receiving the ball from Roy Norman. Ray Norman kicked an excellent goal.

This player was in the main responsible for Annandale's next score; he secured the ball at half-way, and wormed his way well into the 25, where a comrade missed the pass, and the ball was momentarily lost, but Roy Norman picking up in the loose, dashed over the line, and scored. Ray Norman failed with the kick. North Sydney now, by a series of dribbling rushes, worked play into Annandale's 25, where Donnelly picked up, and, putting in a bumping run, scored between the posts. McFarlane converted, and made the score 8 all.

The game became a desperate struggle between the forwards, and some clever footwork was exhibited. In one forward movement Annandale carried the ball to North Sydney's line, and Stuart scored, Burdett failing to convert. Annandale were monopolising the honours.

Gathering the ball from a long punt by Morton, Rex Norman set Ray Norman, Fraser, and Wilcox going, the lastnamed scoring in a good position. Greshier landed the goal. The adjournment shortly after took place, with the score Annandale 16, North Sydney 8.

From the restart, Annandale began to press, and throughout the second spell never left the issue in doubt. Their first effort of note was a great dribbling rush in which all their forwards took part. It ended by Burdett dribbling over the line and scoring. Greshier kicked a good goal. North Sydney were kept on the defensive and their opponents should certainly have been awarded two penalty tries. Morton, securing the ball, put in an excellent run to half-way, where the ball was scrummed. North Sydney successfully carrying this, McFarlane sent out to Gilmore, who streaked along the wing and passed to McFarlane, who scored, Gilmore failed to convert. Undaunted by this reverse, Annandale worked back to their opponents' quarter, and North Sydney were hard put to it to keep them out. When Annandale looked certain to score, North Sydney were penalised for illegal interference, and Greshier kicked the goal.

Play became rather willing, and Greshier had to retire owing to injuries, but returned later. Fraser and Neilson were sent off for fighting. From a scrum on North Sydney's line, Greshier secured and scored a clever lone-hand try, but failed to convert. Both sides eased up considerably, but Annandale made one final spurt before the end. Greshier broke through from a scrum, and transferred to Ray Norman, who tricked a couple of opponents and scored. Greshier converted. The final whistle went with the scores: Annandale, 31; North Sydney, 11.

Mr. A. Norton referee.

EASTERN SUBURBS v NEWTOWN.

"Thirteen all" was the result of the match between Eastern Suburbs and Newtown at the Show Ground, where about a thousand people watched the game. The match in its later stages was exciting. Teams:—

Eastern Suburbs.—Full-back, F. Kinghorn; three-quarters, D. Frawley, F. Strickland, R. Dalton, and E. White; half-backs, L. Cody and H. Corbett; forwards, Cunningham, W. Dalton, C. Lees, R. Williams, E. Griffiths, and G. Mackey.

Newtown.—Full-back, W. Neill; three-quarters, C. Russell, V. Farnsworth, R. Farnsworth, and W. P. Catt; half-backs, W. Farnsworth and W. H. Hayes; forwards, W. S. Noble, J. M'Cue, J. Murray, W. Glover, P. M'Cue, and D. Grundie.

Referee, Mr. T. M'Mahon.

Eastern Suburbs played against the wind, and kicked off. The first few minutes of the game were lifeless in the extreme, and it looked as if Newtown had only to exert themselves to beat Eastern Suburbs, whose team was greatly altered from their original combination, for the rest of the afternoon. This anticipation was strengthened when, after desultory play, Newtown made a move goalwards, and as a result of neat passing in Easts' 25's the ball crossed the border. In this Russell and P. M'Cue were in the van, and Hayes, picking up, was the first to send the ball on its mission. W. Farnsworth, R. Farnsworth, and V. Farnsworth carried it from wing to wing. The lastnamed transferred as he hit the grass, and R. Farnsworth swept in and over. Russell's kick hit the post. A long interval of scoreless play followed, in which Eastern Suburbs were continually on the attack, and Newtown were frequently penalised for irregularities. The Blues forced several times. At length from a mix-up R. Dalton, with the aid of Griffiths, broke away. He dashed down the wing and touched down. Lees' kick failed, and the scores were equal. The ensuing stages of the first half were more lively. From near half-way the ball was sent down towards Newtown. Lees and Frawley raced along, and the former when tackled passed to Frawley, who scored. Lees missed the goal, and the score was Eastern Suburbs 6 to 3. Easts continued to attack, but no further score was registered.

The second half gave early promise of keen play. The Blues jumped into it from the start, but it was evident that the tri-colours were equally determined, though the ball was for a long spell hovering dangerously near their line. The stern defence of the Easts changed to attacks, and, aided by a penalty or two, the ball was transferred to Newtown's 25. Here the Blues again infringed, and Cody landed a goal. Eastern Suburbs, 8 to 3. Easts heartened up considerably. One of the Eastern men marked, but delayed to such an extent that Easts were penalised for waste of time. This was the turning point of the game, for after Russell had registered a goal the scores fluctuated rapidly. Easts, 8 to 5. Russell ran along the wing and centred. R. Farnsworth secured and scored. No goal resulting, the score was 8 all. Within a minute the ball was back in Newtown's territory, where Frawley intercepted a pass and kicked. Then Cunningham emerged from a cluster and fell over the line. The ball, from the kick, hit the post, and Easts again led, by 11 to 8. Hardly was the ball in play again when Newtown raced along, with P. M'Cue nearest the ball. He picked up and passed to Murray, who lost it. From the scrum Hayes transferred to Grundie, and that player succeeded in equalising the scores, for the goal kick failed. Both teams at this stage played a man short, as the result of strenuous play. Easts, piercing the defence, were invading hard. A mark was taken, and Frawley, by a splendid kick from near mid-field, put his side once more in the lead. Eastern Suburbs, 13 to 11. Just on time Russell, from a penalty kick, registered a goal, and the teams left the field with the figures 13 all.

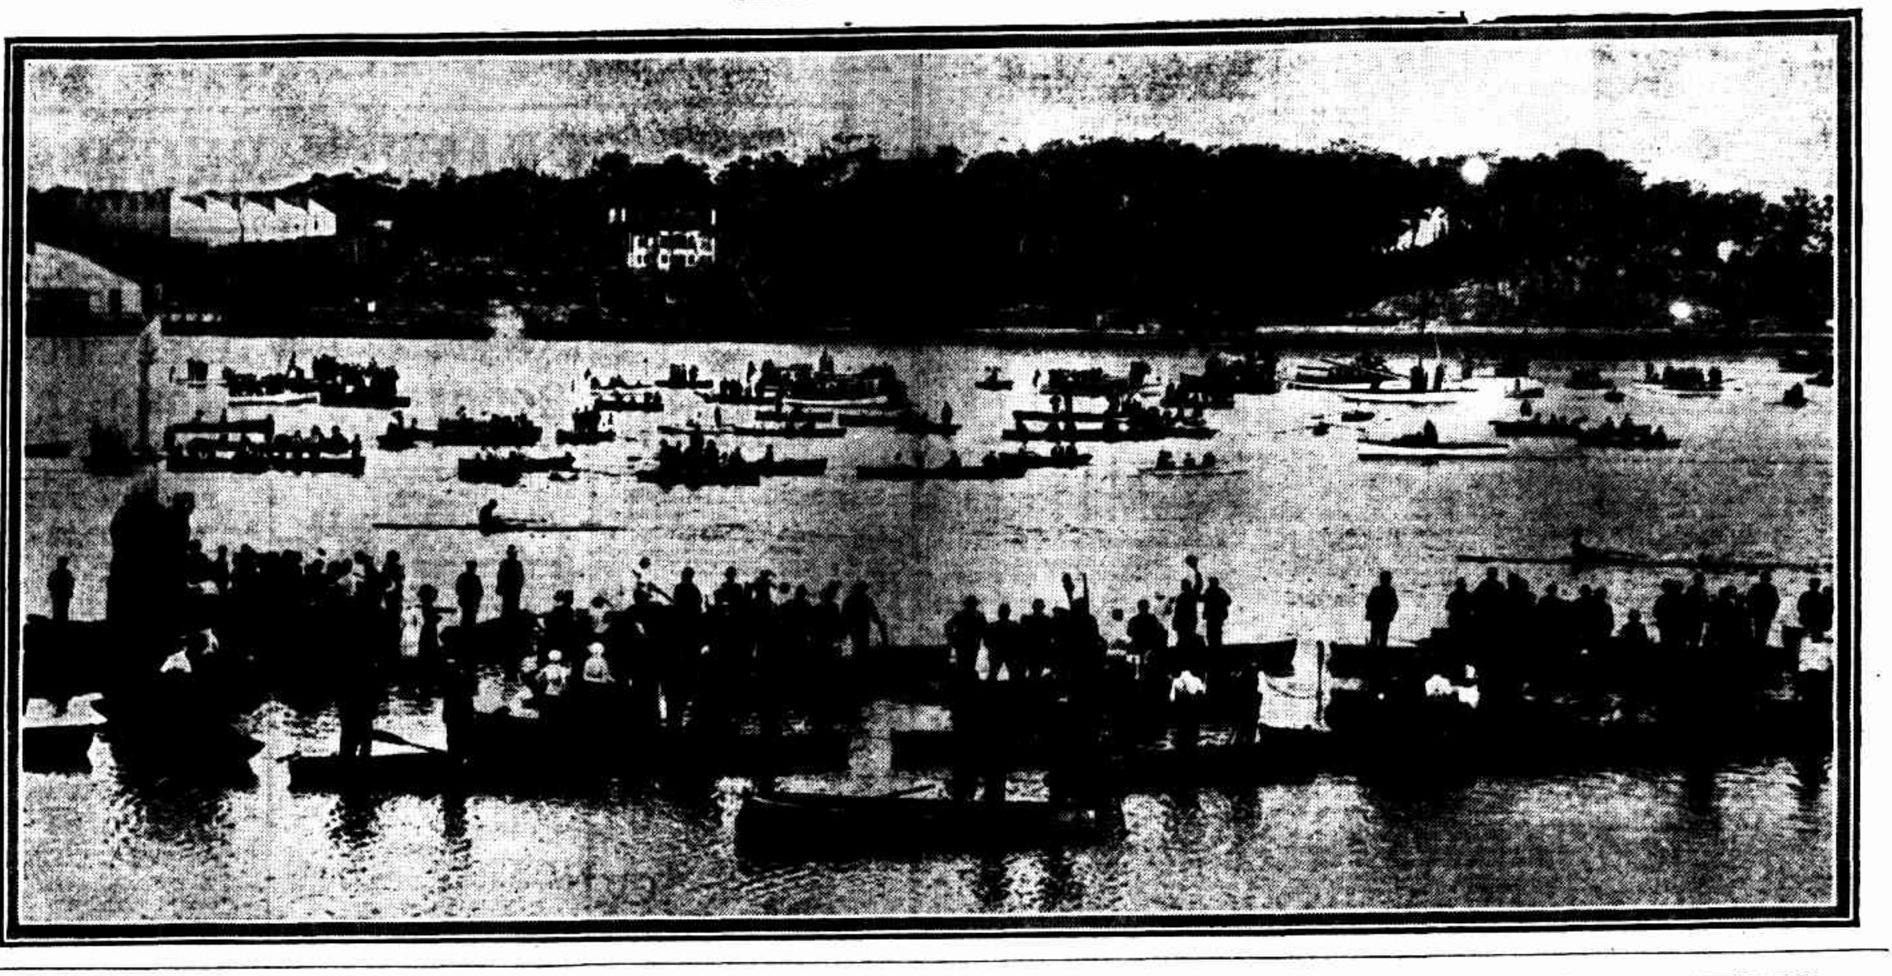
FINISH OF THE WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP SCULLING RACE.



ARNST AGAIN.

A FOUR-LENGTHS VICTORY.

PEARCE PULLS PLUCKILY.

GREAT CROWD ON THE RIVER.

TIME, 19.46—A RECORD.

In ideal weather, in record time, and in the presence of a tremendous gathering, R. Arnst, champion sculler of the world, defeated Harry Pearce, champion of Australia, on the Parramatta River on Saturday by four lengths.

It was a great and gruelling race, with both men extended to their utmost capacity for practically the whole journey, three miles 330 yards, from Ryde Bridge to Searle's Monument; and at the finish both were rowed to a standstill, limp and enervated, with the champion looking distinctly more distressed than the challenger.

It was a bright, cloudless, perfect winter's day, with a tang in the air that gave a zest to the sunshine. The Parramatta was the Mecca of the multitude, and all Sydney and his wife, with a sprinkling of relations from the Dominion and the other States, hastened thither. Trams and trains and ferries and motors and every conceivable description of water vehicle were requisitioned for the gigantic task of transferring the populace holus bolus to the tourney ground, and shortly after the big clock had tolled noon the great exodus began. Trams packed with sightseers and overflowing made in the direction of the river suburbs, Gladesville, Henley, and Abbotsford being the most popular rendezvous. Ferries with their decks awash swung out from the Quay and the Fort, and added their quota to the rapidly accumulating thousands and tens of thousands up-stream. A veritable fleet of motor launches—some dangerously overcrowded—gathering from all the bays and inlets of the harbour, formed a long and irregular procession, which found its culmination at Figtree Bay. Nor was the mosquito fleet lacking. Rowboats, skiffs, gladstones, outriggers, dingies, canoes, yachts, and odd flimsy cockleshells were commandeered. Anything that would keep afloat was seized by adventurous youngsters and paddled precariously to the monument. Here at the finishing point were foregathered possibly 50,000 people. A narrow lane was kept clear for the contestants, and this was lined on either side by a curious medley of craft, a heterogeneous flotilla thousands strong. Ferryboats anchored in the stream in Five Dock Bay, Figtree Bay, opposite Abbotsford, near Gladesville, in Hen and Chickens Bay, Kendall Bay, and off Cabarita. Their occupants, like swarming bees, hugged the near side of the boat and clambered on the roof, until the top-heavy ferries threatened every minute to capsize.

But on shore was the main army of sightseers. Abbotsford was black with people. One Man Wharf supported a tightly-compressed phalanx of enthusiasts. Over Henley swarmed tens of thousands, many of whom had taken up their stations early in the morning. Right down to the water's edge crowded thousands of active youths, stuck like so many penguins, waiting patiently. Further up the river it was just the same. At Gladesville Wharf, Bedlam Point, Cabarita, Tennyson, and Putney all the lawns and balconies and every available inch was occupied. Then the crowd thinned out, until the Ryde Wharf was reached, and here a good number assembled to witness the start. No estimate of the crowd can be more than an approximation, and without turnstiles to provide data it may have been anything between 60,000 and 100,000.

Curious how the quiet and motionless multitude suddenly sprang into life as the two straining champions in their little shells streaked down the stream. Men who had sat cramped on the rocks since morning jumped to their feet and yelled frantically. Women waved blue ribbons or ferns according to their predilection for the Australian or the New Zealander.

Harry Pearce, in a light blue singlet on which was the emblematical kangaroo, was the first to put in an appearance, getting afloat from Stanbury's old quarters at Jordan's shed. He pulled over to the umpire's boat smiling and cheerful, and was greeted with loud cheers and good-humoured advice from the partisans aboard. Then Arnst emerged from the shed near the Ryde Wharf and streaked across to the bridge. The spin of the coin favoured the champion, Harry Floyd tossing for Arnst and Tom Kelly calling for Pearce. On the roof of the umpire's boat were the officials—referee, Mr. William Beach, timekeepers, Messrs. A. Balding and R. M'Illy. The judge, Mr. N. J. M'Donald, held the red flag and the pistol downstream at Searle's Monument. The tide was low in the river, the last of the ebb, with mud showing under the mangroves on the northern bank. A light westerly blew down the river in favour of the men. The water was smooth. The men were both trained down to the last ounce and each felt fit for the race of his life. Everything favoured a great race, and so it proved—a record for a championship race, three miles 330 yards in 19 minutes 46 seconds.

THE RACE.

The steamers were late in reaching Ryde, but there was no delay afterwards in the men getting to the start, and at 4.25 p.m. the race began.

Positions had been taken up in the centre of the river, under Ryde Bridge, but the breeze caused the boats to drift two or three lengths on the course before the contest actually began, thus shortening the distance by a few seconds.

The first twenty strokes were vigorous ones, and the scullers were on perfectly even terms. Then Pearce gained slightly, and in the first minute had rowed 38 strokes, to Arnst's 34.

At Uhr's Point (about 500 yards) Arnst seemed to falter, and was then a length behind. This was quickly increased to two lengths, and the numerous friends of the challenger were well pleased.

Pearce continued to row a faster stroke than his rival, who was plugging along at a mechanical 33 per minute. Indeed, he kept this going nearly all the way. Pearce was doing crisper work, and was making the pace, for it was generally known that if Arnst got in front he would retain the lead throughout.

After sculling for three minutes Arnst began to hold his own, and soon afterwords he regained the lost distance, slowly but surely.

Approaching Blaxland's Point, Pearce went rather far in, and Arnst followed him—an error of judgment. Pearce must be allowed ample room to get clear, and as Arnst had drawn level there was a fear that an infringement of the rules would take place. Arnst, with superb coolness, stopped rowing, and Pearce passed the mile beacon in 5m 35s, with a lead of a full length. Once clear of the point Arnst put in some particularly strong work, and of a better class than he had shown on the first mile. He had been sluggish on the catch, and there was a lack of dash and lift about his rowing. Pearce, on the other hand, was shaping better than in previous races, and his work was effective.

On the half-mile between Blaxland's and Putney Arnst made his effort, and drew largely on his reserve power. After rowing seven minutes the boats were level, which means that Pearce had lost a length in less than a quarter-mile.

Arnst now took the lead, and the betting was at long odds on the champion. Passing Putney (1½ mile) Arnst led by over two lengths, his time being 8m 39s, and he was rowing better than he had been. He increased his lead to four lengths on the next quarter-mile, and passed the gas works beacon in 9m 52s.

The race was clearly much in favour of the champion, but the numerous friends of Pearce urged him to renew his efforts, and by way of encouragement, yelled to him that the man in front was done, and was coming back to him. Pearce was very game, and did not spare himself, but his task was an impossible one.

The two miles was reached in about 11m 50s, and here Pearce was 10s slower.

Passing Gladesville both men were a good deal spent, and Arnst seemed content to retain his lead of five lengths. The time here was 15m 10s, and the mile from Putney had taken about 6m 31s to row.

The extreme end of Abbotsford was reached by Arnst in 17m 15s, and Pearce was about six lengths behind. A short distance further on Arnst was 15s in front, and on the last furlong he eased off, while Pearce finished strongly.

The full time for the winner was 19m 46s, and the judge gave the result as a win for Arnst by four lengths.

Both men showed distress, but it only lasted for a minute, or less. Pearce was in the best of condition, and rowed brightly all the way. His weight was given as 12st 10½lb, and Arnst's was 13st 3lb.

The time is the fastest for a world's championship on the Parramatta over the recognised course between Ryde Bridge and Searle's Monument, the next best being George Towns' 19m 53s, when he beat Stanbury. The rowing conditions were not nearly so favourable when Towns made his record, and he won by nearly a minute, as his rival broke down nearly a mile from the finish.

THE UMPIRE'S VERDICT.

On the roof of the Lady Rawson, with a pair of binoculars glued to his forehead, and with a black and yellow scarf that awoke memories in the minds of old-timers, stood Mr. William Beach, the unbeaten champion, and the referee of the day. After the race was over he gave his opinion of the contest to a "Herald" reporter. "The better man won undoubtedly. Arnst is the world's champion, and so far as I can see now there is not another man in sight that can seriously challenge him after the way he rowed to-day. Pearce is a good man, but Arnst is exceptionally good. He seemed to win apparently easily, though he seemed done up at the finish. I thought they would break the record, and they did. There might have been a foul at the mile, but Pearce was a good sport. It is particularly gratifying to see such a great crowd on the river. They saw a fair and square race. Arnst and Pearce are two of the straightest oarsmen we ever had, and they will always keep that name. The authorities kept the course very clear. I never saw the course better kept."

ARNST PRAISES HIS OPPONENT.

"Since I last met him Pearce has improved out of sight. To-day's race proved conclusively that he is a much better man than I gave him credit for being, and I can tell you he pushed me harder than any of the men I've yet met. Why, Barry was only child's play compared to Pearce." Sitting in his shed, getting rubbed down by his trainer, and surrounded by a host of friends, Arnst could not praise his opponent enough.

"I was not so well as I might have wished to be," he said, "but my form improved greatly during the last couple of days of my training. Before that I had been a little worried regarding my condition, but never as to the ultimate result of the race. I always counted on winning out. You see, I never gave Pearce credit for being so tough as he proved himself to be. Of course, I knew that he was possessed of wonderful dash, but never thought that he would be pulling on at the finish of a fast three miles.

"We got away at the first try, and for the first couple of strokes pulled level. I think I dipped first, but if I did, I was only a moment before Harry. After a couple of strokes he commenced to draw away from me, but I didn't worry; we had over three miles to go, and, then, I knew that he always displays wonderful dash at the start. He kept his lead, and for close on a mile I had to row a stern chase. I reckoned that if I was within a few lengths of him at that spot I would win out. Passing Uhr's Point I got a great fright. One of my wrists went numb on me, and I had to drop one of my sculls for a couple of strokes. What I went through in those few seconds is almost inconceivable. Try to imagine yourself in my place, holding the championship, and feeling it slipping from your grasp, just because you could not put forth all your effort—a terrible sensation, I can tell you.

"In instances like this, you have to think, and think quickly. I couldn't tell the cause of my wrist going, but, realising that I couldn't sprint, I decided to settle down to a long, steady stroke. After we had gone a mile, I was fast bridging the gap between us. Then I found that Pearce had crossed over, and was right in front of me. Visions of a foul flashed before my eyes, so I called out to him that he had no chance of my losing on a foul. I had to slow down a couple of strokes there, but was not long in picking up the lost ground, and at Mortlake I headed him. When we left Putney behind, and Pearce was still in my rear, I reckoned that bar accidents the race was mine. You know the rest, just as well as I do. From that time on to the finish Pearce gamely spurted time after time, but I always had his measure, and stalled them all off, eventually winning by about five lengths.

"Yes, the time was fast. I can tell you I never felt so tired in my life before. Just think of it, a little under 20 minutes hard going, and a big fellow like me knocked up. Championship rowing races are no child's play—you've got to be well, or you'll lose every time."

Loud and prolonged cheering greeted Arnst's appearance on the hotel balcony. Hats and sticks were thrown into the air. Everyone seemed wild with delight, as pleased as if they had succeeded in winning the race, not Arnst. When the uproar had subsided, Arnst said, "I thank you, ladies and gentlemen, for the way in which you receive my win, but I might tell that at one time I thought it would be defeat. Now you must excuse me for saying no more. I'm so tired that bed is the best place for me." (Loud cheers.)

PEARCE'S STATEMENT.

"HE'S TOO HOT."

As the low brown shell slipped up to the shed a cheery voice called out "Record time George, 19.46." A second later George Towns, the George spoken to, had grasped the outrigger, and was gently drawing the boat towards the wharf. He held it steady while Pearce stepped listlessly from the boat, the while remarking, "My word, George, I'm aching all over." Without another word the challenger stooped down, handed the sculls to Towns, and lifting his boat from the water, carried it into the shed. Describing the race, he said:—"I lost the toss for positions, but with such perfect weather conditions there was nothing to be gained by being in either position. We got away to a good start. Arnst dipped first, but a moment afterwards I shot past him, and as I settled down into my stride I drew away from him. To Uhr's Point the pace was terrific. I had calculated on establishing a good lead before we passed the point, but, despite the fact that I was pulling my best, he was crowding me all the time, and was within a length of me. At the mile I think I was about one and a half to two lengths ahead, and thought I had the race in hand. The pace was still terrific, and I knew I was rowing against a champion. He was pulling less strokes than I, but that long, sweeping stroke of his just swallows up distance. He continued to press, and when we were about half-way across Putney Bay he spurted and caught me. It was a magnificent effort; the pace he commands is marvellous. Going great guns he led me by close on a length at Putney. Seeing that he was going steadily away from me, I spurted at Tennyson, and gained a couple of lengths, I think, to Gladesville. There, however, he was leading me by at least three lengths. Passing One Man wharf Arnst seemed to falter. The sight gave me fresh vigour, and I had already pictured myself as the winner when my hopes were dashed to the ground, for the champion had settled down to his work again, and was still ahead.

"Where did I know that the race was lost? When Arnst crossed the finishing line with a four lengths' lead. Passing Henley, however, I realised that with the lead he had the race was his barring accidents. I don't want to make excuses, and am quite satisfied that the better man won. I was rowed right out, and my legs went on me at the finish, but I'm convinced he's the better man now. He's beaten me twice now. No, most emphatically no, he doesn't weigh much more than I do. Why, I went 12st 10lb stripped before I got into the boat, and Arnst can't scale much more than that.

"No, I don't intend making another match with him; he's too hot. He'll beat them all, and for some time to come. The man who beats Dick Arnst, you can take it from me, will have to be in a class by himself.

"Give up sculling! Why should I? I've failed to gain the world's championship, but I still hold the Australian championship. I suppose there'll be other matches."

AN EX-CHAMPION'S VIEW.

"Jim" Stanbury, ex-champion of the world, said it was a very good race, very fast for the first mile, though Arnst rowed at the end better than at the beginning of the journey. He dipped shallower and more cleanly, though he still drooped his shoulders at the catch. Pearce was a good sculler, but was outclassed by the champion.

CARMELITE CONVENT.

CARDINAL MORAN AT MARRICKVILLE.

Cardinal Moran visited Marrickville yesterday for the purpose of officiating at the laying of the foundation-stone of the additional wing to the Carmelite Convent, in Wardell-road.

The proceedings were opened by the Rev. Francis Clune, presenting his Eminence with an address from the nuns. In welcoming the Cardinal, the Rev. Father Clune said that all the Carmelite nuns wanted was a humble home—somewhere to eat, sleep, and work in. There were 15 nuns now at work in the convent. The new wing was to cost £2022, of which £903 had already been contributed, while a friend, who wished to remain unknown, had given £500. Between £500 and £600 was still wanted.

After the Cardinal had performed the ceremony of laying the foundation stone, he said the other day somebody, with a "reverend" before his name, continued the Cardinal, had asked, alluding to the Blessed Virgin Mary, who was this Lady of Hope of the Christians who brought light to the world? Surely Satan could not pursue his hatred more than these demoniacs, who did not know the Blessed Virgin. Well, she was a woman who brought comfort and peace to her people. She crushed the head of the serpent, and by her meditation the people were led to the Saviour. People who poured out their vile insults to the Blessed Mary would be crushed like the head of the serpent. She had given the Church triumph, and had overcome anarchy in the past, and would continue to do so in the present.

A collection resulted in £251 6s.

ASSAULTS ON CHINESE.

CASE AT ARNCLIFFE.

Ah Chong, a Chinese, living in Rockdale, was assaulted and robbed of £1 6s at Arncliffe on Saturday night.

Chong left Sydney in the 10 p.m. train, and alighted at Arncliffe. He started to walk along the West Botany-road in the direction of his home, but when near Wickham-street he states that a man came quietly up behind him, and knocked him down, and robbed him of all the money he had on him—twenty-six shillings.

He further states that he did not see his assailant, and therefore could not possibly swear to his identity. The police are disinclined to believe that the person who committed this assault is identical with the young man who committed two assaults on Chinese vegetable hawkers within the past month.

THE DOLORES CONCERTS.

Mlle. Antonia Dolores, whose more immediate plans will now take her to Brisbane, the Northern rivers, and Melbourne, closed her deeply interesting series of song-recitals at the Town Hall on Saturday night. There was a capital attendance, and all the accustomed enthusiasm, the great singer proving once more in full voice. The star soprano opened the evening with "I Know that my Redeemer Liveth," delivered with the tender repose of style, breadth of tone, and purity of diction required to give significance to the touching Handelian aria. This song has been rendered by several artists from England during the past three or four years without the Albani pause upon the phrase, "the first fruits," before the final very brief adagio. It is interesting to record that Mlle. Dolores retains it. The encore was the charming old French folk-song, "The Angelus," first introduced here at Tuesday's concert. Two songs of Schumann, as beautiful as they are world-famous, followed. "Mondnacht" seems to carry with it the perfume of the moonlight evening in the tranquil charm of the music; and in "Der Nussbaum," the soloist was not only felicitous in the tender expression of the sentiment which linked the little maiden with the protecting almond-tree, but even suggested in a wonderful pianissimo the lapse of the romantic dreamer into the unconsciousness of sleep. The recurrence of a soaring melodic phrase in the accompaniment to this song works like a touch of enchantment. The audience was stirred to enthusiasm, and Mlle. Dolores accordingly returned to add Brahm's "Wiegenlied."

One of the events of the evening was the repetition of Mozart's great aria, "Che pur aspro al core," from that great composer's "Il Serraglio." As previously remarked, the dramatic connection between the aria and the situation it illustrates is exceedingly slight, and it has, therefore, to be regarded as pure music—a song, indeed, that blossoms into the very flower of melody, whilst possessing also declamatory passages, and coloratura covering such a wide range that few artists undertake it. The star soprano surmounted every difficulty with apparent ease, sustaining the high C fortissimo through six bars, twice covering passages that ranged from D natural "in altissimo" to B natural below the lines. Moreover, at the end of a display which would exhaust the majority of vocalists, the artist rendered, with undiminished buoyancy, rapidity, and smoothness, a one-phrase run of six bars, which the composer obliges the singer to repeat twice. The whole effort was in every respect a great one, and was so warmly recognised by the house that Mlle. Dolores responded with the charmful "Lass with the Delicate Air" (Arne), as encore.

The brief list of French songs consisted of a celebrated song by Berlioz, entitled "Absence," a fine piece of music, though wanting in the colour and individuality that generally mark this composer; Liszt's poetical setting of Victor Hugo's verses, "Comment Disaient ils"; and Saint-Saens' "Le Bonheur est chose legere." The last-named, with its ever-moving accompaniment to assist the voice in the kaleidoscopic effects of a veritable little tone-picture, was rendered with the most finished art, and the storm of applause which greeted it led to the folk-song "Jeunes Fillettes" as encore. The cantatrice sang again the romance from "Louise," thus enabling concert-goers to appreciate once more the rapturous atmosphere of Charpentier's idyllic strains; and the extra number, "Within a Mile of Edinboro' Town," was then added, with an engaging display of mischievous rusticity. Mr. Selwyn Shrimplin's piano solos consisted of a Dvorak "Humoreske" hitherto heard here as a violin number; Moszkowski's sparkling "Dance of the Rose Fairies"; Seeling's "Loreley"; and a Chopin waltz, with a Schutt "Caprice," and a "Polonaise," by MacDowell, as the extra pieces, in which the player recognised the very cordial applause of the audience.

Mlle. Dolores closed a most enjoyable programme with Rubinstein's "O Fair and Sweet and Holy," Foote's "Irish Folk Song," the crooning refrain of which was voiced in the sweetest possible pianissimo; M'Coy's "To the Raindrops"; and Tosti's "Spring Song." There were two encores at this point, the "Laughing Song," for which this artist is famous, and "Home, Sweet Home." Thus Mlle. Dolores successfully closed her return season. Although her continued tour will bring her once more into this State before her departure for Europe, it is very doubtful whether she will appear here again, although at all times the warmest welcome awaits her from a comprehensive circle of lovers of fine singing.

NORTH SHORE BRIDGE.

LOCAL AGITATION.

Mr. Claude Lyons presided on Friday night over a public meeting held under the auspices of the Sydney and North Shore Bridge League at the Willoughby Town Hall. He said it was the wish of the league to see a bridge constructed over the harbour, it being the only reasonable scheme for a permanent connection. A tunnel would in no way serve the requirements of the district.

Mr. H. Sparks (secretary of the Chamber of Manufactures) moved,—"That in the opinion of this meeting a high-level bridge between Dawes and M'Mahon's Points to convey railway, tramway, vehicular traffic and foot passengers is imperatively required to provide reasonable facilities of transit across the harbour; and the meeting urges upon the Government the necessity for immediate steps being taken to commence and complete without further delay the construction of this important national work."

The motion was seconded by Mr. W. Harding, supported by Dr. Arthur, M.L.A., and carried unanimously.

It was also resolved on the motion of Mr. Hugh Duff, seconded by Mr. John Brown, that the above resolution be forwarded to the Government, and a deputation consisting of Dr. Clarence Read, Messrs. H. Sparks, W. Harding, J. Brown, W. R. Fitzsimons, T. E. Creswell, H. Green, D. Middleton, J. Wright, and the mover wait upon the Premier.

Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery quickly relieves Bronchitis and all Throat and Chest troubles. Obtainable everywhere. Prices 1s 6d and 3s.—Advt.

AMUSEMENTS.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

There was a great attendance at Her Majesty's Theatre on Saturday night, when Mr. H. B. Irving's dual impersonation, with the finely emotional scene between the accused man and the elder Lesurques (Mr. Frank Tyars), was again the occasion of enthusiasm. The final matinee will be given on Wednesday, as next Saturday "Louis XI" will be produced, with Mr. H. B. Irving in one of his best characters in the same part. The advance plan opens at Paling's to-morrow, and the ordinary plan on Wednesday.

CRITERION THEATRE.

The Criterion Theatre was densely crowded on Saturday night, when the Clarke-Meynell Comic Opera Company entered upon the farewell week of their season. "Sergeant Brue," of which a final matinee will be given on Wednesday next, was the cause of uproarious laughter in the policeman scene, in which Mr. Percy Clifton and Mr. Tom Graves are the central figures.

THEATRE ROYAL.

"The Balkan Princess" drew another large audience at the Theatre Royal on Saturday night, and the eighth and last matinee of this romantic musical comedy is now announced for next Wednesday. On Saturday next the J. C. Williamson Company will revive "The Merry Widow," with a strong cast, including Miss Florence Young and Mr. Frank Greene as the lovers, Mr. Reg. Roberts in the tenor role, and Miss Olive Godwin, Miss Lottie Sargent, Mr. W. S. Percy, and other favourites, also in the cast. The plan will open at Paling's to-morrow.

THE ADELPHI.

George De Gray's weird drama "The Power of the Cross," which was played at the Criterion Theatre over two years ago, was revived by Mr. Marlow at the Adelphi on Saturday, before a large house. The piece is a curious mixture of tragedy and comedy, and though the minor bad characters are regularly bowled over by the comic man at the end of each act, they come up smiling from each discomfiture and elude the police until they finally get their quietus when the leading villian succumbs. The latter, ably impersonated by Mr. H. W. Diver, is Baron Woulfe Cursola, a Sardonic gentleman, with a mystic turn for evil, qualified by a salutary dread of the symbol of Christianity, the mere exhibition of which brings on temporary paralysis. He is a human vampire, who uses illgotten power for most sinister purposes, and gives the virtuous people a lot of trouble and misery until the fourth act sees his downfall and brings the painful tension to a close. There are two murders in the play, one victim being an aged postman, a well-arranged fire scene; and as Cursola invariably appears amid a glow of green light, and his coming presaged by an uncanny sound as of the dying wail of a hurricane, thrilling situations are evolved which satisfy the most morbid taste in that direction. Fortunately comedy occupies a very prominent position in the drama, and the audience is no sooner plunged into an abyss of gloom than it is lifted into hilarity. On the bright side of the "Power of the Cross" Miss Ethel Buckley, as Dolly Gray, and Mr. J. P. O'Neill, as Timothy O'Dowd, had much to do, and gave a very acceptable representation of the irresponsible light-hearted couple who are always handy when nefarious schemes are to be exposed. Miss Louise Hampton played with a good deal of dramatic force as the heroine Margaret Seaton, and was particularly effective in the third act, where Margaret, in a frenzy of despair, attacks the adventuress Rita Lascelles. The last-named role was amply filled by Miss Nellie Ferguson, and Miss Essie Clay was acceptable in the somewhat colourless part of Blanche Kingsley. Mr. Robert Inman had the misfortune to depict the worldling dissipated Gerald Fairfax, but made the most of a role which the audience could not sympathise with; and Mr. Cecil Manning was manly and convincing as Dr. Leslie Fairfax, upon whom the human vampire works his spells. As the cringing and dishonest lawyer Benjamin Hawke, Mr. John Cosgrove played with care; and Messrs. Arthur Shirley and Wilton Welch as David Kingsley, a wealthy banker, and Joe Foster, an old postman, respectively, made the most of not very prominent parts. The staging was excellent, and the scenes showing "Kingston on Thames" and the "Ruins of Cursola Abbey, Dalmatia," are good examples of the artistic skill of Alfred Clint, junior, George Clint, and assistants.

TIVOLI THEATRE.

For one moment the silvery head above the long black cassock, and shaking hands, bowed tremulously before the plaudits of the crowd. Then swiftly the figure turned to the curtain behind it; its folds parted, revealing a dressing-table covered with wigs. A few rapid touches, the addition of a moustache, the donning of a coat brought by a uniformed attendant, and as the lights flashed up again, not Liszt but Sarasate stood, violin under arm, upon the steps. The transformation was complete. Liszt—or "Litz," as careless Paris called him—Paderewski, or Sarasate, each of Lamberti's impersonations at the Tivoli on Saturday night was a triumph both of character and "make-up," but perhaps as Gounod conducting "Faust" was he most successful, and when he wound up by characteristically knocking over the music stand in a whirlwind of enthusiasm, and, snatching off wig and beard, bowed smilingly to the audience, the latter's enthusiasm was loud and unrestrained. A clever piece of tumbling was seen in another new turn by Pastor and Merle. The Australian Dartos, Spissell Bros., and Mack, Miss Fanny Powers, Alcide Capitaine, Binns and Binns, and other clever artists also appeared with all their usual success.

NATIONAL AMPHITHEATRE.

Quite a coterie of new artists made their first curtsy to a Sydney audience on Saturday at the National Amphitheatre. Some remarkably clever dancing was shown by M'Gee and Reece, the former with considerable agility accomplishing some difficult feats with a chair; while his companion, after lightly pirouetting the stage, jumped over a couple of hurdles on the extreme tips of her toes. The two Williamson girls scored a success in their duets, while Victor Martyn, a new and dexterous juggler, aroused rounds of applause. Two former favourites made a successful reappearance in the persons of Parkes and Wilson; while the comicalities of Flo d'Orville, Roy Rene, and Jack Bonny drew continuous outbursts of laughter from the audience. Millie Doris, the Piquays, Jessie Ormond, and other artists were as successful as ever, and helped to form a highly attractive programme.

LYCEUM.

The excellent series of Coronation pictures shown again at the Lyceum Theatre on Saturday attracted large attendances, both at the matinee and in the evening. At the latter performance Mr. Chas. Larsen sang "The Veteran's Song," which was much appreciated by the audience.

In addition to the Coronation pictures, numerous comic and dramatic films were screened. Foremost among these were "Child and Tramp," "Two Fathers," and "Red Eagle," dramatic pictures of excellent merit; while the humorous portion of the programme included "Tontolini, Police Inspector," "Hobo's Roundup," "Elevator Romance," "Josh and Cindy's Wedding Trip," "He Went for a Rest," and "Little Artists."

WEST'S PICTURES.

West's Pictures drew crowded and enthusiastic audiences to both performances; so well filled were the seats, that many had to seek a resting-place on the steps of the aisle. Loud and sustained applause greeted every picture, and if popular outbursts of laughter are any guide to the humour of pictures, those humorous films that were shown on Saturday were excellent. Orchestral music played a good part in sustaining the feeling of all the films. An entirely new series of dramatic, scenic, and comic pictures is to be shown on Monday. As soon as the English mail is delivered on Monday West's will show a new series of Coronation pictures, including the great procession of the 29th, with Temple Bar and other historic sites. The great naval review at Spithead is also to be shown. After this week West's will no longer be shown at the Palace, as the lease expires, but will carry on at the Princess till the Glaciarium is again free. Throughout the week the system of hourly matinees will be continued.

THE LYRIC THEATRE.

The new programme at the Lyric contains nothing but highly attractive items. All the leading makers of cinematographic films have excelled themselves in the productions that they contribute to this programme, and an interesting series of pictures is the result. The leading feature of the production is a dramatic film entitled "Temptations of a Great City." It bids fair to be one of the most sensational pictures yet screened. Pathe contributes his world-famous European Gazette. The Italia Company is represented by "Odd Adventures of Foolshead," in which that well-known character is to be seen in still funnier scenes than ever. The great Coronation review at Spithead makes a splendid centrepiece. The Gaumont Company is represented by an amusing comic, "What's in a Name?" "In the Days of '49," by the A.B. Company, is one of those powerful and sensational dramas for which that company is famous.

COLONIAL THEATRE No. 1.

In the early week programme of the Colonial No. 1 the Cosmo Company presents a fine educational study, "The Boot Industry." The Gaumont Company, with its well-known "Graphic," present the latest interesting scenes from real life in splendid pictures. The Cines Company comes forward with a fine and elevating sentimental drama, "Raphael's Boyhood." The Tyler Company presents a clever new comedy, "The Champion Sick-list." A most attractive mirth raiser, "The Indian Maiden's Lesson," is one of those excellent blendings of romance and charming scenery that are well known in connection with the S. and A. Company. Last on the list, but by no means last in merit, is a dramatic subject entitled "The City's Lure," which is a soul-moving film.

COLONIAL THEATRE No. 2.

In keeping with the spirit of enterprise that characterises the management of the Colonial and Lyric theatres, the programme for the Colonial No. 2 is fully up to the high standard of its sister theatres. Pathe, contributing "The Australian Gazette," is well to the fore in interest to all Australians, and the films are of that merit that is always associated with the name of this maker. Cines, the well-known Italian Company, produces an educational study of life in the Italian army entitled "Italian Sharpshooters." The Vitagraph is represented by a clever comic, "Betty Becomes a Maid." "The Magic Fife" is a sentimental drama by a standard firm. The Gaumont Company is again represented by a comic of the greatest merit, "Stolen Skates." "Country Lovers," a dramatic study by the A.B. Company, is well placed. "Aunt Jemima's Umbrella," a film that raises a smile with its title alone, is by the Pathe Company, and has a telling finish.

AMERICAN PICTURE PALACE.

"One Hundred Years Ago" is the title of the star picture to be shown at the American Picture Palace, Queen's Hall, next week. The programme, which is a continuous one, will also include "What Happened to Father" and other comedies. The quality of the pictures shown is excellent, and good incidental music is played.

GLACIARIUM.

The smooth ice surface at the Glaciarium attracted to every session on Saturday hundreds of enthusiasts, who indulged in this graceful and exhilarating pastime, while excellent music was supplied by the Australia Orchestra.

Preparations are now being made, under the personal direction of Mr. Dunbar Poole, for the Antarctic ice carnival.

BURNS CONCERT.

The monthly concert of the Burns Anniversary Club was held at the Protestant Hall on Saturday night before a large attendance. The concert was opened with a selection by the club's pipe band, followed by a song, "O a' the Airts the Wind can Blow" by the B.A. choir. The programme included songs and recitations, also Highland and sword dances by Miss J. Patterson, and a cornet solo by Mr. J. Polley. The contributions of these performers were most acceptable. Other artists were Mr. Reg. Riemenschneider, Miss Jessie Sheath, Mr. E. Wright, Miss B. Gilchrist, Mr. G. West, and Miss Ethel Hogan, all of whom were generously applauded, and received encores. The concert concluded with the choir and the audience singing "Auld Lang Syne."

MISS GERTRUDE PALMER'S CONCERT.

Miss Gertrude Palmer's concert at St. James's Hall will take place, as notified, on Saturday, August 19, but the plan will not open at Paling's until Monday, August 7.

PANTOMIME AT THE PALACE.

On Saturday evening next Mr. William Anderson will introduce Liddiard's Lilliputian Pantomime Company in "The Old Woman who Lived in a Shoe." New ballets, choruses, and the latest songs, backed up by novel spectacular effects, will mark this production, in which more than a hundred well-trained juveniles will take part. The plan opens this morning at Elvy's.

COLISEUM THEATRE, NORTH SYDNEY.

There was a good attendance on Saturday night at the Coliseum Theatre, North Sydney, when J. C. Bain's Vaudeville Entertainers provided a capital programme. The new artists included Victor the Great (magician and ventriloquist), Captain Winters and his educated dogs, the Anderson Trio (athletes and club-swingers), and the two Carlyons (comedy sketches). Others contributing were Ethel Preston, Marshall Palmer, Thelma Wood, Sam Gale, the Island Sisters, and Little Sadie. During the evening several moving pictures were presented, including the Coronation pictures specially imported by Mr. Bain.

UNNECESSARY CLEFS.

Mr. W. J. Stent, of this city, has received a copy of a lecture delivered by L. A. Williams, before the American Guild of Banjoists, Mandolinists, and Guitarists, at their tenth annual convention, Philadelphia, on April 24 last. The subject is of interest not only to mandolinists but to all who are called upon to study any instrument demanding a special clef in musical notation. The proposition put forward is that all clefs should be dispensed with except the treble clef, as high or low passages may be marked 8ve above or below. In other words, music for all voices can be written conveniently in one notation, wherefore three of the four notations are unnecessary. The subject, which is of much technical interest, is discussed at great length by the writer.

WILLIAM ANDERSON'S ENTERPRISES.

The box plan for both of Mr. William Anderson's companies, "The Man from Out Back" at the Criterion, and the pantomime, "The Old Woman who lived in a Shoe," at the Palace—will open at Elvy's this morning.

THE VICTORIA.

Mr. Frank Musgrove is giving the benefit of a long theatrical experience to the improvement of the Victoria Hall in Pitt-street, near the corner of Park-street, and will open this establishment this morning as a continuous picture show.

THE SWISS REPUBLIC.

An event of historical interest and importance has just been celebrated in the anniversary of the foundation of the Swiss Republic. The occasion dates from the first of August, 1291, when the three original cantons swore to deliver Switzerland from the thrall of the Australians. The Swiss citizens in Sydney usually celebrate the day with an annual banquet, but on this occasion it was decided to hold a picnic at the Avenue, Lane Cove. The innovation proved highly successful, as large numbers of people attended, attracted by the prospect of the open-air and the informal nature of the entire function. Mr. M. Rutty proposed the toast of "The Day We Celebrate," while that of "The Land We Live In" was given by Mr. Alfred Wunderlich.

OPIUM FINDS.

Customs officers yesterday made a seizure of 49 tins of opium, which had been secreted away in the steamers Eastern and Aldenham. The contraband was valued at about £200.

Last night Patrol-officer Moloney searched a Chinese at Flood's wharf, and found concealed in his double-soled boots two tins of the drug, while around his body he had several skins, also containing opium.

"RUNNING THE LIGHTS."

The matter of the playing of searchlights at the entrance to Sydney Harbour, of which Captains Wilson and Grahl, of the steamers Guthrie and Wyreema respectively, complained, has been brought under the notice of the Harbour Trust Commissioners by Messrs. Burns, Philp, and Co., Ltd.

It is understood that representations will be made by the Harbour Trust to the military authorities with a view to having this "running of the lights" carried out with more discretion in the future. The commissioners thought this understanding had been fully arrived at two months ago.

HACKING COUGH QUICKLY CURED BY
DR. SHELDON'S NEW DISCOVERY.

"I had a nasty hacking cough on the chest for some time," writes Mrs. M. Field, 28 Egan-street, Newtown, N.S.W. "The phlegm would come like a marble in my throat, and nearly choke me. I was worst at night. The water would run from my eyes, and I would shake all over. I tried many cures, but remained just the same. A friend recommended Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery. I got a bottle, and the first dose gave me instant relief. It took that nasty feeling away from my throat, and after a week's treatment I was completely cured."

THE PROTECTOR.

BY HAROLD BINDLOSS

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.]

CHAPTER XXI.—Continued.

In the meanwhile Carroll had taken his place by Jessy's side.

"I understand you steered your comrade satisfactorily through the meeting to-day," she began.

"No," objected Carroll; "I can't claim any credit for doing so. In matters of the kind Vane takes full control, and I'm willing to own that he drove us all, including your brother, on the course he chose."

Jessy laughed good-humouredly. "Then it's in other matters you exercise a little judicious pressure on the helm?"

The man looked at her in well-assumed admiration of her keenness. "I don't know how you guessed it, but I suppose it's a fact. It's, however, an open secret that Vane's now and then unguardedly ingenuous; indeed, there are respects in which he's a babe by comparison, we'll say, with either of us."

"That's rather a dubious compliment," Jessy informed him. "What do you think of Miss Chisholm? I suppose you saw a good deal of her in England?"

Carroll's eyes twinkled. "I spent a month or two in her company; so did Vane. I fancy she's rather like him in several ways; and there are reasons for believing that he thinks a good deal of her."

Having watched Vane carefully when Evelyn came in, Jessy was inclined to agree with him, and she glanced round the room. One or two people were moving about, and the rest were talking in little groups; but there was nobody very near, and she fancied that she and her companion were safe from interruption.

"What were some of the reasons?" she asked, boldly.

Carroll had expected some question of this description, and had decided to answer it plainly, because it seemed probable that Jessy would get the information out of him in one way or another. He had also another motive, which he thought a commendable one. Jessy had obviously taken a certain interest in Vane, but it could not have gone very far as yet, and Vane did not reciprocate it. The latter was, however, impulsive, while Jessy was calculating and clever, and Carroll, who was slightly afraid of her, foresaw that complications might follow any increase of friendliness between her and his comrade. He thought it might be wise to leave Vane alone.

"Well," he said, "since you have asked, I'll try to tell you."

He proceeded to recount what had passed at the Dene, and Jessy listened, sitting perfectly still, with an expressionless face.

"So he gave her up—because he admired her?" she said at length.

"That's my view of it," Carroll agreed. "Of course, it sounds unlikely, but I don't think it is so in my partner's case."

Jessy made no comment, but he felt that she was hardly hit, which was not what he had anticipated. He began to wonder if he had acted judiciously, and he glanced about the room. It did not seem considerate to study her expression then. A few moments later she turned to him with a smile, in which there was the faintest hint of strain.

"I dare say you are right; but there are one or two people I haven't spoken to," she said, and moved away from him.

Some time after this, Mrs. Nairn came upon Carroll standing for the moment alone. "It's no often one sees ye looking moody," she informed him. "Was Jessy no gracious?"

"That," said Carroll, smiling, "is not the difficulty. I'm an unsusceptible and somewhat inconspicuous person, not worth powder and shot, so to speak, for which I'm sometimes thankful. I believe it saves me a good deal of trouble."

"Then it is something Vane has done that is on your mind. Doubtless, ye feel him a responsibility."

"He's what you'd call all that," Carroll confessed. "Still, you see, I've constituted myself his guardian. I don't know why, because he'd probably be very vexed if he suspected it."

"The gods give ye a good conceit o' yourself," Mrs. Nairn exclaimed.

"I need it," said Carroll humbly. "This afternoon I let him do a most injudicious thing, and now I've done another which I fear is worse. On the whole, I think I'd better take him away to the bush. He'd be safer there."

"Ye will not, no just now," declared his hostess firmly.

Carroll made a sign of resignation. "Oh well," he said, "If you say so, I'm quite willing to stand out and let things alone. Too many cooks are apt to spoil the kail."

Mrs. Nairn left him, but she afterwards once or twice glanced thoughtfully at Vane and Evelyn, who had once more drawn together.

CHAPTER XXII.

EVELYN GOES FOR A SAIL.

It was about the middle of the morning and Vane sat in Nairn's office with a frown upon his face. Specimens of ore lately received from the mine were scattered about a table, and Nairn had some papers in his hand.

"Weel?" he said when Vane, after examining two or three of the stones abruptly flung them down.

"The ore's running poorer," Vane admitted. "On the other hand, I partly expected this, and there's better stuff in the reef. We're a little too high, for one thing; I look for more encouraging results when we start the lower heading."

He went into details of the new operations, and when he had finished Nairn, who had been jotting down some figures, looked up.

"Yon workings will cost a good deal," he pointed out. "Ye will no be able to make a start until we're sure of the money."

"We ought to get it."

Nairn looked thoughtful. "A month or two ago I would have agreed with ye, but general investors are kittle folk, and the applications for the new stock are no numerous."

"Howitson promised to subscribe largely; Bendie pledged himself to take a considerable block."

"I'm no denying it. But we have no been favoured with their formal applications yet."

"You had better tell me if you have anything particular in your mind," Vane said bluntly.

An unqualified affirmation is not strictly in accordance with the Scottish character, and Nairn was seldom rash.

"I would have ye remember what I told ye about the average investor," he replied. "He has no often the boldness to trust his judgment or the sense to ken a good thing when he sees it—he waits for a lead, and then joins the rush when other folk are going in. What makes a mineral or other stock a favourite for a time is now and then no easy to determine; but we'll allow that it becomes so—ye will see men who should have mair sense thronging to buy and running the price up. Like sheep they come in, each following the other; and like sheep they run out if anything scares them. It's no difficult to start a panic."

"The plain English of it is that the mine is not so popular as it was," said Vane impatiently.

"I'm thinking something of the kind," Nairn agreed, and then proceeded with a cautious explanation: "The result o' the first reduction and the way ye forced the concern on the market secured ye notice. Folks put their money on ye, looking for sensational developments, and when the latter are no forthcoming, they feel a bit sore and disappointed."

"There's nothing discouraging in our accounts. Even if the ore all ran as poor as that"—Vane pointed to the specimens on the table—"the mine could be worked on a reasonably satisfactory paying basis. We have issued no statements that could spread alarm."

"Just so," said Nairn. "What was looked for was more than reasonable satisfaction—ye have no come up to expectations. Forby, it's my opinion that damaging reports have somehow leaked out from the mine. I see clouds on the horizon."

"Bendie pledged himself to take up a big block of the shares," repeated Vane. "If Howitson does the same, as he said he would, our position would be secure. As soon as it was known that they were largely interested, others would follow them."

"Now ye have it in a nutshell—it would put a wet blanket on the project if they both backed down. In the meanwhile we cannot hurry them. Ye will have to give them time."

Vane rose. "We'll leave it at that. I've promised to take Mrs. Nairn and Miss Chisholm for a sail."

He went out and had got rid of the slight uneasiness the interview had occasioned him before he reached the waterfront, where he found Mrs. Nairn and Evelyn awaiting him with Carroll in attendance. In another few minutes they were rowing off to the sloop, and as they approached her the elder lady glanced with approval at the craft, which swam, a gleaming ivory shape, upon the shining green brine.

"Ye have surely been painting the boat," she said. "Was that for us?"

Vane disregarded the last question. "She wanted it, and paint's comparatively cheap. It has been good drying weather the last few days."

ON THE LAND.

FARM AND STATION.

COUNTRY TELEPHONES.

The question as to whether substantial reduction cannot be made in the primary and annual cost of telephone connection in the country is one that deserves the earnest attention of the authorities. So much has to be done to make the service generally effective that it is easy to understand that this matter does not receive the attention it should. The telephone in rural life is rapidly becoming not a mere convenience, but an actual necessity. Certainly, the farmer can do without it. But he is decidedly better off in every way if he has it. The State is interested in the matter to the extent that, given cheap facilities such as these, rural life becomes much more attractive. As the general desire is to promote rural settlement, this is an important point. So important is it that some loss might be endured for the time by the department in the great interests of settlement. Whether there will be a loss is hard to say, as cheaper facilities will lead to more business. Unfortunately, there does not appear to be anything too definite, from the commercial standpoint, about much of the Postal Department's administration, so we cannot tell whether the present rate is necessary to avoid a loss or not. If, however, there are any means by which better terms can be made to allow the settler the use of the telephone, they should certainly be availed of. Commercially and socially telephone connection is a great boon to the farmer, while in case of sickness or sudden emergency—in helping to check outbreaks of bush fire—it is invaluable. Like many other rural questions, the matter cannot be considered solely from a business or profit-making standpoint. There are other national concerns of the greatest moment intimately associated with it, and it should be regarded in that light by the authorities.

SEED SELECTION.

It is only a matter of time when the average farmer will endeavour to improve his seeds as he improves his stock. The policy of trying to keep only the best must ultimately find acceptance with the majority at least. When that happens farming will be a different proposition to what it has been, and is. It will be both more attractive and more profitable. The value of seed selection has been well proved. While effective plant-breeding requires patience and skill, particularly patience, and some technical training, the farmer can decidedly do much by system and observation. In any paddock of maize, for example, and much in the way of improvement is possible in this crop, it will be seen that many plants are markedly better than others, better developed, healthier, and carrying a better ear. These superior plants, or the best of the best, those with big, broad leaves and heavy ears, should be marked, and at harvest time the grain set aside for seed. The same principle should be applied with wheat, potatoes, or other crops, and when that is done one good practical step has been taken in the direction of improving the crops. Even if no more is done, the trouble taken would be profitable. But if, in addition, the best seed is again selected by hand, and a seed plot established, the grower is on the road to securing a much improved variety. To follow that up, however, requires expert training, and is probably a matter beyond the scope of the average farmer, if only on account of time. But there is practically nothing to prevent him making a selection of the strongest and healthiest heads in his crops, making for regularity, plumpness, and trueness to type, and not to mere size, and using the selection for seed.

ILLAWARRA CATTLE.

The South Coast men are to be congratulated upon the success achieved in the first year's operations of the Illawarra Dairy Cattle Association. Whatever difference of opinion may exist as to the breed being a distinct one, there can be no dispute of the good work done by such an association. The Illawarra cattle are well worth maintaining in type and character, for they have done most valuable work for the dairying industry of this State, and will continue to be valuable, having proved their suitability to local environment. In any case, an association that aims at utility, and fixes a high standard, is setting a valuable example to admirers of other breeds. While admitting the great value of purity of descent, not a few people will be influenced to invest their money in a strain where actual records of yields are beyond question. It is obvious that those who are getting their stock into the Illawarra Stud Book stand to find it a profitable thing. It is also fairly certain that the association can look for stronger support now that it is firmly established, as there are always those who prefer to leave the initial work of a new enterprise to others. That the success of the association is largely due to the hon. secretary, Mr. Frank M'Caffrey, will not be questioned, and the acknowledgment at the annual meeting to that effect was well merited. Mr. M'Caffrey is not only an enthusiast in his belief in the virtues of the Illawarra cattle, but also possesses a practical knowledge of the breed that makes his services the more valuable.

ITEMS.

The orange rust mite has made its appearance in some Victorian orchards.

Rabbits have got such a run on the South Coast districts that no place is safe now from their depredations. In consequence of damage done by rabbits in North Kiama cemetery it is suggested to have the new cemetery wire-netted.

The new Land Bill drafted in Victoria empowers the Forestry Department to plant trees, not only upon certain reserves, but upon wide roads.

It is estimated in Victoria that during the past five or six years the cost of bags for handling grain has run into £2,000,000, while the cost of handling trucks during the same period is put down at £40,000.

At the recent farmers' conference in Victoria it was argued that the money for bags last year, together with the losses due to damaged grain, would have been sufficient to erect elevators at all the stations in the grain belt.

CARRIAGE OF FRUIT.

MERCHANTS AND STEAMSHIP OWNERS CONFER.

On Thursday last a deputation consisting of representatives from the Fruit Merchants' Association of New South Wales waited on the Steamship Owners' Association to ventilate their grievances and suggest various improvements. The Fruit Merchants' Association was represented by Messrs. T. Jessep (president), V. J. Phillips (secretary), M. Walters, G. Lister, W. J. Sinclair, F. Chilton, J. Slater, and A. J. Cooper; and the Steamship Owners' Association by Captain Webb (in the chair) and Messrs. Jackson, Black, Feather, Kelso, Chaffer, Pidgeon, and Smith (secretary).

Mr. Jessep, in introducing the deputation, spoke of the perishable nature of fruit cargo, which demanded special treatment. He also protested against the action of the Union Company, which had decided on shutting down on fruit for New Zealand at 9 a.m. on Saturday mornings, thereby almost prohibiting any shipping being done at all on that day.

Mr. Walters dealt with the rough handling of fruit by wharf labourers, etc., and suggested the appointment of a special man by the companies, whose sole duties would be to supervise the handling of fruit on all the wharfs, and to try to educate the wharf labourers and others that fruit demanded special careful handling.

Quicker delivery of fruit from the wharfs was next dealt with by Mr. Slater, who also urged the prevention of ullages to fruit by passengers and others between port and port, and the readier recognition of and payment for such ullages and claims.

Mr. Chilton dwelt on the better stowage and protection of fruit on board ship from the effects of sun, rain, and spray, and urged the erection of awnings on deck for this purpose.

Mr. Cooper spoke of the difficulties in getting refrigerating space for the Northern Queensland trade, and asked for more equitable treatment of the Sydney as against the Melbourne merchants in this respect.

The deputation was unanimously of opinion that the day for the boat leaving Hobart should be altered to Friday, and thereby utilise Saturday and Sunday in travelling, instead of the fruit lying on the wharfs in Hobart waiting for the boat to leave on Monday. The boat arriving in Sydney on Monday would also fit in better with the departure of other boats north.

The steamship owners reserved their replies to the bulk of the grievances. Captain Webb explained the difficulties in the way of the companies, and said the shipping companies were blamed for all injuries to fruit, where, perhaps, many others, including faulty packing by growers, may be the cause. He also explained the difficulties of covering fruit on deck, tarpaulins thrown over the stacks of fruit doing more harm than good.

Mr. Jackson explained that the reason for shutting down at 9 a.m. on Saturday on fruit for Wellington, New Zealand, was due to the mails being required to catch the new train service to Auckland, but he would have the matter looked into. Mr. Black denied that there were any difficulties in getting cool-room space to northern ports, and said his ships' rooms were never properly filled. In regard to other matters, Captain Webb said he fully realised the grievances of the trade, and they would do their best where possible to remedy them.

CHAMBER OF AGRICULTURE.

THE QUEENSLAND NUT.

The third annual social gathering of the New South Wales Chamber of Agriculture was held on Saturday evening. The president, Mr. Henry Lord, was in the chair, and while there was only a small attendance of members an enjoyable evening was spent. A new innovation this year was the presence of ladies, and Mrs. Corrie, a member of the council, responded to the usual toast. The toast of kindred institutions was responded to by Messrs. John Neal (Fruitgrowers' Union), G. W. Walker (Royal Agricultural Society), E. Rudder (Cumberland Council of Progress), and R. Kaleski (Farmers and Settlers' Association). The speakers referred to the necessity of co-operation between organisations representing rural interests, and it was suggested that an endeavour should be made to form a council composed of representatives from each body, with the idea of bringing united forces to bear to effect desired reforms.

In proposing the toast of the Chamber of Agriculture Mr. Austin, a farmer from the Richmond River, said that the Government should be more active in assisting men on the land to establish new industries. Some years ago he had endeavoured to find out through the Department of Agriculture a market for the Queensland nut, but was informed that there was absolutely no demand for it anywhere. Since then the speaker had privately established a larger local sale.

Mr. H. J. Rumsey, hon. secretary, referring to the same matter later, stated that the American Government had obtained 20,000 of these nuts from this country, and the nut was now planted in California, while the Government here would do nothing.

IN CANADA.

AUSTRALIAN FARMER'S IMPRESSIONS.

IMMIGRATION AND HIGH WAGES.

An Australian from Western Riverina (Mr. Frank Sugden), who bought a farm in Alberta, Canada, some years ago, sends his impressions to a Deniliquin paper, in the course of which Mr. Sugden says:—

"It was the worst season during ten years, and crops were almost a complete failure. Except for one fall in June we had no rain from the time we put the crops in until they were taken off. Even then I saw a crop of 25 bushels of wheat per acre near my place. As for myself, I've had bad luck. In August, 1908, I put in 300 acres of winter wheat. I was told it was a certainty, but from my experience, if you get one crop of winter wheat in four years you do well. Winter wheat is sown in August. It comes up about six inches, stools well, and lies in the ground all the winter. Last year I irrigated about 40 acres of winter wheat, and this spring I had to resow what I did not irrigate. In the latter end of May, 1909, when I saw my winter wheat was a failure, I resowed 200 acres in oats, barley, and flax. My oats yielded 60 bushels per acre, barley 35, and flax (or linseed) 10 bushels. I got about 1s 9d per bushel for my barley at the station, 8s for flax, and 1s 3d for oats, so, although I lost my winter wheat I had time to sow other grain and get a crop off. Last year I had 400 acres in, and 300 were an absolute failure. From 50 acres spring wheat and 50 acres winter wheat I got 10 bushels to the acre. I never saw better prospects than there are now. We've had about five inches of rain in ten days, and the snow is about a foot deep.

HIGH WAGES.

"Carpenters here get 2s 1d per hour, plumbers 2s 6d, and living costs about 25s a week. Though there are thousands pouring into Canada, 200,000 last year—wages are on the increase. I would like to know why the Australian Labour party say that immigration lowers wages, while in Canada (where those who have never been here say we have seven months' winter) wages are so high? If I get carpentering work done or plumbing work, I have to pay the same wages in winter as in summer. My farm men get 35s a week and board, and live well. Hours, up at 5 a.m., breakfast at 6.15, in the field from 7 to 12, dinner to 1.15, in the field till 6, and supper about 6.45 p.m. At harvest time they work a little later, and they have no hot weather to work in like they have in Australia. At threshing time men get 8s 4d to 10s per day and board, but they work 6 a.m. to 7.30 p.m. I believe in the States wages are even better.

AMAZING PROGRESS.

"Calgary, which is distant from my place 28 miles, is a thriving town of about 40,000 people. When I first saw it in 1905 the population was 8,000, and by 1908 it had grown to 22,000, so you can see by the rapid increase it is a go-ahead place. The year before last Calgary installed its electric street car system, operated by the city council. In its first year, after paying interest on the capital expenditure, and establishing a sinking fund, a net profit of £9000 was made. Lethbridge, a town of about 10,000 people, is now installing a similar system. I am firmly convinced, as the country is making such marvellous progress, that within five years you will see Calgary with a population of 100,000.

AUSTRALIA MUST ADVERTISE.

"I hold my land at £11 an acre, but do not care whether I sell at that price or not, but if I do I intend to go back and look at the conditions in Australia, and if satisfactory I will stay there. Otherwise I will return to Canada for good, with all its climatic drawbacks. The Australians can pick up many good points from the Canadians. Let the Federal Government advertise for Australia, not each State separately, although all can help. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company are spending thousands of dollars advertising and working with the Government. As an Australian I say you have the country and climate—the latter far ahead of Canada—and under irrigation no country on earth could beat it. Well, advertise for and encourage capital to come in—don't frighten it away.

"I intend coming out next year, and if the prospect pleases, I shall settle in my native land, and if I could be shown a good proposition I believe I could get a number of neighbours to join me. But then I must be able to show them the goods.

"I do not care for the principle of grain buying here. The Elevator Company have too much of a grip, and a lot of graft. They grade your wheat, Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4, and you take your wheat to the elevator. They will grade it No. 3, as the case may be, and dock you so much for dirt. You take their word for it, and it's been known that wheat has been bought as No. 3 from the farmers and sold out as No. 2, at advantage of the difference in price, as No. 1 wheat is a better price than 2, and so on.

COMMERCIAL DISHONESTY.

"I do consider over here the middlemen and manufacturers rob the people right and left, and the people smile and do not seem to mind. The price of harvesting machinery is daylight robbery. It seems the prevailing idea here, if Peter robs Paul, then Paul robs someone else to get even, and so it goes on. And dishonesty is considered business shrewdness, not vice, and even managers of large business firms seem to think it not beyond their position to stoop to tell a lie if it's a chance of getting an order. I have found in 75 per cent. of business men their word is not reliable.

"I cannot say what it is, but there is something about these prairies one likes. I have met very few British people or Americans who want to get away; they all seem to like it. My chief objection is the lack of greenness, one can only have a garden four months in the year—May, June, July, and August, and for five months you cannot plough the land; although actual winter, that is real cold weather, lasts about two months. I consider October, November, and December the best three months in the year. It is sharp in the morning, but fine during the day."

POTATO CROPS.

BRISBANE.—Speaking at the official luncheon of the Laidley show, the Minister for Agriculture said at the present time they were in a peculiar position in regard to potatoes. In all the southern States all the potatoes were infested more or less with Irish blight, and they did not want it brought here. They had some in Queensland, but were trying to eradicate it, and did not want potatoes from the south to come and spread it. The price of potatoes had risen, and was likely to rise more. He would urge them to plant more potatoes this year than ever, and he was making arrangements to have 100 acres planted at the Agricultural College. He had also instructed the Under-Secretary for Agriculture to communicate with the Federal authorities, and arrange for him to import some seed potatoes from Great Britain.

TAMWORTH AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

TAMWORTH.—At a meeting of the Tamworth Agricultural Society the financial position was considered. It appears that after the flood of three years ago, when the ground was washed away, the Government gave a special grant of £1000, and promised another £1000. The society has had to purchase a new ground, and the first grant was exhausted. There is no sign of a further grant being forthcoming. The erection of buildings on the ground cost £4000, with no money to meet the amount. The members of the committee agreed to each sign a promissory note for £50 in order to procure an overdraft from the bank of £1000. Through having no show for three years the membership of the association has dropped to 70, being the lowest in the northern districts. Until the Government comes to the rescue the position of the society is very serious, and a heavy responsibility rests on the members of the committee.

EXPERIMENTS WITH MAIZE.

SINGLETON.—During the past season experiments have been in progress on the farm of Mr. Holz, at Maison Dieu, with different varieties of maize. The object was to ascertain whether an improvement could be made in the maize yield by introducing new varieties. Four new sorts were planted, under the supervision of an inspector from the Department of Agriculture, alongside the variety which Mr. Holz has found most suitable under the local conditions. An acre of each variety was sown, so that a thorough trial could be made. The crop has now been threshed, and the following are the yields:—Funk's Yellow Dent, 71½ bushels; Boone County Special, 63 bushels; Early Yellow Dent, 62 bushels; Early Leaming, 62 bushels; and from the farmer's variety, 50 bushels. These figures show that the local variety was 12 bushels behind the lowest of the departmental varieties. If a selling price of 2s 3d per bushel is allowed, this means a return of £1 7s per acre more in favour of the lowest new sort. The best of the new varieties returned 21½ bushels per acre more grain, and at the same price this means about £2 8s more per acre. Mr. Holz is thoroughly satisfied with the results of the experiment, and intends to sow some of the best varieties next season. The satisfactory yields obtained are largely due to the attention bestowed upon the crop.

CODLIN MOTH.

PERTH.—The Western Australian fruitgrowers' conference resolved that the Agricultural Department be asked to prohibit the importation of apples from other States or foreign countries where codlin moth exists.

CO-OPERATION OF FRUIT-GROWERS.

COMMENDED BY MR. TUDOR.

MELBOURNE.—The Minister for Customs, Mr. Tudor, has expressed very keen interest in the co-operative movement of the Victorian fruitgrowers. He said that if there were more co-operation amongst primary producers there would be less complaint of the excessive profit of middlemen, or of the pernicious influences of trusts and combines. He considers there is an immense future for the fruitgrowing industry of Australia, but without co-operation it was obviously impossible to anticipate that producers would be enabled to reap not only the full but even a fair and reasonable return for their enterprise and labour. The fruitgrowers had a splendid example of the wonderful results of co-operation in the very complete success of a similar organisation in California. There they had entirely revolutionised their methods and transformed their conditions from what previously, in many cases, was a struggle for existence into a profitable occupation for individual growers. In conclusion he hoped the movement would not only extend throughout the State of Victoria, but its success here would lead to similar organisations in each State of Australia.

IMPORTED POTATOES.

AMENDED REGULATIONS.

MELBOURNE.—A Federal proclamation has been issued amending the conditions under which importations into the Commonwealth of potatoes were permitted. Shipments of potatoes will in future be allowed to be landed if accompanied by an official certificate from the country of origin certifying that they were free from Irish blight, canker, black scale, warty disease, or cauliflower disease, and that they were grown on premises which had been free from the diseases named for 12 months. The name of the country of origin must be branded on the bags. There is a further provision that potatoes certified to be free from disease by a quarantine officer may be imported.

THE SHEARING.

TAMBAR SPRINGS.—Bando station has started shearing with a full board. This is the first shed in this district, also the largest. Forty thousand sheep will be shorn.

DAIRYING.

DORRIGO.—For the month of June 10 tons 13cwt 14lb butter was manufactured at the Dorrigo factory, an increase of 554lb on the corresponding period of last year, when the season was far and away more favourable than the present winter. To date this has been known locally as one of the worst winters experienced on the Dorrigo. The total sales amounted to £1169 5s, and suppliers were paid 10d per lb for first-class and 9d for second. It was found necessary during the month to ship the greater part of the output via Coff's Harbour, owing to the bar trouble at the Bellinger River entrance. Coff's Harbour will henceforth be the local port for the export of butter, owing to the stringent regulations in connection with the Commonwealth compulsory grading rendering it necessary that no time be lost with the regular shipments.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

CORAKI.—Farmers are now busily engaged potato planting. Large areas are being put under this crop. Mr. D. S. H. Moreton has been unanimously re-elected president of the Central Richmond River Agricultural Society.

DELEGATE.—Snow and rain during the present winter have made an excellent spring a certainty. It is thought by some residents that the extremely wet season has its disadvantages, however. Farmers are unable to plough yet, the country being far too soft. Crops will consequently be late, even if they are all got in. The wool clip is expected to be a heavy one next shearing. Sheepowners, even in cases where their flocks have not increased, are ordering more woolpacks than last year in anticipation of an increased clip.

PROPERTY SALES.

TAMWORTH.—The Royal Hotel, Tamworth, has been sold by auction for a lump sum of £9100, being at the rate of £115 5s per foot, to Mr. P. J. Kenna, of Sydney.

HUGHENDEN (Q.).—It is reported that Rockwood Station has changed hands, the purchaser being a well-known North Queensland pastoralist. The price is said to be considerably over £250,000.

INTERSTATE FOOTBALL.

N. S. WALES BEATS QUEENSLAND.

BRISBANE, Saturday.

There was an attendance of 7000 this afternoon at the match between Queensland and N.S.W. The weather was fine, and the State Governor, Sir Wm. MacGregor, was present. Teams:—

N. S. Wales: Full-back, L. Dwyer; three-quarters, L. Mayo, O. H. Dean, W. S. Prentice, and W. Jones; halves, H. Stewart and F. Woods; forwards, J. Clarken, H. George, E. Fahey, Fraser, T. J. Griffin, J. Wylie, H. Kirby, and H. Baker.

Queensland: Full-back, J. Scott; three-quarters, Cameron, M'Mahon, Thomson, and Hickson; halves, Atthow and Svenson; forwards, Fitzharding, Topham, A. Kent, Murphy, Shaw, Dingwall, Emmerson, and Cunningham.

Referee: Mr. P. Ferguson.

N. S. Wales kicked off with the sun in their faces, and after a period of scrummaging Queensland was awarded a free near half-way, but nothing resulted. Queensland pressed for a time but a good kick by Dwyer relieved matters for N. S. Wales. The maroons continued to press, and for offside play near the N. S. Wales 25 were awarded a free. Fitzharding's kick was successful—a fine effort. Queensland 3 points, N. S. Wales nil. Play was suspended through Stewart being injured, but he resumed. A passing rush by the N. S. Wales three-quarters ended in the light blues receiving a free, but Prentice's kick failed. The visitors pressed again, and from a series of passes Stewart crossed the line and then added the extras. N. S. Wales 5 points, Queensland 3 points. Another bout of passing by the light blues almost resulted in a score, but a penalty kick saved Queensland. The maroons came away with a rush, and Fitzharding almost scored, but a scrum was ordered. A series of passes by the N. S. Wales three-quarters ended in Mayo scoring an easy try. Stewart converted. N. S. Wales 10 points, Queensland 3 points. A repetition of these tactics brought another score for N. S. Wales, Mayo again crossing. Prentice added the extras. N. S. Wales 15 points, Queensland 3 points. The maroons were awarded a free near the visitors' 25, but M'Mahon's kick failed. Half-time scores, N. S. Wales 15 points, Queensland 3 points.

The Queenslanders pressed from the start in the second half, and almost scored within a few minutes. N. S. Wales relieved, however, and play had to be suspended for a few minutes because Murphy was injured. From a free near the 25 Queensland made an unsuccessful attempt at goal, and for an illegality in the scrum the maroons were awarded a free, and the kick went between the posts. N. S. Wales 15 points, Queensland 6 points. The light blues came with a rush, and Jones securing passed to Mayo, who scored. Stewart failed to convert. N. S. Wales 18 points, Queensland 6 points. Queensland attacked again, and almost succeeded in crossing at the corner, but the ball went out. M'Mahon took a mark near the N. S. Wales 25, but Kent's kick went wide, and the light blues relieved. The maroons once more pressed, and the Welshmen repulsed them by skilful kicking. A good tackle by Kent prevented N. S. Wales scoring, and Queensland were relieved by a free. Clean passing by the maroons made a score look certain, but fumbling spoilt it. The Queenslanders were penalised near half-way, but Stewart's kick, though a good one, just missed. From his own 25 Cameron secured for Queensland, and running passed to Thomson, who scored. M'Mahon's kick failed. N. S. Wales 18 points, Queensland 9 points. The game now livened up, and some good play was shown. Queensland again came away, Fitzharding being prominent with a good run. The local men were now having the best of matters, and several times looked like scoring, but they failed through faulty passing near the goal line. From a free near the 25 M'Mahon kicked a beautiful goal. N. S. Wales 18 points, Queensland 12 points. At full time N. S. Wales had won by 18 points to 12 points.

BRITISH ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

GRANVILLE BIDS FOR RAWSON CUP

Balmain suffered their second defeat in the Rawson Cup on Saturday, Granville's form in attack being irresistible. Balmain's defence was not so sound as usual, and the forwards, with the exception of Robinson and M'Donald, were not so smart as the opposing front rank. Granville's win enhances their prospects of carrying off the trophy. Canterbury made an excellent showing against Glebe, giving their best display this season. At Easton Park, in the association cup, the naval team were apparently dissatisfied with the ground allotted, and intimated that they would not play.

Principal results:—

RAWSON CUP.

Granville beat Balmain by 3 goals to 1.
Newtown beat the Navy by 5 goals to 1.
Glebe drew with Canterbury, 1 goal all.
Sydney received a forfeit from West Sydney.

ASSOCIATION CUP.

West Sydney beat Glebe by 5 goals to nil.
Newtown forfeited to Northern Suburbs.
Balmain and the Navy (Garden Island) did not play.

FIRST LEAGUE.—RAWSON CUP.

BALMAIN v GRANVILLE.

Played at Erskineville Oval, and won by Granville by 3 goals to 1.

Balmain.—Hughes, goal; Low and Thompson, backs; Byers, Moore, and Rose, halves; M'Donald, Robinson, Newman, J. Ferguson, and O'Hehir, forwards.

Granville.—Mobbs, goal; Peaty and Day, backs; Thompson, Hilder, and Platt, halves; Williford, Brickley, M'Grath, Watts, and Fairweather, forwards.

Balmain, favoured by the wind in the first half, commenced by attacking strongly. The defence of Hilder and Peaty, however, was excellent, and prevented the Balmain forwards from coming to close quarters. Long shots by Moore and O'Hehir were saved by Mobbs, who used his fist to great advantage. Williford and Fairweather made several fine runs on the respective wings for Granville, though Byers and Rose tackled surely. Hughes was forced to come out several times through Williford racing past Thompson. Granville surrounded the goal after one fine run by Williford, but the Balmain forwards fell back and assisted in defence, J. Ferguson saving a low shot. Balmain attacked with vigour in the closing stages of the first half, but the passing of the forwards was for the most part misdirected, and the Granville defence coped successfully with all attempts to score. At half-time neither side had scored.

O'Hehir had a shot at goal from a handy position soon after play started in the second half, the ball missing a top corner of the goal by a couple of feet. A splendid rush by Granville swept the ball through the opposing defence, and Watts put in a hard successful shot. Granville, 1 to nil. Granville maintained their advantage for a time, but Robinson started his side off with a long run, and an accurate centre kick. Ferguson spoilt a chance by hanging on. Again Robinson was prominent, and Newman shot, but Mobbs knocked the ball out to Robinson, who also tried for goal. The Granville keeper stopped the second shot, and, running out, brilliantly saved by smacking the ball away into the open field. Granville then had matters their own way. The fast forwards were continually pestering the defence. A fine centre by Fairweather was taken by M'Grath, who placed the ball slowly into the goal. Hughes was unable to get a clear run to save, and the ball rolled over the goal line. Granville, 2 to nil. From a free kick, Rose sent the ball right in front of Granville's goal, and Platt made an attempt to kick it away. The Granville half-back, however, merely diverted it between the posts, and thus scored for Balmain. Granville, 2 to 1. Robinson was frequently to the fore in starting a rush for Balmain, but Granville had the game safely in hand, Peaty and Hilder working solidly and effectively in defence. Before full time a Granville forward dash ended in Watts scoring with a left-foot kick, Granville thus winning by 3 goals to 1. Mr. R. C. Hibbard, referee.

GLEBE v CANTERBURY.

Played at Campsie, and resulted in a draw, each side scoring a goal.

Canterbury.—Geering, goal; Dale and Winter, backs; Piggot, Caldwell, and Bagnall, halves; Melhuish, Garde, Lane, Smythe, and Hillyard, forwards.

Glebe.—Storey, goal; Haynes and Brailey, backs; Kelly, Wheat, and M'Donald, halves; Gibson, Estell, Patrick, Charlton, and Laird, forwards.

Glebe, aided by the wind, kept the Canterbury defence busy tackling early in the game. The combination of the forwards was good, but the same could not be said of their shooting. Laird and Charlton operated successfully on the left wing, and the latter drove a hard shot at Geering, who stopped the ball in grand style. A long shot by Haynes was also saved, but many attempts sent the ball wide of the goal. Solid defence by Brailey and M'Donald kept Canterbury forwards from advancing too close to the Glebe keeper, and the first half ended without any scoring.

Both sides tried hard to open their account when play was resumed. Lane put in a good run for Canterbury, and passed to Smythe. Storey failed to clear, and Smythe scored an easy goal. Canterbury, 1 to nil. Smythe had another shot that went very close to scoring, but Glebe at length shone in a fast attack, Laird showing great dash. Glebe secured a corner kick, and Patrick headed the ball through the goal. This was the final score, the game ending in a draw, one goal all. Mr. W. Machin, referee.

NEWTOWN v THE NAVY.

Played at Kogarah, and won by Newtown by 5 goals to 1.

Newtown.—Lawrence, goal; Hall and Grummett, backs; J. Cook, Dennis, and Bywater, halves; James Murphy, Milton, Harper, and Blake, forwards.

The Navy.—Bingley, goal; Walker and Page, backs; Anslow, Austin, and Pryor, halves; Cowen, Heaseman, Thompson, King, and Dowie, forwards.

The breeze assisted Newtown in the first spell, and the forwards made good use of it. Excellent combination also helped them in their scoring efforts, and Milton's brilliant shooting capped the performance. No fewer than four goals were put through by Milton before the interval. Blake and Murphy fed the centre-forward consistently, and the results were pleasing to Newtown. At half-time Newtown had 4 goals to nil.

Bingley saved a number of shots on resuming, and Page and Walker defended soundly. The naval forwards at last got going, and after some neat dribbling Thompson scored. Newtown, 4 to 1. Harper then showed out in tricky footwork and clever control, and ended in a fine individual effort by notching a goal. There was no further scoring, Newtown winning by 5 goals to 1. Mr. H. G. Smith, referee.

FIRST LEAGUE—ASSOCIATION CUP.

WEST SYDNEY v GLEBE.

Played at Surrey Ground, Waterloo, and won very easily by West Sydney by 5 goals to nil. Milner (3), Quill, and Priestley scored for the winners. This was Glebe's eighth consecutive defeat in the competition matches. Neither team was complete. Mr. O. Read, referee.

BALMAIN v THE NAVY (GARDEN ISLAND).

The above match was to have been played at Easton Park. The Balmain team and the referee turned up to time, but there was no naval team in attendance. It appears that Garden Island notified the hon. secretary of the New South Wales Football Association that they were not prepared to play at Easton Park; but the letter was received too late last week to notify the other parties concerned of the intended default by the naval men. The matter will be dealt with to-night by the management committee.

NORTHERN SUBURBS v NEWTOWN.

Newtown forfeited to the North Shore team, which engaged a side from the R.M.S. Orvieto. The team from the mail steamer were defeated by 6 goals to 1.

SECOND LEAGUE.

FIRST DIVISION.

Sydney beat Canterbury, at Campsie, by 5 goals to nil, Troupe (2), Melville, Jenkins, and Knight scoring.

Balmain A beat Y.M.C.A., at Swan Park, by 5 goals to 2.

SECOND DIVISION.

West Sydney A drew with Rozelle at Easton Park, neither side scoring.

West Sydney B forfeited to the Navy.

NURSE CUP.

Pyrmont Rovers beat Balmain Wanderers by 2 goals to 1. A. M'Lean, A. Golden, and G. Clifton scored for the winners.

Balmain Gladstone beat St. Benedict's, at Leichhardt, by 4 goals to nil, Rae (2), Lamoby, and Brown scoring.

Glebe Royals drew with Balmain Shamrocks, at Centennial Park, one goal all.

Leichhardt Rovers played a draw with St. Thomas', at Moore Park, each side scoring 2 goals.

Balmain Earlsbrae beat Y.M.C.A., at Annandale, by 7 goals to 1. Pryde (4), Nugent, and Wilson, scored for the winners, and Evans for Y.M.C.A.

JUVENILE COMPETITION.

St. David's beat Y.M.C.A., at Annandale, by 1 goal to nil, McCulloch scoring.

St. Paul's beat Leichhardt Rovers at Fletcher's Paddock, by 2 goals to nil.

NEW SOUTH WALES v TASMANIA.

N.S.W. TEAM SELECTED.

The selection committee met on Saturday and picked the following team to represent New South Wales in the interstate match against Tasmania, at Hobart, on August 12:—Hughes (Balmain), goal; Howieson (Granville) and Dennis (Newtown), backs; J. Richards (Helensburgh), Pallier (Helensburgh), and Donaldson (Corrimal), halves; Grummett (Newtown), Smythe (Canterbury), A. Jones (Corrimal), Oldfield (Helensburgh), and Taylor (Corrimal), forwards. Reserve back, Gibson (Northern Suburbs); reserve forward, Murphy (Newtown). The team cannot be said to be truly representative, but most of the best metropolitan players were not available for selection. Six first-class players from the South Coast are included, and the side appears capable of displaying good all-round football. It is probable that Mr. S. Lynch, who was appointed manager, will not be able to make the trip. In that event a fresh appointment may be made to-night.

ELECTORAL IRREGULARITIES.

ADELAIDE, Saturday.

The Electoral Irregularities Committee sat again last evening, when several other applicants whose claims had been witnessed gave evidence. Some signed blank forms in the absence of attesting witnesses. One stated that a man employed by Klauer afterwards urged him to say he signed the paper in the presence of Klauer, and he replied that he would not tell a lie for anybody.

SUGAR STRIKE.

REMOVAL OF DUTY.

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT FIRM

PREPARED TO LOSE REVENUE

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The threat of the Acting Prime Minister, Mr. Hughes, to remove the sugar duty unless the workers were given what they asked caused a sensation in business and political circles. According to a statement made by Mr. Hughes, his threat was discussed with his colleagues before being made public, and it is understood that all the Ministers consulted supported the Acting Prime Minister's rough-and-ready way of forcing the employers to give way.

As the matter stands at present there is a duty of £6 a ton on sugar imported from abroad, and £4 a ton on sugar grown in Australia. If, however, the latter is grown by white labour £3 of the duty is returned by way of bonus. Australian white-grown sugar, therefore, is protected by a duty of £5 a ton, the difference between the import duty (£6) and the amount paid after deducting the bounty.

In answer to a question on Saturday, Mr. Hughes said his statement was intended to refer to both the import and the excise duties. "But," he added, "it need not affect the payment of the bounty. Of course, I realise that this means a big loss of revenue, but we must be prepared to put up with that if we find that thousands of employees are not being treated properly in a highly-protected industry." Continuing, he said that to repeal the duty a bill would have to be passed through the Federal Parliament.

In reply to a question as to whether it was definitely settled that such a bill would be introduced during the coming session, Mr. Hughes said:—"I cannot say anything more definite than I have already said, namely, that I for one will not have the slightest hesitation in repealing the duty at the earliest possible moment. In saying this, I do not speak without careful consideration, nor without having consulted with my colleagues."

The Minister for Customs, Mr. Tudor, in referring to the matter on Saturday, said:—"The Acting Prime Minister's statement is practically the same as the one I made to the growers and manufacturers at Bundaberg during my recent visit to Queensland. I told them that they were making the position very much more difficult for the retention of the duty, and that they would have themselves to blame if any alterations in the duties were made."

A STATE PRECEDENT.

Mr. Hughes's threat to have the sugar duty repealed as a reprisal against the Colonial Sugar-refining Company recalled yesterday to the minds of old politicians and senior officers of the State Public Service the threat made by the late Mr. Francis Longmore, when acting Minister for Mines, about 31 years ago. There was a strike in certain mines at Bendigo, and the owners came down to the department to ask for suspension of the labour covenants. According to the politicians and officers, Mr. Longmore, who was a member of the then powerful Berry Ministry, replied that he listened carefully to the representations, and that he could only tell the deputation that if the mines were not at work again within a certain short period he would forfeit all the leases. The mines, they add, did restart work within the period named, but a vigorous protest was made against the attitude taken by the Minister.

TROUBLE AT HARWOOD.

MACLEAN, Sunday.

The situation between the Sugar Company and the canecutters at Harwood is unchanged. It is reported that the company has officially given the men till Monday to start work on the former agreements, otherwise other men will be procured from Sydney. Most of the local men have returned to their homes to await developments. There is a local rumour that many men have broken away from the union, and secretly signed on to start work on Tuesday. Outside opinion is that the strike will settle itself in this way. The company's agreement with the farmers enables the company harvesting to the growers, many of whom prefer this course to having the work done by inexperienced men from Sydney.

The principal point of disagreement now appears to be the refusal of the company to allow the men an extra ration of sugar and potatoes. If the trouble becomes serious the area of cane grown will be largely diminished this season.

PROPOSALS FOR SETTLEMENT.

LABOUR FEDERATION'S SUGGESTION.

BRISBANE, Sunday.

A letter was sent from the Trades Hall on Saturday morning to the secretary of the Australian Sugar Producers' Association, Brisbane, with a view to an early and amicable settlement of the present dispute in the sugar industry in this State.

The letter was signed by Mr. Albert Hinchcliffe, the secretary of the executive of the Queensland Provincial Council of the A.L.F. It made the following proposals: (1) Three shifts of 8 hours each in the mills; (2) that those mills which find it inconvenient to establish the three-shift system to pay time and quarter for all time worked over eight hours each shift; (3) that a minimum wage of 30s per week and found be the terms of employment in the mills, and for the slack season in the fields; (4) a uniform agreement regulating the conditions of employment to be mutually arranged by the representatives of the employers and employees. It is also stated that these proposals were approved by the executive of the A.W.A., and that their acceptance would lead to a speedy solution of the trouble. The letter added that if there were any points in the foregoing which the association was desirous of having discussed, arrangements would be made to meet representatives in conference.

STRIKE AT GRAFTON.

CANECUTTERS CEASE WORK.

GRAFTON, Saturday.

At the Harwood sugar mill on Thursday week men were taken on for the canecutting season, and mill hands also. Fourteen gangs were engaged of nine men each. There was a surplus of 20 applicants for employment.

Yesterday the whole of the men engaged on Thursday to cut cane went on strike, demanding increased pay for loading punts and more rations. The manager advised the men to go to work while he communicated with the head office of the Colonial Sugar Company, who, it is understood, declined to make the advance. The men are firm in urging their requests, and refuse to go to work till the increases are given. Meanwhile the mill hands are being boarded and lodged by the company, who have given the strikers till Monday next to sign on under the old agreement, or they will be replaced by others.

A representative of the Broadwater Rural Workers' Union is at Harwood, and consulted with the men during Thursday night.

WAGES BOARD TO MEET.

BRISBANE, Saturday.

Speaking in connection with the sugar industry dispute yesterday, the Minister for Works said that he had communicated with the chairman of the Sugar Industry Wages Board at Mackay, and suggested to him that he might call the members of the board together, with a view to obtaining any fresh information that might at present bear on the industry. He had done that particularly because he knew this action had the support of a considerable number of those interested in the industry, both millers and employees.

STEAMER TRAFFIC.

FREE LABOURERS JOIN STRIKERS.

BRISBANE, Saturday.

Referring to a statement that the action of the Adelaide Steamship Company in advertising for men to handle sugar might mean that the Waterside Workers' Union would refuse to handle any of the Adelaide Company's cargo, Mr. Wareham has explained that as the waterside workers were not on strike the Adelaide Company would only be too pleased if they would handle all their cargo as heretofore, but as the waterside workers out of sympathy for the sugar strikers refused to handle sugar the Adelaide Company, as contractors to the Colonial Sugar Refinery Company for the past 15 years, were compelled to make a genuine effort to get the sugar loaded. Mr. Wareham added if the strike were over to-morrow there was ample work at Mackay, Townsville, and Cairns, after employing a few free labourers who had been sent to those ports, to keep every unionist employed from now till the end of the season for as many hours as they cared to work.

Reports have been received of refusal by the unionists to handle cargo at Maryborough and Bundaberg. Following upon the decision of the wharf labourers at Maryborough not to unload from the Konoowarra 120 tons of tramway rails consigned to a certain sugar mill, and the return to Brisbane of the A.U.S.N. Company's steamer Tinana practically empty, consideration was given to-day to the question of reducing the number of steamers operating to Maryborough and Bundaberg.

Mr. Wareham has received information that four free labourers sent to Mackay by the Marloo on Tuesday last joined the strike camp after disembarking from the vessel. The Marloo arrived at Townsville to-day. Nine free labourers sent from Brisbane to assist in the loading of sugar joined the strike camp immediately on arrival.

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE.

The Sydney unions have responded liberally to the appeal of the Queensland sugar workers for financial assistance. The largest contribution so far has been £200; but many of the unions which were prevented from voting large sums at an ordinary meeting by the rules, are calling special meetings. The first instalment of the money subscribed, a cheque for £1300, has been forwarded to the secretary of the strike committee.

DELEGATES IN SYDNEY.

Mr. Ryland, M.L.A., Mr. Adamson, M.L.A., two Queensland members of Parliament, were present at Thursday night's meeting of the Labour Council, and were given a cordial reception.

Mr. Ryland said that the Sydney unions had responded generously to the appeal of the Queensland sugar workers for the sinews of war to help them to fight the battle for the Eight Hours Day, and better wage conditions. The sugarworkers of Queensland numbered probably 20,000 people, and money would be required to maintain such a long army. About 6000 men were now in the strike camps. The strike, if adequately supported, must be successful; if it was not shortly brought to a conclusion, it would mean £2,000,000 of loss before Christmas. What they were fighting were the monopolies which control the sugar industry. These monopolies took £7 12s 6d per ton as sheer profit on every ton of sugar, or a third of the price charged for it on the market.

Mr. Adamson, M.L.A. for Rockhampton, said that the men in the strike camps were a fine and courageous body of men, who deserved the support of unionists. They were fighting for a reasonable wage of 7½d per hour and better food. Some of the food at present supplied to them was absolutely rotten. The men had repeatedly asked the employers to meet them in conference, but the employers had refused; a wages board was refused by the Government, and they had been forced to strike, having no other alternative. They were going to secure an eight hours' day, better pay, and better food. (Applause.)

HELP FROM BROKEN HILL.

BROKEN HILL, Saturday.

The A.M.A. on Thursday voted £100 to the sugar-workers on strike in Queensland, and also decided to make a one shilling levy on members per fortnight.

A resolution was also carried,—"That in the opinion of this meeting the bounty on scab-produced sugar should be withdrawn by the Labour Government, and we urge Mr. Thomas, member for the district, to bring the matter before the Cabinet as speedily as possible."

The Iron and Brass Moulders' Society also decided to strike a sixpenny levy for the strikers.

UNIONISTS AND FREE LABOUR.

CAIRNS, Saturday.

At a meeting of waterside workers a report was received from representatives of the Adelaide Company's gangs to the effect that if the sugar was loaded into the steamer by free labour the Adelaide Company's gangs would stop handling cargo for that company. It is understood this does not refer to volunteer labour, but only to paid free labour.

THE SUGAR COMPANY'S POSITION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The statement of the Acting Prime Minister relative to this matter, which has appeared in the papers to-day, calls for some reply from me, because of the direct attack he has made on the company I represent.

Before, however, dealing with his charges, I would say a few words about the strike—its origin and incidence. It has from the outset been directed in Chillagoe, a small mining township in Queensland, whence the original demands were made by circulars addressed to millowners and others. To our knowledge, no evidence has appeared in the papers or otherwise as to the establishment of the association which caused the trouble, nor were there any effective unions in connection with the sugar industry which could combine to form the association. Our own six mills are fully manned, and yet we could not say that, either at the time of the receipt of the circular or even now, there is one man in those factories who belongs to such a union.

It is true that we do not regard as our concern whether our employees are or are not members of unions, but if any of them were ardent unionists it is probable we would have heard that this was the case.

Accordingly, we have not regarded seriously the demands made. Everyone knows that an eight-hour rule for farm work is impossible, and it has been manifest from the first that the cane-cutters, who are all employed by the farmers, would resent any such limitation; while as to their earnings under existing conditions, we have collected the 1910 figures for five out of our six mills in Queensland (there are no records from the sixth), and the average weekly earnings of all the gangs employed were £3 5s, £4, £4 5s, £4 7s 3d, and £4 16s 4d, and these are the wages of unskilled labourers employed constantly for five to six months. It is of interest to note here that the Commonwealth regulations prescribe a minimum of 35s per week.

With regard to the men employed in the mills, it was apparent at once that the object sought was not the reduction of the hours worked, but the payment of overtime, and, indeed, in a cartoon issued the other day by the Queensland "Worker" this object was plainly admitted. The strike organisers knew well that, apart altogether from the question of an eight-hour day in a country factory, no mill had accommodation for the large additional number of employees needed under this system; and further, that as this accommodation had to conform to Government regulations it could not be improvised.

Then about the wages and hours of the mill hands. I am not aware that the Minister has anywhere pointed out that in the central division these have lately been fixed by law, and in the other districts the conditions determined by the wages board which dealt with the matter have been accepted as the standard. There is no doubt at all as to the pay being adequate for the work, and in confirmation of this statement it can be said that, in terms of the above award, the average wage paid by us in the mill (excluding all mechanics) is £2 6s 6d per week, with overtime when earned. And this position is clearly understood here, for, despite the militant tactics employed by those directing the strike, there has been no difficulty in obtaining suitable men, prepared to serve for the season on the terms fixed by the wages board. Indeed, many hundreds of men have gone to the north in the past few weeks under such engagement, and those offering now are superior to the first applicants who were sent when the strike broke out.

Such being the facts of the case, it is not surprising that the attack has so far failed, and ten days ago the movement was on the eve of collapse when it was revived—for a time—by the Acting Premier's decision to hinder the shipment of the sugar at the Queensland ports, the wharf-labourers being directed by him to refuse to handle this. The move was taken with the intention of stopping the refineries in the southern ports, but it, like the others, has failed in its object, and the public has no reason to expect that there will be any failure on our part to provide supplies for our customers.

Now this is realised, and as it is evident that the individual unionists in the southern States have but little sympathy with the strike (the meeting called in Ballarat by two Queensland members of Parliament was reported to have been attended by one man), the Acting Prime Minister threatens to abolish the protective duty on sugar, and make sundry charges against my company, with which I will now deal.

The first of these is that we have presumed to raise the price of sugar by £1 per ton, the words used being that the company "have the unblushing effrontery to declare their price in the daily papers in this callous and wholly indecent fashion." How these adjectives can be applied to simple newspaper advertisements for which we have paid I do not understand. If a business is to live it cannot disregard the world's values, and as the prices of sugar in Europe have advanced in the last six weeks by more than £2 10s a ton, surely it is not unreasonable that we should—both in our own interest and in that of the other Queensland mill owners—raise our rates when the chance offers, for we must surely reduce these when prices elsewhere fall. If the Minister had cared to state the facts, he would have said that we make but little more than a fourth of the raw sugar produced in Queensland, and that the owners of the rest get the full advantage of any such advance in our rates, so that only this proportion of the gain actually comes to us, though we certainly get a disproportionate share of the abuse which the Ministry and their followers scatter so widely when speaking about sugar and the makers thereof.

And does the Acting Prime Minister really mean that he will advocate the cancellation of the present protection because the owners of, say, one-eighth of the capital invested in sugar production in Queensland stand up for their rights under the law. He should know that the growers are all independent, that we have no interest in any factory but the six we own, that the bounty given by the Commonwealth out of the excise duty paid goes direct to the grower of the cane, and that it is quite impossible for us to get more for our produce than the cost of similar sugars imported from Hongkong, yet he "will not have the slightest hesitation in repealing the duty at the earliest possible moment." I think that the hard-headed men who grow the cane and make the sugar in Queensland will regard this threat as neither the formal utterance of a Ministry nor the decision of a Parliament.

The further references to the wages demanded by the strike committee and the present rates of pay cannot be taken seriously. As a matter of fact, we give the preference to elderly men or those of slight physique for the ordinary work of the factory, because it is not heavy; at one or two stations more strength is needed, and higher pay is given at these.

As to the discouragement of industries, consequent on the high price of sugar, the Acting Prime Minister does not, apparently, know that, before Federation, the duty was £6 per ton in Victoria, and the industries seemed to thrive then. In the other States the rate was lower, but the complaints on this score come from Melbourne, where the conditions are unchanged. And it may be remembered that the abolition of the duty would not hurt the refineries, as has been shown in New Zealand, where, as in Australia, this part of our business has been worked wholly on a freetrade basis.

All that has been stated here, and much more, would have been long since explained to the public had there been a full inquiry into the conditions of the sugar industry by a Judge of the Supreme Court. Such an impartial investigation, however, the Commonwealth Government and their supporters have not, for obvious reasons, been willing to face.

I have purposely omitted any reference to the defiance of the Commonwealth and State laws by the Acting Prime Minister in aiding and directing a strike, because we feel that this point should be left for the High Court to deal with.

I am, etc.,
EDW. W. KNOX,
General Manager,
The Colonial Sugar Refining Company, Ltd.

THE HIGHLAND SOCIETY.

SCOTTISH HALL TO BE BUILT.

THE KING EDWARD MEMORIAL FUND.

The Highland Society of New South Wales held its 33rd annual meeting at the society's rooms, Falmouth-chambers, on Friday night, when, in the absence of the president (Colonel Jas. Burns, M.L.C.), the chair was taken by Mr. Dugald Thomson.

In moving the adoption of the report, the chairman said that the membership had considerably increased, and a large prospective increase for the coming year was foreshadowed. The financial position was also a good one, while the big scheme for building a Scottish Hall, in Wynyard-square, was receiving the heartiest support. Although the plans for this building provided ample accommodation, a further step had been taken to permit of future extensions, if and when necessary, as the owner of the adjoining land had generously given the society a five years' option, during which the society could take it over at cost. (Hear, hear.) That seemed no bad arrangement for even Scottish business men. (Laughter.) Referring to the King Edward VII. memorial, a movement initiated by Colonel Burns and the Highland Society, Mr. Dugald Thomson said that it was gratifying to find the public was responding with its accustomed liberality. In Paris, a city admired by his late Majesty, and one which, in turn, admired and respected the King, the people were perpetuating the memory of Edward VII. by naming one of their finest new streets after him. If foreigners could do that, it would be a poor thing for the great and wealthy State of New South Wales, and the great and loyal city of Sydney, not to erect here some imposing and lasting tribute to the late King's memory. (Hear, hear.) Out of £3000 already raised, the Highland Society had contributed £506, and he anticipated, with a good deal of confidence, that it would eventually total £1000. (Applause.) During the past year the society had lost several prominent members, including Archibald Telfer and Alexander Smith, both true Scotsmen and valued councillors. With regret, also, he announced the retirement of Mr. J. Currie Elles from the position of hon. secretary.

Mr. James Muir seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

Messrs. Dugald Thomson, James Muir, and J. Currie Elles were elected by acclamation life vice-presidents, and Captain A. S. Murray hon. life member.

The adoption of the annual report of the Burns Club was moved by Mr. James Muir, and seconded by Mr. Evan Macdonald; and the motion was agreed to unanimously.

The elections of officers for 1911-1912 resulted as follow:—

President, Colonel the Hon. James Burns, M.L.C.; vice-presidents, Dr. J. R. M. Robertson, Messrs. David Mitchell, J. M. Pringle, Evan Macdonald, James Johnston, Dr. H. C. Taylor-Young, Dr. Storie Dixson, Messrs. James Shirra, Thomas Steel, Henry Adamson, Duncan Sinclair, Dr. H. Jardie Hood; hon. secretary, Mr. John Stewart; hon. treasurer, Mr. A. Gray; auditors, Messrs. S. J. Carruthers and G. W. Allard; councillors, Messrs. W. B. Alexander, Thomas Brown, Dr. J. L. Fenton, H. N. MacLaurin, W. M'D. Sutherland, Donald Smith, and William Urquhart. Burns Club: Chairman, Mr. James Muir; hon. secretary, Mr. James Johnston; committee, Messrs. Richard Doyle, W. B. Alexander, William Urquhart, Donald Smith, D. R. Rogers, John Russell, P. D. McCormick, and D. H. Souter.

CASUALTIES.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

"I've been drinking and having a terrible time, so I did it to end things," was the reason given by Alan Meredith for attempting suicide in Hyde Park on Saturday morning.

He was found by one of the park rangers lying on a grass plot near the Park-street entrance of Hyde Park, and was bleeding from a self-inflicted wound in the left arm. A few minutes after Constable Newell, of Darlinghurst, appeared on the scene, and took him to Sydney Hospital. He was then in a very weak state from loss of blood. He comes from a station near Moree.

FATAL FALL FROM A TRAM.

William Henry Keast, a master mariner, lately residing in Coward-street, North Botany, who was swept off the footboard of a tram in Elizabeth-street, near Liverpool-street, on the evening of the 19th inst., sustaining a fractured skull, died in the Sydney Hospital early on Saturday morning.

A LOADED REVOLVER.

David Bowmaker, 40, a seaman, living at Eden, was standing on the deck of the Illawarra Company's steamer Merimbula, examining a revolver yesterday afternoon, when it suddenly exploded, the bullet lodging in Bowmaker's left foot. The Civil Ambulance Brigade took him to the Sydney Hospital, where he was admitted by Dr. Martin.

CONVALESCENT PATIENT'S FALL.

On Saturday night David Watson, 59, a convalescent patient at the Walker Hospital, Concord, fell down into the basement, a distance of 12ft, fracturing his skull. He died at the institution yesterday.

KILLED BY A CAB.

Last Friday night Robert Loschiavo, 21 months old, lately living with his parents in 26 Elizabeth-street, Paddington, tried to cross the street in front of a cab driven by William Clancy, and was knocked down. He was driven in the cab to the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital, but died yesterday.

KILLED BY A MOTOR CAR.

While getting on to a tram car in George-street on Monday evening, George Dolan, 65, a labourer, was knocked down by a motor car, which attempted to pass between the tram and the footpath. The driver of the motor car, immediately the accident happened, placed the injured man in his car and drove him to the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital, where he died last night from a fractured skull, the result of the accident.

CHILD DROWNED.

BRISBANE, Friday.

Whilst a farmer named Proske and his wife were engaged in harnessing a horse at Lowood, their infant child, aged 18 months, fell into a waterhole, and was drowned.

FATALLY BURNED.

BOOYONG, Saturday.

Thomas Gilroy, aged 70, living alone in a hut near the railway station, was discovered in a terribly burnt condition. He lingered a few hours before death occurred. It is supposed he spilt some spirits on his clothes and fell into a fire.

LEG AMPUTATED.

GRAFTON, Sunday.

While Frank Duggs, aged 27, was riding last night his horse fell, causing two compound fractures of one of his legs. The injured man lay on the road all a bitterly cold night. He was found in an exhausted condition by an aboriginal this morning, and was removed to the hospital, where the leg was amputated.

RIFLE SHOOTING.

COMPETITION SHOOTS.

BUSY DAY AT RANDWICK.

Clubs and military units put in a busy afternoon at Randwick range with competitions and musketry respectively. Many clubs fired the initial "shoot" of the September quarter, and were faced by weather conditions which required careful watching at times owing to the uncertainty of the wind. All ranges from 200 to 1000 yards were occupied, and the shooting on the whole was fairly high. W. C. With the former A. M. Cooper topped the list with 61, and A. M. Urquhart the latter with 66. Parramatta club was engaged at the disappearing disc, where G. L. Ardill topped the score with 32 (4 bulls), eight shots. Details:—

CLIMBS HILLS WITHOUT EFFORT.

PROOF OF RUDGE-WHITWORTH POWER.

This extract from a letter recently received from Mr. E. O. Hanson, reporting on the excellence of a Rudge-Whitworth Motor Cycle purchased by him, speaks well for its power and reliability.

Cumnock, 19/7/'11.

"So far as I am able to judge at present, the Machine is very satisfactory. It takes the side car up the steepest hills about here without effort, and the free engine works very sweetly. On Saturday last Mr. Glasson and I (total weight about 26st) stopped in the middle of a long and fairly steep hill to shorten the Watta Watta belt. The free engine started her again without an effort. The engine also seems to my mind to run on a very small quantity of gas. She will run up a fair incline on about quarter throttle of gas and half of air at a good speed, and go with a jump if given a slight extra dose."

Add to this the advantage of ease of control, the spring forks, which absorb road shock, and make riding a pleasure, the efficient carburettor that practically never gets out of order, easy and silent running, and you have a few of the reasons for purchasing a Rudge-Whitworth for your mount. Call and we'll show you one and explain its points of superiority. Pitt-street Depot is open till 9 on Friday nights. Write for catalogue if you cannot get in.

BEECHAM'S PILLS
are a special preparation for all ailments connected with the stomach and the digestive organs. They are always good, efficacious, and gentle. Their claim to popular favour is justified by their success. Many medicines are experimental—not so Beecham's Pills. For three generations they have been before the public, and so great is the esteem in which they are held that there is hardly a country in the world where their medicinal value is not known and appreciated. They are equally in favour in the mansion and the cottage. They ARE
justly popular because they are to be depended upon. When the liver is out of order, when the appetite is fickle, when the nervous forces are slackened, and there ensues a feeling of depression, we have no need to experiment with unproved, doubtful preparations, in the faint hope that we may accidentally hit upon the right remedy. Rather should we turn to a medicine with an established record for curing flatulence, removing the evils of dyspepsia, stimulating the liver, and regulating the bowels. The reputation of Beecham's Pills, based upon the experience of many years, justifies everyone in accepting them as
A VALUABLE AID TO DIGESTION.
Sold in boxes, labelled, Price 10½d (36 Pills), 1/1½ (56 Pills), and 2/9 (168 Pills).

AN UNWORKABLE HOUSE.

There are some tragic farces whose denouement it is impossible to guess, and no one can say what the fate of the present Government will be until the House meets on Tuesday. The cabled resignation of Mr. M'Gowen clears away one of the complexities of the position. That unfortunate leader had obviously no second choice. As a Premier without a Ministry he would have been merely an object of derision. It is a good thing, however, that it has been possible to communicate with him promptly. There is now no possible doubt that the Lieutenant-Governor is free to send for any member of the House he pleases, with the view to the formation of an Administration. But that is just the irony of the situation; for nothing is clearer than that the leader of the Opposition is quite unable to carry on even if he were willing to share the spoils with the Independent section, and that section could be relied on to give him solid support. His own actual following is a distinct minority in the House, and, assuming a conjunction with the Independents, he would still be in a minority of one as soon as a member of the combination had been elected to fill the Speaker's chair. It is hardly necessary to discuss Mr Cann's position, except in terms of the strongest censure. If any officer of Parliament, instead of regarding himself as the servant of Parliament and the country, must regard himself as the servant of the caucus, to serve or to resign as his party temporarily may require, the position becomes wholly untenable. Suppose, further, that the appointees of the Labour party, let us say a Chief Justice, so regarded their trust, the result would be chaos come again. But, except for the momentary difficulty caused by his resignation, Mr. Cann does not count. His control of the House during this session has been non-existent, and his disappearance from the Chair does not affect Parliament one iota.

In view of the practically unworkable state into which the House has got itself a prorogation is the best way out of the difficulty. It was obviously impossible for the Lieutenant-Governor to grant this when Mr. Holman asked for it. There was a motion for adjournment before the House, covering substantially the same ground, and the inescapable inference was that Mr. Holman's request meant that that motion would be defeated. The Lieutenant-Governor could not constitutionally go behind the will of the House. It was here that the false move was made. The adjournment motion should have been pressed to a division. There is a chance that it would have been carried; and although it is only a choice of evils, that, as events have turned out, would have been the least. However, the Government, too precipitately, decided not to wait for a defeat, and they have thus created an impossible situation. If their resignations are accepted the Lieutenant-Governor must send for Mr. Wade, and commission him to form a Government. Of course, Mr. Wade, knowing the circumstances of the House, would not accept his Excellency's commission without the promise of a dissolution should the House prove too evenly balanced for business. That is a condition precedent to action which so old a Parliamentary hand as Mr. Wade would not forget. The M'Gowen Government being out of the way, the government must be carried on. Presuming that Mr. Wade, amidst all the confusion and the uncertainties of the situation, undertakes to carry on the government of the country, an adjournment of some weeks becomes essential. He and his Ministers must become seized of the situation of administration. They must consider finance. They must draft their bills. They must formulate a policy. They must master their departments. In this interval the by-elections would have taken place, Mr. M'Gowen would have returned, the heat and stress of the crisis would have disappeared, and the country and Parliament together would be ready to face the realities of the situation. It may be that even then, say, in four weeks' time, the situation would not have improved, and Parliament, having met again, would have shown itself an unworkable body. We do not need to anticipate this very confidently. Matters have a way of adjusting themselves in politics when clear eventualities are in sight, and after a breathing space reason may assert itself to good effect. But, if not, and if we must pronounce sentence upon this Parliament, not yet a twelvemonth old, nothing remains but an appeal to the country, with every prospect of a stronger House resulting.

There are some ways in which the opportunity for Liberalism to reassert itself is a good one. Labour has run its ship on the rocks, and it is problematical whether it will avoid complete wreckage. The caucus is torn to pieces internally, and the party is threatened as to some, at least, of its members with excommunication at the hands of its Trades Hall masters. The crux there is not one easy to get over. As any watcher of events would have foretold, office is the worst danger Labour has to face. That is the inevitable tragedy of a party system in which the rank and file are the leaders, and the generals are persons appointed to carry out orders. If the orders are frankly impossible the general refuses to obey, and chaos results. This is what is happening now. The bulk of the Labour party makes a fetish of its programme as officially endorsed, and is quite unable to see that circumstances change. Hence, in spite of the blatant folly of the thing, Mr. Nielsen is, on the one hand, regarded as a martyr, and on the other urged to stick to his guns. Although the party owes its downfall to him, he is regarded, it seems, as the only true apostle of the Labour leagues, and those who have done all that was humanly possible to make a Labour Government workable stand a good chance of being branded as traitors to the cause. A party with a cast-iron creed framed by its most ignorant members is obviously in a perilous position, and it will continue to be futile as a political force until it learns to develop and to realise the importance of individuality. As it is, Labour will gain little or nothing as the result of a dissolution; for it is a House divided against itself. On the other hand, the last few months of Opposition have certainly done nothing to strengthen the Liberal side. Some more or less fictitious capital may, no doubt, be made out of the land question, and some more out of unpopular features of proposed electoral legislation. But on the whole we shall go to the country as we have gone too often before, unprepared; without enthusiasm, lacking anything in the nature of a broadly reasoned policy with any claim to be regarded as synthetic, and singularly lacking in the personal magnetism which goes so far to stir the political instincts of the people. Our time of probation and trial has been too short, and it would be a real kindness to Liberalism if the present House could find some way of carrying on. The disinclination for a dissolution is strong on both sides, and we can endure it only as a last resource.

MR. FISHER'S DENIAL.

Mr. Fisher's direct repudiation of the report of his interview with Mr. Stead is very welcome. It will be received throughout Australia with a satisfaction proportionate to the angered amazement which was the greeting, and the excusable greeting, of the report itself. As the matter now stands, on the one hand a statement of opinion by the Prime Minister of Australia, amounting to open disloyalty, and on the other hand a categorical denial of any such utterance, Mr. Fisher is justly entitled to the sympathy of Australians. For it is clear enough on present showing that he has been the victim of a modern phase of journalism which has discomfited many a man before him. In this case, however, it has gone far beyond even the license tacitly, but wrongly, allowed the imaginative newsmonger. It has involved not merely a Prime Minister but a Dominion, and to involve a Dominion is to concern the Empire. If the Empire were in any need of demonstration of itself this case of Mr. Fisher's interview might well give occasion for it. But it is not. There can be no doubt that the position taken up by the Prime Minister of Canada has justified of late the snappings of that curious anti-Imperial minority which is ready to seize upon any favouring detail of empire politics, and worry it into undeserved prominence. Thus with Sir Wilfrid Laurier appreciably lukewarm in this and that question of Imperial interest, it has not been difficult either for a South African newspaper, or the Little Englanders of London, to launch a theory of Dominion independence and justify it by the trend of Canadian development. In that way, no doubt, has it come to pass that Australia has been projected as another Dominion breaking free of the trammels of Empire. And with an experienced journalist at hand to embellish the innocently spoken words of an ingenuous Prime Minister the way was easy.

But however come to pass, it is manifestly the duty of Mr. Fisher not only to deny the words attributed to him, but to sheet home his charge of misrepresentation. The matter is too large for mere statement of the facts. Complete and official repudiation of the interview is necessary. It is due, indeed, not only to Mr. Fisher himself as grossly injured in reputation, but to Australia as but little less in question. For the rest, the affair is a melancholy comment upon the ethics of sensational journalism. If Mr. Fisher's statement be that of fact—and we fully believe it to be—Mr. Stead is in the most lamentable position yet reached by him in a varied and sometimes picturesque career. He who was once a famous journalist is shown to have become a notorious one, with a notoriety, too, that will eclipse all his fame. Happily the public, both of Great Britain and Australia, is well served by journalism which retains its ideals. It will not be led, therefore, even by Mr. Stead, either to condemn journalism or to discount its value. It may even be led, by this gross perversion of the journalist's true function, to an accurate estimate of the vulgar sensationalism which too often masquerades as journalism. In the present instance Mr. Stead has attached the untruths of sensationalism to the Imperial policy of a great Dominion. He deserves, therefore, not only the repudiation of journalists, and the lie direct of Mr. Fisher, but also the honest indignation of the Empire. That he will have it cannot be doubted, unless he can make very strong excuse for what, on its surface, is an unpardonable action. We trust Mr. Fisher will take every step necessary for complete and unconditioned withdrawal of the interview as published.

THE NAVAL AGREEMENT.

The terms of the new naval agreement appear to correspond in detail with the promise contained in a speech delivered at Pontypool some six weeks ago by the First Lord of the Admiralty. Unquestionably the problem of naval defence was one of the most difficult that the delegates to the Imperial Conference had to face. Either directly or by inference it involved all the apparently irreconcilable aspirations of the two parties which exist in all the Dominions as though their differences are more apparent in Canada than elsewhere. The aim of the conference was described by Mr. M'Kenna when he said that in the future, "while there would be no interference with the autonomy of each member of the Empire, the foundations had been laid of a naval strength which, if combined in war, would safeguard Imperial interests in every part of the globe." The factors to be considered were three—the desire of all the Dominions to contribute to the defence of the Empire, or at all events the desire of each to assist in maintaining its own security; the desire, or rather the resolution, of those of the Dominions which contributed ships and men to have control each of its own forces; and the necessity of united action in time of war. The solution was described by Mr. M'Kenna and by his critics as most satisfactory. Canada and Australia are to make their respective contributions in the only form which, as they think, is consistent with their dignity as adult communities. Instead of sending a sum of money too small to be of any importance they are to relieve the Admiralty of the duty of safeguarding their coasts against raids. It is recognised that only under these conditions will Australians undertake a liability adequate to the protection they secure.

In peace time the navies of the Dominions will be in many respects distinct from the British Navy—for purposes of ceremony the ships are to be treated as being in the service of different nations. In time of war there will be, except in local waters, one fleet under the undivided control of one British Admiral. But obviously unity in time of war would be of little or no value unless the preparations for war had been conducted on a common design. According to the new agreement there will be a design common to the new navies and the old not only in the type of ship and armaments, but in the training of officers and men. If there is one term of the agreement more welcome than another it is this which relates to training and discipline, and to interchange from one service to another. It is clearly essential that before men act together in war they shall have submitted to the same training and learnt confidence in one another. The experience of the allied fleets of France and Spain sufficiently shows the weakness caused by rival systems of training and tactics, and the ambitions of rival commanders. But the advantages of co-operation will appeal especially to Australians, who recognise that the building of ships and the voting of money is by no means the most important stage in our own naval development. The claim of the British Navy to supremacy is founded as much on its discipline as on anything else. For this reason it has evoked the envy of all other nations, and the despair of all but the Germans, who acknowledge that discipline is the first essential of success. If by interchange of officers and men Australian sailors can be made to share in this great British tradition one of the most serious misgivings of their fellow countrymen will have been removed. Interchange, again, will give that variety of experience without which neither efficiency nor ambition can be maintained. It cannot be denied that quite apart from its lack of tradition, the Australian Navy suffers by reason of the narrowness of the career it offers and the monotony of the life. Under the new scheme the Australian cadet will be able to look forward to experience on a variety of stations, and to the prospect of promotion in the most honourable service in the world. The new agreement certainly leaves no ground for complaint of want of sympathy on the part of British Ministers. They have tried to understand the ambitions of the Dominions, and having done so have made every concession that might promote the common good.

THE SCULLING CHAMPIONSHIP

New Zealand retains the sculling championship of the world, and New South Wales has to seek again a man to fight for what she was once wont to consider peculiarly her own. The race on the Parramatta on Saturday demonstrated that there is no one known at present, either here, in Great Britain or in America, whence hitherto champions have come, to seriously dispute Arnst's retention of the title which he has now held for three years. For a mile and a half it was a hard-fought race. The big New Zealander more stolid than Pearce, was not so quick with his sculls, and in the first few minutes of the contest he fell appreciably behind. Pearce's stroke was the faster, and he showed greater dash. They had not been on the way more than three minutes when he led by two lengths, and the hopes of his partisans, who were clearly in the majority, ran high, but he could never get further away, and when the first burst was over Arnst's strength told. The New Zealander held his own, and then so rapidly overhauled his opponent that before the mile was reached the boats were so close that there was a danger of a foul. Arnst had such confidence in his powers that he stopped sculling to avoid touching, and when the boats got clear he again took up the chase, finally drew level, forged ahead, and the race was won. Pearce tried hard to regain lost ground. Thrice he spurted, but he could never get nearer than the champion would let him, and Arnst rowed first past the judges in seven seconds faster time than the previous record. The conditions, however, on Saturday were the more favourable, in that the men had a stiff westerly breeze behind them. The good sportsmanship which both men showed when a foul seemed imminent should form a precedent for guidance of scullers similarly placed in the future, not to seize an opportunity of winning on a point, but so to act that contests will be won by skill and strength. Such sportsmanship was among the most pleasing features of the race. That the stronger and the better man won there can be no doubt, and the loser was the first to say so.

The scene on the river, with every headland on the lower course a black mass of cheering humanity, and with every description of craft afloat on the water, recalled the palmy days of championship sculling on the Parramatta—in the middle eighties—before the time, when the influence of the bookmaker being in the ascendant, the races were held on working days so as not to interfere with the attendance of the betting fraternity at the Saturday horseracing. No sign came of recrudence of interest in professional sculling until the promoters saw the wisdom of reverting to the weekly half-holiday as the deciding day for the sport. The crowds which witnessed the race on Saturday showed that the people are just as eager as of yore to witness the spectacle of a clean and honest race above suspicion, and the demonstration which greeted the winner was an evidence that, although the success of the local man may have been desired, the people went out to see the best man win, and to give their heartiest congratulations when the matter was decided. Such conduct forms a notable contrast to the behaviour of crowds witnessing brutal forms of sport, which seem to impart all the ugly temper they arouse in the players to the onlookers, and often lead to passion overcoming all sense of fair play. The authorities which control the river are to be congratulated on keeping a clear course. Not even the Government steamers, which were so noticeably in evidence on the occasion of the interstate eights, dared to defy public opinion by arrogating to themselves the right to override all regulations made for ensuring safety and fairplay to each of the scullers.

Mr. Griffith as Landowner and Navvy.—Mr. Griffith (Minister for Works), in responding to the toast of his health at the turning of the first sod of the extension of the tramway to Narrabeen on Saturday, denied a story which he said had been circulated to the effect that he had expedited the extension because he owned property in Narrabeen. "It is one of those stupid, offensive rumours," he said, "which make public life distasteful to honest men. I take this opportunity to give the statement the lie direct. The fact is that I own one 50ft allotment in Narrabeen fronting the beach. I know you people don't believe the rumour, but it is just as well to get the matter cleared up." (Cheers.) Turning to pleasanter things, Mr. Griffith told the company that once when hard up he worked as a navvy. "If the worst came to the worst," he said, "I could earn my 8s a day with a shovel. I have done. I had not been very long in this country, when, having to wait six or eight months to get a position as teacher in the Grammar School, I got a job as navvy on the extension of the railway line from Michelago to Cooma. There I worked for eight months. (Cheers.) I have frequently travelled over that line since. I helped to make it, and I can assure you it pleases me more to travel over it with a golden pass than it pleased me to prepare the ground for the sleepers." (Laughter, and applause.)

Restoring 'Varsity Commem.—There is a likelihood of University commemoration being re-established in the manner well beloved of undergraduates. Sir Edmund Barton, speaking at the University Law Society's annual dinner on Saturday evening, as a member of the Senate controlling the destinies of the Sydney University, and having, as he said, due regard to recent events, remarked that he did not believe there was one member of that body who would not like to see commemoration restored with all its traditions. Moreover, he had no doubt, if the matter were properly approached, the difficulty between the Senate and the undergraduates would be adjusted, and they would have what at all events seemed to him to be an essential part of the year's transactions re-established. Sir Edmund Barton's utterance was greeted with loud applause.

Surf Bathing.—The Minister for Works announced on Saturday that he had appointed a committee, consisting of Mr. J. Garlick (of the Local Government Department), Mr. Allman (engineer in the Works Department), Mr. C. D. Paterson (of the Government Tourist Bureau), and Mr. J. Ford (president of the Surf Bathing Association), to visit all the ocean beaches from Cronulla to Narrabeen, and report upon the accommodation for bathers and the facilities for protection in the way of life-saving. The committee had lost no time in getting to work, and hoped to submit a report in a few weeks so as to enable the Government to provide whatever was necessary in the public interest before next session.

HOME RULE DELEGATES.

£10,000 COLLECTED IN NEW ZEALAND.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Saturday.

Messrs. Redmond, Hazelton, and Donovan, the delegates from the Irish Nationalist party, collected £10,000 in New Zealand for the Home Rule campaign fund. They left for Sydney by the Manuka last night, and received a hearty send-off from several hundreds at the wharf.

NAVAL AGREEMENT.

BRITAIN AND COLONIES.

IN TIME OF WAR.

INTEGRAL PART OF BRITISH FLEET.

OTTAWA, July 28.

A memorandum of the conference between Canada and Australia with the British Admiralty on the status of the Dominion forces was tabled in the House of Commons this morning.

The Dominion navies are to be exclusively under the control of their respective Governments. Their training is to be uniform with the Imperial navy.

Canada's naval stations will be in the North Pacific and North Atlantic, and those of Australia in the South Pacific to the Antarctic.

LONDON, July 29.

Mr. Lewis Harcourt, Secretary for the Colonies, has published the naval agreement between Britain, Canada, Australia, and New Zealand.

The agreement provides that the naval services of each Dominion shall be exclusively under the inspection of its government, and the training and discipline shall be in uniformity with the British navy.

The ships of a Dominion shall fly a White Ensign as the emblem of the authority of the Crown, with the Dominion's own flag at the jackstaff, and in foreign waters shall report to take orders from the Admiralty.

When British and Dominion ships meet the senior officer commands in matters of ceremony and international intercourse.

The Admiralty agrees to lend the Dominions' officers and men as required during their development period, giving preference to those coming from the Dominions.

In time of war any of the Dominions' ships put at the Imperial Government's disposal shall form an integral part of the British fleet, remaining under the Admiralty throughout the war.

TEXT OF AGREEMENT.

SUPPLIED BY ACTING PRIME MINISTER.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The substance of the Naval Agreement between the Imperial Government and the Dominions reached at the recent Imperial Conference has been made available for publication. The Acting Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) issued to the press to-night the cable messages which had just reached him. The Secretary of State for the Colonies cabled to the Governor-General that the Admiralty had arranged for a simultaneous publication of the terms in Canada and Australia. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Prime Minister of Canada, in view of the political situation in his Dominion, urged strongly that he should be permitted to publish the memorandum to his Parliament immediately, and the Colonial Office agreed to this course. Mr. Fisher has been informed of the action taken. A memorandum of the full proceedings of the conference is due to reach the Governor-General of the Commonwealth on August 13. The Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) has a copy of the memorandum, and the despatches state that it will be possible to publish it on his arrival in Australia, with the complete proceedings, as is being done in Canada.

The following is the text of the cable relating to the naval agreement:—

Memorandum of conference between the British Admiralty and the representatives of the Dominions of Canada and Australia:—

1. The naval services and forces of the Dominions of Canada and Australia will be exclusively under the control of their respective Governments.

2. The training and discipline of the naval forces of the Dominions will be generally uniform with the training and discipline of the fleet of the United Kingdom, and by arrangement officers and men of the said forces will be interchangeable with those under the control of the British Admiralty.

3. The ships of each Dominion naval force will hoist at the stern the White Ensign as the symbol of the authority of the Crown, and at the jack staff the distinctive flag of the Dominion.

4. The Canadian and Australian Governments will have their own naval stations, as agreed upon, and from time to time the limits of the stations, as described in schedule (a) Canada, and schedule (b) Australia.

(5) In the event of the Canadian or Australian Government desiring to send ships to a part of the British Empire outside of their own respective stations, they will notify the British Admiralty.

(6) In the event of the Canadian or Australian Government desiring to send ships to a foreign port they will obtain the concurrence of the Imperial Government, in order that the necessary arrangements with the Foreign Office may be made, as in the case of ships of the British fleet, in such time and manner as is usual between a British Admiralty and the Foreign Office.

(7) While the ships of the dominions are at a foreign port, a report of their proceedings will be forwarded by the officer in command to the Commander-in-Chief on the station, or to the British Admiralty. The officer in command of a Dominion ship, so long as he remains in a foreign port, will obey any instructions he may receive from the Government of the United Kingdom as to the conduct of any international matters that may arise, the Dominion Government being informed.

(8) The commanding officer of a Dominion ship having to put into a foreign port without previous arrangement, on account of stress of weather, damage, or any unforeseen emergency, will report his arrival and reason for calling to the commander-in-chief of the station, or to the Admiralty, and will obey, so long as he remains in a foreign port, any instructions he may receive from the Government of the United Kingdom as to his relations with the authorities, the Dominion Government being informed.

(9) When a ship of the British Admiralty meets a ship of the Dominions the senior officer shall have the right of command in matters of ceremony or international intercourse, or when united action is agreed upon; but will have no power to direct the movements of ships of the other service unless the ships are ordered to co-operate by mutual agreement.

(10) In foreign ports the senior officer will take command, but not so as to interfere with the orders that the junior may have received from his own Government.

11. When a court martial has to be ordered by a dominion, and a sufficient number of officers are not available in a Dominion service at the time, the British Admiralty, if requested, will make the necessary arrangements to enable a court to be formed. Provision will be made by order of his Majesty in Council, and by the Dominion Governments respectively, to define the conditions under which officers of the different services are to sit on joint courts martial.

12. The British Admiralty undertakes to lend to the Dominions during the period of development and their services, under conditions to be agreed upon, such flag officers, and other officers and men as may be needed. In their selection preference will be given to officers and men coming from, or connected with, the Dominions, but they should all be volunteers for the service.

13. The service of officers of the British fleet in the Dominion naval force or of officers of the forces in the British fleet, will count in all respects for promotion, pay, retirement, etc., as service in their respective forces.

14. In order to determine all questions of seniority that may arise, the names of all officers will be shown in the navy list, and their seniority determined by the dates of their commissions, whichever is the earlier in the British, Canadian, or Australian services.

15. It is desirable, in the interests of efficiency and co-operation, that arrangements should be made from time to time between the British Admiralty and the Dominions for the ships of the Dominions to take part in fleet exercises, and for any other joint training considered necessary under the senior naval officer. While so employed, the ships will be under the command of that officer, who will not, however, interfere in the internal economy of ships of another service further than absolutely necessary.

16. In time of war, when the naval service of a Dominion, or any part thereof, has been put at the disposal of the Imperial Government by the Dominion authorities, the ships will form an integral part of the British fleet, and will remain under the control of the British Admiralty during the continuance of the war.

17. The Dominions having applied to their naval forces the King's Regulations and Admiralty instructions, and the Naval Discipline Act, the British Admiralty and Dominion Governments will communicate to each other any change which they propose to make in those regulations or that Act by June, 1911.

SCHEDULE (A).

Canada.—The Canadian Atlantic station will include the waters north of 30 degrees north latitude, and west of the meridian of 40 degrees west longitude. The Canadian Pacific station will include the waters north of 30 degrees north latitude, and east of the meridian of 180 degrees longitude.

SCHEDULE (B).

Australia.—The Australian naval station will include, on the north, from 95 deg. east longitude, by the parallel of 13deg. south latitude, to 120deg. east longitude, thence north to 11deg. south latitude, thence to the boundary of Dutch New Guinea, on the south coast, in about longitude 141deg. east, thence along the coast of British New Guinea to the boundary with German New Guinea in latitude 8deg. south; thence east to 155deg. east longitude on the east by the meridian of 155deg. east longitude to 15deg. south latitude, thence to 28deg. south latitude on the meridian of 170deg. east longitude; thence south to 32deg. south latitude, thence west to the meridian of 160deg. longitude, thence south on the south by the Antarctic circle on the west by the meridian of 95deg. east longitude.

MR. HUGHES PLEASED.

EXPRESSES MR. FISHER'S SENTIMENTS.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

In commenting on the memorandum, Mr. Hughes said: "The principles there set down appear to me such as to commend themselves to the people of Australia. There is no material alteration of the arrangement in the application of these principles, which the Government of Australia had previously affirmed. It is a very gratifying thing that this should be so, and the conference may be congratulated upon this sensible and business-like agreement. It is another tribute to the faculty which the British race has displayed for self-government. The publication of the memorandum comes most appropriately at this juncture, since it serves to exhibit the precise sentiments of Mr. Fisher and of the Government in regard to Imperial politics. In the face of this memorandum, to which the Admiralty and the representatives of the Commonwealth have assented, those hysterical shrieks which have deafened our ears for the past eight days now cease with humiliating abruptness."

"MADE TO BE SURMOUNTED."

DIFFICULTIES IN THE WAY.

On June 13 last the First Lord of the Admiralty, Mr. R. M'Kenna, made a speech, in which the first public intimation was given of the fact that the important questions referred to in the cables had been grappled with, and at least provisionally settled in a manner "most satisfactory" to the Admiralty. In the cases where the Dominions have undertaken to develop fleets of their own, "there would," he said, "be interchangeability of officers and men, and such common standards of training and discipline as to ensure, in the event of war, that the joint fleets would be able to act in complete union."

Commenting on Mr. M'Kenna's remarks, the "Times" remarked:—"The fleets to be developed by the Dominions must of necessity be, by comparison with the Royal navy, of insignificant dimensions. In small fleets, promotion must needs be slow, and where promotion is stagnant, enthusiasm is apt to wane, and even discipline to suffer from the lassitude and disappointment which come from hope deferred, and ambition thwarted. But if the young officers and men of the youthful navies now to be developed can look forward to sharing in all the labours and all the glories of the British navy, if they are encouraged so to acquit themselves in their own navies that the reward of merit will be an appointment to serve for a time in one of the ships of the parent navy, and, an expectation that continued merit will qualify them for further promotion in the same glorious service, then, indeed, will the worst evil that could arise from the development by the Dominions of their own fleets be nipped in the bud from the very outset. There are many difficulties to be encountered, no doubt, in the organisation and maintenance of such a system if interchangeability of officers and men as the First Lord of the Admiralty has announced. In particular, the differing rates of wages in the Dominion and in Great Britain will be a serious difficulty in the way of the interchangeability of men. But the British Navy has long imbued itself with the tradition that difficulties are made to be surmounted, and it will be the very best thing that could happen to the youthful navies of the Dominions to be inoculated with this priceless tradition from the very beginning of their independent existence. However much we in this country might have preferred to maintain the unity of the Imperial navy under the sole control of the Admiralty unimpaired, yet we must all of us now strive to understand, sympathise with, and make the best of the desire of certain of the Dominions to develop fleets of their own. The best way to do this is to encourage and promote the interchangeability of officers and men throughout all the fleets, which owe common allegiance to the Crown, and by virtue of that allegiance will, we hope, be accorded the inestimable privilege of flying the flag which the British navy has covered with unrivalled and imperishable glory. By this means, if we have to sacrifice something of unity in the abstract, we shall best secure solidarity in the concrete, and shall in the end attain for all practical purposes that paramount end which was so well defined by Mr. M'Kenna when he said that: "While there was to be no interference with the autonomy of each member of the Empire, the foundations had been laid of a naval strength which, if combined in war, would safeguard Imperial interests in every part of the globe."

A NAVAL VIEW.

BRITAIN NEVER BETTER PREPARED.

Captain Rolleston, senior naval officer, responding to a toast at the Commercial Travellers' Dinner on Saturday night, in the absence of the Admiral, said that if the history of the British Empire was examined, it would be found that the Empire had been developed by the efforts of its citizens, in other words, by trade, and not by a policy of expansion by its Government. (Applause.) The navy had grown greatly during the last 100 years for the protection of British trade and the defence of the Empire, and he believed it was never in a better condition to perform those functions than at the present time. (Great cheering.) There was no doubt that they were approaching a crisis in Imperial affairs, and, after a century of quietude, external pressure was revived in an acute form. If the Empire was to continue it must be defended by the joint efforts of its self-governing peoples. (Loud applause.) Australia was showing by the organisation of its naval and military affairs that it would take its part in Imperial difficulties. (Cheers.) The overseas Dominions must have an effective voice in Imperial policy, and the Dominions' fleets must be stationed where they would best secure the Empire, and that was not necessarily on their own coasts. (Cheers.)

PERSONAL.

Miss Ruby Rich, whose only appearance in Sydney was with the Sydney Amateur Orchestral Society, a few weeks back, returns to London to-day by the Marama, sailing with her father (Mr. Louis Rich) and sister. The party will travel through the United States, and ultimately the brilliant young pianist will resume her career in London, where she has various "at home" engagements in view, notably those likely to arise from the patronage of H.R.H. Princess Louise and Mrs. Waldorf Astor.

The death has been reported from Dunedin (N.Z.) of Captain Stewart, who formerly commanded the Shaw Savill Company's steamer Tairoa, and various vessels of the Union Steamship Company.

On Friday Mr. C. E. Murnin, who, for the last seven years has been connected with the firm of Winchcombe, Carson, Ltd., was presented by the office staff with a handsome oak cabinet. Mr. Murnin is leaving the company.

AUSTRALIA A PARADISE.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

Sir William Hartley Williams, a former Supreme Court Judge in Victoria, who has just returned after nine years' residence in England, made an interesting speech at a social function at Collingwood last night. He said coming from England one could not help contrasting the welfare, well-being, and prosperity of the people of Australia with the melancholy lot of hundreds of thousands of people in the "old country." He used to hear it said here that Australia was a paradise for the working man, but he used to regard that as a figure of speech. Now he realised that it was solid fact.

CARNEGIE LIBRARY.

PERTH, Sunday.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie has granted an endowment of £1500 for a Carnegie library at Midland Junction.

COMMERCE AND RAILWAYS.

C.T.A. DINNER.

MR. JOHNSON'S GLOWING STATEMENT.

RECORD FOR THE STATE.

The 27th annual banquet of the Commercial Travellers' Association of New South Wales was held on Saturday evening, and proved a highly representative function. It took place in the handsome club quarters in Moore-street, Mr. W. M. Walsh, president, occupying the chair.

The toasts of "The King" and "The State Governor" were enthusiastically honoured.

Mr. J. H. Toose proposed "The Navy and Army."

The toast was vociferously honoured, the audience singing "Rule Britannia."

Captain Rolleston responded for the Navy. His remarks are reported elsewhere.

Major Timothy responded for the Army, in the absence of Brigadier-General Gordon, and replied particularly to criticisms by Major-General Kirkpatrick appearing in the "Herald" regarding citizen soldiers. One particular branch, the Light Horse Brigade, which had been criticised had, he said, practised great self-denial to become efficient in the sixteen days a year prescribed for making volunteers efficient soldiers. They had noted the parsimonious manner in which it was refused to allow Australian troops to be represented at the Coronation. If Major-General Hutton's recommendations, made years ago, had been carried out there would be a very different position of affairs to-day. (Applause.) He thought a fatal mistake had been made in the Commonwealth deciding to train boys instead of those between 18 and 25 years. (Loud cheering.)

Mr. John Wallace proposed "The Commonwealth and State Ministries and Parliaments," and said the Federal Government had made a huge mistake in not being more liberal in connection with the Coronation ceremony. (Loud applause.) They had behaved in a niggardly, mean, and contemptible way—(cheers)—especially when they knew they had an overflowing exchequer and a note factory. (Great laughter.) Surely they might have done their country much more honour than they did.

A voice: And so say all of us.

Mr. Wallace thought they must give the Commonwealth Government credit for having established some military system, although it would have been better to have "collared" the men from 18 to 25 years old. (Cheers.) He would allow no one a vote until he had made himself efficient in military matters. (Applause.) He thought the Federal Government should do more to assist the High Commissioner to induce immigrants to come to Australia. (Cheers.) They could do not only with men to settle on the land, but with artisans as well. (Cheers.)

A voice: Let them all come.

Messrs. Griffith, Trefle, and Storey responded, their remarks being reported in another column.

Mr. T. C. Delaney proposed "our visitors."

The Lord Mayor (Sir Allen Taylor) responded, and proposed "The President."

Mr. W. M. Walsh, in replying, stated that the association had had a record year. The membership was increasing, and the financial position steadily improving.

"Commerce" was the next toast, submitted by Mr. T. R. Rowlands.

Mr. J. Paxton, president of the Chamber of Commerce, in responding, said that the people of Australia were dependent more than any other nation upon their sea-borne trade, and their commerce was protected by a fleet which existed for defence, and not aggression. (Cheers.) After referring to the need for immigration, he said that their railways were calling for duplication on main lines, and, if that was not given, they could not expect those managing the railways to give them that measure of despatch which was necessary in the interests of the people as a whole. Alluding to the port of Sydney, he said it was the poorest advertisement for the harbour that, instead of passengers being brought up by incoming steamers to the wharfs and landed, they had to be transhipped and disembarked in tenders.

Mr. J. N. Grace, in responding, said he felt sure that Australian people preferred Australian-made goods if they were faithfully made.

Mr. J. N. Horton, Queensland, pointed out how commerce had benefited Japan, whose people lived like frogs in a water-hole up till 60 years ago, when a master shipper forced his way into one of her ports and began to trade with the country. (Applause.)

Mr. T. O'Shanesy submitted the toast of "The Railway Commissioners."

The toast was responded to by the Chief Railway Commissioner, Mr. T. Johnson.

"So far as the policy of the mover of the toast of the Railway Commissioners is concerned," Mr. Johnson said, "namely, the linking up of the Western and North-western systems, and the construction of a line from the tableland to the coast, I am with him entirely. (Loud applause.) I don't think I need tell the commercial travellers that I have advocated that in season and out of season, and I shall never hesitate to do so while I am in the State. (Cheers.) I am not at all inclined to adopt the policy which has been suggested, that only those new lines should be constructed that will pay from the outset. It is my duty under the Railway Act to furnish Parliament with a report upon every railway proposal which is made by the Government, and it is my duty, provided for by the Act of Parliament, to state what the commercial results are likely to be. There my responsibility ends. But it does not at all say that, because I am obliged to report that a line will not pay from the outset, therefore in my opinion it should not be made. (Loud applause.)

"Over and over again, in fact, I have intimated that such and such a line would probably pay in the not far distant future, and therefore should be constructed in the interests of the State. (Applause.) That is a policy of which I very strongly approve, and I can only say that, as far as the last two Governments were concerned, there has been no lack of railway proposals, which certainly will not pay from the outset. Already we have a very long list of lines, and, if you consult the annual railway report, you will find the statutory particulars set out, and, although in the case of several of the lines in that list a large expenditure is involved, I am far from saying that those lines should not be constructed.

"While the policy of constructing new lines should go on, there is something else more necessary, that has been already referred to by Mr. Paxton, the president of the Chamber of Commerce, and that is that, as you provide additional feeders to the main lines, you should make the existing lines able to carry the new business these additional feeders will bring. (Applause.) I have harped upon it so much that I am afraid the string is worn out. (Laughter.) But I am glad some real good has been done in that direction. During the last four years we have actually duplicated 80 miles of railways. (Applause.) During the last year we actually opened 30 miles of duplicated lines, and at the present time we have in hand 63½ miles of duplication. (Cheers.) As you will see from these figures that the policy of duplication of lines I have endeavoured to enunciate is being carried out. The Wade Government made arrangements for £2,000,000 to be devoted to this purpose, and I can only tell you I am doing my best to spend it. (Cheers and laughter.)

"With regard to railway finances, although I cannot go into details as to the expenditure, I can tell you that the gross receipts for the railways of New South Wales for the financial year ended June 30 last, for the first time in the history of the State, went £40,000 over £6,000,000 of money. (Loud cheering.) When I arrived in the State rather more more than four years ago the gross receipts were under £5,000,000, and you will see that in the four years we have increased by over £1,000,000 in the gross receipts. That will give you some idea of the progress that has been made. Altogether during the four years we have spent £2,500,000 in additional works and conveniences, and during the same period we have spent another £2,500,000 in providing new rolling stock. It is not given to everybody to be concerned in spending £5,000,000 in four years, and I can tell you that during the current financial year we can go on spending at even a greater rate, and, if the prosperity of the country continues, it will be absolutely necessary to go on at the same pace, and, as far as I am concerned, there will be no drawing back. It is absolutely necessary for the working of the traffic that we should go on providing these additional improvements and conveniences, and, as far as I am able to control the matter, it will be done." (Loud cheering.)

VICTORIAN TEACHERS.

SEETHING DISCONTENT.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

A deputation from the Victorian State School Teachers' Union waited on the Minister for Education yesterday and made a number of requests, principally for increased pay.

Mr. Lewis, president of the union, said that a number of teachers had written to him of the seething discontent which existed amongst them. The teachers asked merely for a restoration which it was understood at the time of the retrenchment would be made when prosperity returned.

The Minister undertook to place their requests before the Cabinet.

THE WAR CLOUD.

TENSION RELIEVED.

GERMAN NEWSPAPERS PUZZLED

RIGHT TO COMPENSATION.

LONDON, July 29.

There are indications in the newspapers that the tension over the Morocco question has been sensibly relieved.

German and Austrian newspapers are somewhat puzzled, and are glad that no references to the Congo have been made. They claim that Mr. Asquith has recognised Germany's right to compensation for French development in Morocco.

PARIS, July 28.

The press welcomes Mr. Asquith's statement on the Moroccan situation, as it is considered it will hasten a solution of the crisis.

The papers declare that "Great Britain is determined to end a dangerous situation."

BERLIN, July 28.

Mr. Asquith's statement is welcomed in official circles as "ending a false conception of the attitude of Great Britain resulting from a misconception of the speeches of Mr. Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer."

The "Tageblatt" says: "Mr. Asquith has dispelled misunderstandings which might have hindered successful negotiations."

The Radical papers refuse to be lulled, and complain of the absence of assurances.

ACTIVITY IN THE NAVY.

WORK AT WOOLWICH ARSENAL.

LONDON, July 28.

The First Division of the Home Fleet has been ordered to coal and ship a supply of oil fuel forthwith.

The manufacture of lyddite and cordite at Woolwich is proceeding at high pressure.

There is noticeable activity in the production of small arms.

PREPARATIONS IN FRANCE.

PARIS, July 28.

Though the French Government has not regarded the position as disquieting, yet unobtrusive military preparations are going on.

WAR RISK PREMIUMS.

CABLE TO SYDNEY UNDERWRITERS.

The Sydney Marine Underwriters and Salvage Association and the Melbourne Marine Underwriters' Association received on Saturday the following cable:—"Current premium to-day for war risk per steamers is: Homewards, one-eighth per cent.; outwards, one-sixteenth per cent. Current premium for war risk per sailers is not less than one-fourth per cent. both ways."

NATIONAL INSURANCE.

SOCIALISTS DEMAND WITHDRAWAL.

LONDON, July 29.

At a meeting held under the auspices of the Independent Labour party and the Fabian Society, it was resolved to demand the withdrawal of the National Insurance Bill.

Mr. Phillip Snowden (Socialist member for Blackburn) said the bill was meagre, pettifogging, and ineffective. He was in Parliament in order to get several millions a year. If Mr. Lloyd-George (Chancellor of the Exchequer) was unwilling to add a penny to the burden of taxation, it was evident that Socialists and social reformers must part company.

Mr. G. Lansbury (Socialist member for Tower Hamlets) said that Mr. Lloyd-George professed to love the people, and at the same time was tumbling over himself to save the pocket of the rich.

BRITISH BY-ELECTION.

LONDON, July 30.

The result of the Bethnal Green by-election (South-west Division), caused by the acceptance of a magistracy by Mr. E. H. Pickersgill, was as follows:—

MASTERMAN (Liberal)	2745
Hoffgaard (Unionist)	2561
Scurr (Socialist)	134

At the general elections Mr. Pickersgill secured 2768 votes, and Mr. Hoffgaard 2086. It will be noticed that the Liberal vote has remained stationary, while the Unionist vote has strengthened considerably.

FOR RECIPROCITY.

DISSOLUTION IN CANADA.

ELECTIONS IN SEPTEMBER.

VANCOUVER, July 29.

The Dominion Parliament has been dissolved. The elections will be fought out on the reciprocity issue on September 21.

OTTAWA, July 30.

The dissolution of Parliament came as a surprise to politicians, as it was generally believed that this action would not be taken for at least another week.

Much dissatisfaction is expressed at the Government's failure to introduce a Redistribution Bill based on the census returns, as Western Canada and British Columbia are deprived thereby of increased membership, probably amounting to 20.

British Columbia and Manitoba are largely opposed to reciprocity with the United States.

If returned to power, the Prime Minister, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, intends to adopt more stringent rules for the prevention of obstruction in the Canadian House of Commons.

The western graingrowers projected the formation of a new agricultural Federal party, independent of both Liberals and Conservatives, but it has been abandoned, to the great relief of the Liberal headquarters. It was feared that it would mean a serious loss to the Government forces in the forthcoming elections.

POSITION AT WASHINGTON.

LOWERING THE DUTIES.

WASHINGTON, July 29.

The coalition between the Progressive Republicans and Democrats is contending for a far-reaching revision of tariffs.

It is declared that the Farmers' Free List Bill, the Wool Bill (on the lines of the compromise arranged), and probably the Cotton Bill, will be passed, all lowering the duties. The main intention of the farmers' free list is to recompense agriculturists for the probable loss they will suffer under reciprocity with Canada.

President Taft is pledged to await the report of the Tariff Board before assenting to new tariff legislation, consequently the President is likely to be compelled to veto the above measures, which will have been passed by Republican votes.

A cable on Saturday stated that owing to "insurgent" Republicans uniting with the Democrats, the Senate carried a compromise in connection with the Wool Tariff Revision Bill, placing the rate at 55 per cent. on raw wool. The House of Representatives was disinclined to accept the compromise, but conferences were expected to result in an agreement.

SHIPPING DISASTERS.

WARSHIP OR STEAMER?

ON THE NOVA SCOTIAN COAST.

BOSTON, July 30.

It is reported that a steamer named the Niobe—believed to be the Canadian warship—is ashore on the coast of Nova Scotia, and that the engine-room is flooded.

Steamers have been despatched from Halifax and St. John to render aid.

EMPRESS OF INDIA

TOKIO, July 28.

The position of the stranded steamer Empress of India is critical.

The Empress of India, which left Vancouver for Yokohama on July 12, was a steamer of 5934 tons. A cable on Saturday stated that she had been stranded on the southern point of the Awa Peninsula during the recent typhoon. She was built in 1891 by the Naval Construction and Armament Company, Barrow, and owned by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

SUNK IN A COLLISION.

SINGAPORE, July 28.

The ship Mer-ing has been sunk in a collision with the steamer Kheng Seng in the Straits of Malacca.

Eight of the crew are missing.

The Mersing does not appear in Lloyd's. The Kheng Seng is a small steamer, 128 tons, built in 1903 by the Singapore Slipway Co., and owned by Tan Keong Kiam.

ONE SURVIVOR OF A CREW.

HALIFAX, July 28.

The steamer John Irwin struck a rock and sank. There is only one survivor out of a crew of 15.

The steamer John Irwin, 303 tons, was built in 1877 by J. Fullerton and Co., Paisley, and owned by the Port Hood Richmond Railway Coal Company, Ltd. She was registered at Halifax, and was under the British flag.

HUGE CONFLAGRATION.

DISMISSED CLERK'S REVENGE.

VIENNA, July 29.

A clerk named Schottek, who had been dismissed for drunkenness, set fire in revenge to a great stack of timber at the Northern railway station, a huge conflagration resulting.

Six hundred firemen, 3000 police, and 2000 railwaymen fought the flames for 18 hours, and prevented them from igniting a warehouse containing 2000 tons of benzine.

The timber, which was valued at £50,000, was destroyed. Schottek has been arrested.

PLAGUE IN 'FRISCO.

SQUIRREL CARRIES INFECTION.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 30.

A case of bubonic plague is reported, arising from infection by a ground squirrel. The victim is a boy of seven.

The health authorities have despatched hundreds of men to exterminate squirrels in the district affected.

NOT TRUE.

"GROSSLY MISLEADING."

PRIME MINISTER'S DENIAL.

"KEEP THE FLAG FLYING!"

COLOMBO, July 29.

Mr. Andrew Fisher, Prime Minister of Australia, arrived here this morning, and showed considerable agitation on learning of the sensation caused by Mr. W. T. Stead's interview with him, as given in the "Review of Reviews."

The statements ascribed to him by Mr. Stead were described by Mr. Fisher as grotesque misrepresentation.

Mr. Fisher immediately cabled for a fuller report of the interview, and later he cabled to Mr. Stead: "Your report of the interview with me is grossly misleading."

"Mr. Stead and I," he said, "had a brief and hurried interview one morning. In answer to questions, I repeated to him what I had stated hundreds of times in public speeches in Australia, and recently in the United Kingdom, namely, that my objective was peace among the nations of the world, that my policy is one of effective defence, and my aim unity among the British nations.

"This can best be attained and maintained, I said, by trusting his Majesty's Governments in the United Kingdom and the Dominions as the responsible Ministers of the family of nations.

"The interview is not mine. It is misleading in material points, as in the expression: 'Haul down the flag.' This has never entered my mind. 'Keep the flag flying' is my ambition, with all its best traditions.

"Nor have I harboured any idea that Australia would break away from the Empire, nor do I wish it to escape the duty of defending its honour.

"None who knows me will believe that I used these words, nor anything like them.

"I have spent much time in advocating a wider organisation of the nations who desire peace and industrial progress for the welfare of their people, and no nation, no flag, stands higher for this idea than our own."

The Prime Minister added that he had given Mr. Stead seven minutes at most, and had never seen a "proof" of the interview, nor had his secretary. Such expressions as had been attributed to him would not be disloyalty, but insanity. They would be brutal and monstrous.

Mr. Fisher said he had received a cable giving the statement made by the Acting Prime Minister, Mr. Hughes, on the subject of the interview, and he approved of it.

LABOUR LOYAL.

The cabled interview between Mr. Stead and Mr. Fisher, in which disloyal sentiments are imputed to the Prime Minister of the Commonwealth, proved a burning question at the annual banquet on Saturday evening of the Commercial Travellers' Association of New South Wales.

Mr. Griffith, Minister for Public Works, in responding to a toast, took up the cudgels on behalf of Mr. Fisher. "I am as sure," he said, with great warmth, "that Mr. Fisher did not utter the sentiments attributed to him as if I had been present at the apocryphal interview. (Applause.) Those who tell you that the party to which I belong is disloyal to the Empire and desires to pull down the Union Jack are liars, and know they are." (Loud and continued applause.)

Mr. Trefle, Minister for Agriculture, said their duty was to protect Australia, build it up, and make it strong, and they were not going to do that by severing their connection with the old land. (Cheers.)

CONFIDENCE IN MR. FISHER.

PERTH, Sunday.

A meeting of the Australian Labour Federation adopted a resolution, on the motion of Senator De Largie, seconded by Mr. Troy, M.L.A., and supported by Mr. Heitman, M.L.A., expressing confidence in the Prime Minister's honesty and ability to represent Australian opinion, and disgust at the abuse indulged in by the Acting Premier, Mr. Gregory. The speakers all questioned the accuracy of the statements attributed to Mr. Fisher in the "Review of Reviews."

SITUATION IN EGYPT.

LORD KITCHENER'S APPOINTMENT.

LONDON, July 28.

Sir Edward Grey, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in the House of Commons to-day, paid a high tribute to the work of the late Sir Eldon Gorst, formerly British Agent and Consul-General in Egypt.

He said that before further reforms were instituted in Egypt the views of men on the spot must be ascertained. Lord Kitchener, Sir Eldon Gorst's successor, would be given time to survey the situation. His appointment in Egypt did not imply a reactionary policy.

REMARKABLE STORM.

EXCITING SCENES IN LONDON.

TRAFFIC SUSPENDED.

PANIC AMONG CHILDREN.

LONDON, July 29.

An extraordinary storm has occurred in London.

A sudden squall came up, the wind reaching a velocity of 54 miles an hour, and an inch of rain fell in a quarter of an hour.

Hailstones half an inch in diameter fell and cut through umbrellas. The thermometer dropped from 87 to 22 degrees in 15 minutes.

The tubes were flooded, and traffic was suspended.

Exciting scenes were witnessed among the costers at the market in Farringdon-road. The stalls were overturned, and fruit, books, and flowers were whirled in the air.

The wind struck two tents at Epping Forest, burying 600 Sunday school children, who were participating in an annual treat, and a terrible panic ensued. Holes were cut in the canvas in order to enable the children to escape.

He deplored the effect of the outbreak on the stability of New Turkey.

PRIVY COUNCIL APPEALS.

LONDON, July 28.

The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in the matter of Bouffier versus Trevor Jones has allowed special leave to appeal.

On July 26 of last year Mr. Justice A. H. Simpson (Chief Judge in Equity) in the suit brought by Martin Bouffier and Grace Bouffier against Noel Trevor Jones made a decree that defendant was accountable to the plaintiffs for £703 2s 6d, subject to certain allowances, in connection with a transaction about some land at Cessnock in June, 1901. The grounds upon which the plaintiffs brought the suit were—(1) That the agreement of June, 1906, was champertous and invalid, and that consequently defendant could not retain the 25 per cent. of the property mentioned in it; and (2) that the defendant was agent for the plaintiffs to sell or find a purchaser, and could not sell to himself for £3863 10s and resell for £4800, and that the difference belonged to the plaintiffs. His Honor, having made the decree above stated, the defendant appealed to the High Court on the ground mainly that it was against evidence, and the appellate tribunal gave a decision in Jones's favour. Plaintiffs in the suit then petitioned for leave to appeal to the Privy Council. The facts arising in the suit were fully gone into last week on Noel Trevor Jones' successful application to the Full Court for leave to commence practice in his profession as a solicitor.

Leave to appeal in the matter of Norton versus Clarke has been refused.

In the matter of Williams versus Evans, leave to appeal has also been refused.

Some time ago James William Evans, who had been for many years Government Inspector of Weights and Measures, sued the Government (represented by Williams as nominal defendant) to recover 18 months' salary, and also certain half fees and fines paid by him into the Treasury. The case, by consent, was tried before Mr. Justice Cohen without a jury, and his Honor found a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of £637 salary due for the 18 months, but gave a verdict to the Government on the question of the half fees and fines. On appeal by the defendant, however, the State Full Court held that the Government was entitled to terminate its relations with the plaintiff as it had done, and to decline to pay the salary mentioned. Evans then appealed to the High Court, which on December 16 last set aside the judgment of the Full Court, Mr. Justice Isaacs dissenting. Thereupon the Government petitioned to the Privy Council for leave to appeal.

NEW SWIMMING RECORD.

THE MILE CHAMPIONSHIP.

LONDON, July 30.

Taylor beat Battersby in the mile swimming championship by 10 yards, his time being 23m 35⅗s, a record.

The mile championship of England was originally promoted in 1869 by the Metropolitan Swimming Association, when T. Morris won. Last year F. E. Beaurepaire won this race, and he also proved successful in 1908—the first occasion on which an Australian carried off the honours. In 1909 T. S. Battersby won in 24m 1 2-5s, which was then the English record and world's record, though the late B. B. Kieran swam the distance in 23m 16 4-5s in a 33yds bath at Sydney in March, 1905. Taylor has now won this event three times. He also holds the English record for the half-mile.

It is probable that neither M. E. Champion (N.Z.) nor E. G. Finlay (W.A.) took part in this race. The latter will be a competitor in the 200yds breast-stroke championship of England, which will be decided to-day.

PROTEST TO AUSTRALIA.

UNIVERSAL RACES CONGRESS.

CLAIMS OF COLOURED RACES.

LONDON, July 28.

At the Universal Races Congress to-day, Mr. Ghokal stated that reform measures had arrested a growing estrangement between Europeans and Indians, and the situation in India was steadily improving.

A Chinese delegate urged the Congress to send a protest to Australia and the United States, asking for fair play. Honest Chinese workmen were the most sober and law-abiding in the world.

Mrs. Annie Besant said that Indians claimed freedom to live in white countries. It was monstrous that whites claimed the best-paid posts in the coloured man's country, and also claimed the right to shut him out of a white country.

LONDON, July 30.

The Universal Race Congress discussed the extension of the Hague tribunal.

Mr. Walker, law lecturer at Cambridge University, said that the tribunal could be a Parliament for all mankind if the countries so willed.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The Acting Prime Minister, commenting yesterday on the cable message, said, "ethically considered, the contention is unanswerable, but it is just such a statement as this which makes us realise that there are such things as racial prejudice and national sentiment. These are neither to be overcome by congresses nor any other means. No doubt, from the standpoint of Christianity, it is indefensible to differentiate between races, but there are many other things in which civilisation falls short of even an attempt to adjust itself to its ideals. It ought to be said, however, by way of rejoinder, that, while we consider the Chinese and the Japanese in some respects inferior races, they return the compliment with a vengeance, and regard us in common with other white races as barbarians."

THE VETO CRISIS.

UNIONIST PEERS.

SUPPORTING THE GOVERNMENT.

LONDON, July 28.

In order to avoid the creation of more Peers, sufficient Unionist members of the House of Lords have volunteered to support the Government if the stalwarts force a division in the House of Lords.

LONDON, July 29.

Every day increases the number of peers who are supporting Lord Lansdowne. Already they number 305. Several have withdrawn from Lord Halsbury's list.

The creation of peers is considered unlikely, even if Lord Halsbury forces a division.

The Earl of Winchelsea and Nottingham states that he and others are willing to vote for the Parliament (House of Lords' Veto) Bill, which they dislike, in order to prevent the creation of blackleg peers.

Many of the Unionist clubs encourage Lord Halsbury.

LONDON, July 30.

The "Stalwarts" have arranged meetings, the first of which will be held on Friday next, to protest against the surrender of the amendments made by the House of Lords.

The "Observer" declares that the Ministry is not anxious to create peers now, but intends later to create Radical Peers pledged to Home Rule. "Meanwhile," it adds, "Lord Lansdowne's and Mr. Balfour's action smashes the Unionist party."

CORN FAMINE IN RUSSIA.

ACTION BY THE GOVERNMENT.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 29.

The Council of Ministers has decided to sell corn at cost price, and to organise public works in South-east Russia and the Steppe region of Siberia, owing to the failure of the harvest.

THE PRINCE OF WALES.

MIDSHIPMAN ON THE HINDUSTAN.

LONDON, July 30.

The Prince of Wales has been appointed a midshipman on the first-class battleship Hindustan (Captain Henry H. Campbell, M.B.G.), which is attached to the second division of the home fleet.

APPENDICITIS.

INTERESTING STATISTICS.

LONDON, July 28.

At the meeting of the British Medical Association to-day, Professor Jordan Lloyd, Professor of Surgery, University of Birmingham, said he estimated that there had been 2276 deaths from appendicitis during the past year in England and Wales; also that there had been 40,000 operations from appendicitis during the year in the United Kingdom, and that 600,000 general operations were performed philanthropically annually.

LEAGUE BOYS' FLAG.

UNION JACK MUST BE HONOURED.

PERTH, Sunday.

Mr. J. Simons, who is to manage the tour of the Australian League Boys through America, has given an emphatic denial to the statement that the Union Jack would not be used during the trip at places where it is supposed to be unpopular. On all league tours and at the camps, the official flag of the league, which had the Union Jack in the design, was always carried and honoured. It was true that a flag was being made for the tour. It has Australian emblems, but it was intended only for decorative purposes. He had discussed with the tour staff some time ago statements that the flag with the Union Jack in it would be unpopular in some localities in America. His words to the staff were "whether our flag is popular there or not we will turn back rather than hide it."

It is regarded as peculiar in some quarters that the league should have ordered a new flag (from which the Union Jack is excluded), when they already had one flag representative of the State, and another bearing the emblems of the Commonwealth.

THEFT FROM A SHIP.

WATER POLICEMAN FINED.

FREMANTLE, Sunday.

In the Fremantle Police Court on Saturday, Max Reichardt, a water policeman, stationed at Fremantle, was charged with having stolen from the British ship Armadale a tin of boiled oil, a tin of jam, a tin of mixed paint, and with receiving same, knowing them to have been stolen. The defendant stated the articles had been given to him by the steamer's watchman, who had since disappeared. He was fined £10 and costs.

A LUCKY PLOUGHMAN.

UNEARTHS A TIN OF SOVEREIGNS.

ORANGE, Saturday.

While ploughing in his paddock at Shadforth Mr. John Taylor turned over an old tin. While examining it out rolled 15 sovereigns. How they got there is a mystery. The rusty state of the tin indicated that it had been there a long time. The suggestion is that it is a long-forgotten plant, possibly of bushrangers.

NEW GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

ARRIVAL AT ADELAIDE.

AUSTRALIA'S LOYALTY UNDOUBTED.

ADELAIDE, Sunday.

Lord and Lady Denman arrived by the mail steamer Omrah on Saturday morning, and were met by Captain Fletcher, of the Government House staff, and representatives of the Government. Their Excellencies were accorded an official welcome by the Mayor of Port Adelaide (Alderman W. T. Rofe) and the members of his council, and presented with an illuminated address.

Lord Denman, in reply, said that this was the first address he had had the honour to receive on Australian shores, and, therefore, the ceremony was peculiarly welcome to Lady Denman and himself. He thanked them sincerely for their loyal expressions in regard to the King, whose representative he was about to become in this magnificent country. Anyone who had had the privilege, as he had, to witness the Coronation celebrations in Westminster Abbey, a few weeks ago, and had seen the enthusiasm of the representatives from the oversea dominions, could have no doubt concerning the loyalty of Australians. He was convinced that those sentiments would always continue. He would look forward to an opportunity to become better acquainted with South Australia.

Lord and Lady Denman then proceeded to Government House, and had luncheon with Sir Day Bosanquet and Lady Bosanquet. Afterwards they returned to the Omrah, which sailed for Melbourne late in the afternoon.

MINISTRY'S WELCOME.

"CORDIAL CO-OPERATION."

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

Mr. Hughes, the Acting Prime Minister, sent the following telegram to Lord Denman, at Adelaide, on behalf of the Ministry:—"In extending you a hearty welcome to the Commonwealth, self and colleagues desire to assure you of their cordial co-operation in all matters that tend to the advancement of the welfare of this portion of his Majesty's dominions. We trust that your term of office as Governor-General will be marked by increased progress in Australia, and that the stay of yourself and Lady Denman will prove successful and happy."

Lord Denman replied as follows:—"Very many thanks to yourself and your colleagues for your most kind message of welcome. I share your wishes and hopes for the prosperity of Australia during my term of office here."

LORD DUDLEY'S DEPARTURE.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

Arrangements are being made for the departure of the retiring Governor-General (Lord Dudley) by the R.M.S. Orvieto, which will sail from Adelaide on August 11. Lord Dudley's departure has been delayed on account of the illness of his military secretary, Captain Rome.

RIOTOUS STRIKERS.

POLICE FIRE REVOLVERS.

ATTEMPT TO RESCUE A PRISONER.

MARYBOROUGH (Q.), Sunday.

A disturbance resembling a riot occurred at Childers last night. Several hundred strikers were at the railway station ostensibly to meet Messrs. Ferricks and Allen, Ms.L.A., when a striker named Adams, who was wanted by the police in connection with the disturbance at the Colonial Sugar Refining mill last Tuesday, was called aside for a warrant to be read.

When arrested he called his comrades to the rescue, and the whole body, responding, promptly surged in his direction. The station lamps were extinguished and pandemonium followed. The mob failed to rescue the prisoner, but formed a solid wall round the police, who fired revolver shots over the strikers' heads.

This had the effect of temporarily subduing the crowd, and the prisoner was taken to the lockup, where a fresh outbreak occurred, stones and abusive language being used. The Childers strikers had been strengthened from the strike camp at Bundaberg, and it is said these men were the ringleaders there.

Messrs. Ferricks and Allen addressed a meeting of strikers during the evening, and subsequently the strikers paraded the street. A call to rescue the prisoner was made, but nothing further was attempted.

At one stage the police magistrate, Mr. Macalister, thought it would be necessary to read the Riot Act.

The steamer Konoowarra left last night for Brisbane, returning with 120 tons of sugar and tramway rails which the waterside workers refused to unload.

Four hundred excursionists went by excursion train to Bundaberg to-day, many being unionists, who visited the strike camp.

A MAGNIFICENT AVENUE.

FIRST SOD TURNED.

WIDEST ROAD IN AUSTRALIA.

By the turning of a sod at South Randwick on Saturday afternoon a start was made on what it is claimed will be the widest road in Australia. If the hopes of those concerned are fulfilled it will be a magnificent thoroughfare indeed, for its width will be just short of 200ft, viz., 198ft. It is fitly called Broad-street, and when completed will be three miles long. Starting from Botany-street, South Randwick, it will terminate at the Long Bay waiting-room. The cost of the first section to Maroubra Bay road will be £2000, towards which the Government will contribute £1000. As the remaining portion runs through Crown lands the Government will undertake its construction, and in all probability a period of 12 months will elapse before the work is finished.

In turning the sod the Mayor (Alderman D. M. Cooper) said that the late Mr. E. W. O'Sullivan had not been unmindful of the advisableness of constructing this great avenue. It would be one of the finest drives about Sydney, and the council also recognised that it was useless to form cross-roads until such a scheme was carried out. A £50,000 loan was receiving the earnest consideration of the council, and if it were sanctioned there was hope that the miles of unmade streets in the municipality would be attended to within seven years. It would take 20 years to pay off the proposed loan.

TEN DAYS ADRIFT.

AMERICAN BARQUE ABANDONED.

BOAT AND TEN MEN MISSING.

AUCKLAND, Sunday.

News has been received by an island steamer that the American barque Puritan foundered on June 27 on a voyage from Newcastle to San Francisco, with a cargo of coal, and was abandoned by the captain and crew about 800 miles from Tahiti.

The vessel, it appears, met with rough weather and high seas almost from the start of the voyage, and sprang a leak after being 24 days out. The officers and crew spent an arduous time for eight days and nights at the pumps in an endeavour to keep the water down while they attempted to steer a course to Pitcairn Island. The prevailing wind was against that objective. Further tempestuous seas were encountered. The cargo began to shift seriously, and the vessel assumed an ominous list. It was then decided to abandon her.

Two boats were provisioned with tinned foods and a small quantity of water, and Mr. Hartfield and nine men went in one and Captain Chapman, the second mate (Mr. Collins), and 10 men occupied the other. The boats kept together for three days, but on the third night the boat with the first mate and nine men disappeared, and has not since been heard of. Captain Chapman and his men reached Anaa on the tenth day, and, while seven of the crew remained on that island to go to Tahiti by a schooner later, the captain and four men ventured over in a small boat, and covered the journey in three days. At Anaa the castaways were hospitably treated by a missionary and the natives.

The men believe the missing boat will turn up safely, and that its occupants have taken refuge on one of the islands in the neighbourhood. The first mate, who was one of its crew, is stated to be an experienced and competent navigator, and had instruments with him. The boat was fitted with eight airtight compartments, and would not sink. It was well provisioned, and the weather after the boats had separated had been moderately fine.

RIOT AT FOOTBALL MATCH.

THE GROUND RUSHED.

PLAYERS ROUGHLY HANDLED.

WOMEN TAKE PART IN THE FIGHT.

ROBERTSON, Saturday.

At Robertson this afternoon there occurred one of the most disgraceful scenes ever witnessed on a football field.

Robertson was playing Mittagong—Union rules—and towards the second half of the game the onlookers rushed the ground. A free fight followed; ten minutes later blood was streaming from the faces of half a dozen players.

Two or three of the injured men were not well enough to "show out" after tea, while the others, their heads almost completely enveloped in bandages, related their experiences to interested groups of townspeople who congregated in the main street.

The riot was the one topic of conversation. Nothing to equal it had ever been seen in the Berrima district, and it is questionable whether anything quite so bad has ever happened in any part of the Commonwealth.

The two teams had met before at Mittagong, when the local team won by three points to nil. To-day's event was the return match in connection with the Berrima district competition. The game from the start (as far as the players were concerned) was contested in good spirit. The onlookers, however (mostly Robertson supporters), did not approve of the action of the referee in awarding a try to Mittagong, and from then on to the end of the game he was subjected to a fusillade of insulting remarks. The umpire, however, paid but little attention to the barrackers, and this evidently vexed the crowd. Mittagong were leading at the end of the first half by 12 points to nil.

After resuming, the game had not been in progress more than 20 minutes when one of the Mittagong players in running for the ball along the line accidentally bumped one of the Robertson onlookers. It was purely an accident, as the referee had occasion to stop the game a couple of times previously on account of the spectators crowding on to the line. The barracker who was bumped, however, did not regard it as an accident and rushed the player. The latter defended himself, and a fight started. A few seconds later the greater portion of the crowd rushed the field. A dreadful scene followed, even women joining in the fight. The referee was powerless. The Mittagong players were forced to defend themselves, as many as three Robertson barrackers attacking one Mittagong representative.

Several players were by this time battered and bruised, and nobody seemed able to restore peace. There was no police officer on the field, and when at length a constable arrived the crowd took little or no notice of him. Sheer exhaustion alone was responsible for the cessation of hostilities.

The game resulted in Mittagong winning by 23 points to nil—but the general opinion was that the victory had been achieved at too great a cost.

POLICE SUPERVISION AT MATCHES.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

At the meeting of the Victorian Football League this evening a letter was received from the Victorian Football Association declining to join in the proposed deputation to the Acting Chief Secretary regarding police supervision at football matches, as follows:—"Mr. O. M. Williams' (University) association has read a meaning into our letter which is not warrantable. We only wished to discuss the position. The league is as anxious as the association to maintain order. It is unfair to the league to say that we do not want the supervision of the police."

The president (Mr. A. M'Cracken): The association is inclined to indulge in heroics at our expense. (Hear, hear.) We will arrange for the deputation as soon as possible.

AMATEUR BURGLARS.

VISIT LYRIC THEATRE.

FOOLISH ATTEMPT AT SAFE-BREAKING

An impudent but unsuccessful attempt at burglary was made at the Lyric Picture Theatre, George-street, late on Friday night, or early on Saturday morning. The thieves gained access to the building by the back of the stage, and entered the manager's office by means of the observation window that looks on to the screen, but accomplished nothing beyond trifling thefts.

The work was carried out with remarkable coolness and daring, for the burglars turned up the electric light in the manager's office, and proceeded with their investigations into the construction of the safe and desk, though the room in which they were is not more than a dozen feet from the pavement.

Their method of procedure and the results of their labours all point to the fact that the visitors were the veriest tyros in the art of burglary, for an ordinary city office boy would have more knowledge of the construction of a safe than these men showed. To judge from the marks on the safe, the burglars first struck the handle with a hammer, and then, finding that no good was to be got from this method of procedure, turned the safe over to get at the back of it, and then made some feeble attempts to cut the iron with a chisel. Foiled in this direction, it would seem that they turned their attention to the manager's roll-top desk, and here again their efforts were most amateurish and futile. Several drawer-handles were broken off, and the woodwork dented with hammer blows; but nothing valuable was gained.

Evidently rendered spiteful by the barren results, the burglars vented their spite in numerous petty ways. The frames of several pictures that were lying in the office were smashed, and several organ pipes were taken from a mechanical organ, and left on the stage. The engine-room was entered, and an attempt made to start the motors, but the burglars were as ignorant of electrical engineering as they were of safes, and only succeeded in burning out the switch.

At last, evidently discouraged by their futile exertions, the thieves decamped with a coat and vest belonging to the manager, but as the trousers of the suit were evidently not a fit they were left.

Altogether, beyond a considerable amount of trouble to the management of the theatre, nothing serious resulted from this entry.

"DEPLORABLE LEVITY."

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The president of the Methodist Conference, the Rev. A. M'Callum, at the Wesley Church to-day, delivered an address entitled "The Church and the Marriage Question."

He illustrated the deplorable levity with which so many young people treated what should be the most solemn moments of their lives, by narrating an experience of his own, in which he had been flippantly asked to "run the thing over in the house," because the bridegroom was too drunk to attend the church. He had refused, but he regretted the day that some disgraceful man in a black coat was found willing for the sake of a fee to thus degrade his holy office as a minister.

SOLICITOR SENTENCED.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Sunday.

Arthur Bunn, a solicitor, of Palmerston North, who pleaded guilty to the theft of £1200 from his employers, has been sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment.

POSTAL BAN REMOVED.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The Postmaster-General has cancelled an order prohibiting the delivery of correspondence to Mrs. C. M. Reid, King-street, Sandy Bay, Hobart, Mrs. Reid having given an undertaking that she will not be a party to committing any breach of section 57 of the Postal and Telegraph Act.

NAVAL OFFICERS WANTED.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

One lieutenant and three sub-lieutenants are required for the permanent naval forces, and applications for these positions are being invited from officers of the Commonwealth naval reserve or Royal naval reserves.

STATE CRISIS.

MR. WADE CONSULTED.

AN EXTRAORDINARY POSITION

MR. M'GOWEN CABLES.

There were few political developments on Saturday. A cablegram was received from Mr. M'Gowen, confirming the action of the Acting Premier in tendering the resignation of the Government, and this was at once forwarded to his Excellency. During the morning Mr. Wade had a short interview with the Lieutenant-Governor. It lasted about 10 minutes.

When questioned as to what had passed, Mr. Wade said:—"In view of the extraordinary situation which has now developed there are a number of questions that must be discussed and grappled with before any steps can be taken either towards forming, or consenting to form, a Ministry. What took place at the meeting I am not at liberty at present to state, but I may say I am to see his Excellency again on Monday, and after that I may be in a position to make a statement. Unfortunately, members of my party were out of reach, and I have not been able to discuss the situation with them."

Mr. Cann's resignation of the Speakership will be placed in the hands of the Clerk of the Legislative Assembly this morning. On Saturday Mr. Cann gathered his belongings together and vacated the Speaker's rooms at Parliament House. When his attention was drawn to Mr. Wade's statement that the Speakership was resigned at the instance of the caucus, Mr. Cann said there was no warrant for the assertion. In point of fact, he contemplated resignation a month ago, and talked the matter over with Mr. Flowers, the Acting Chief Secretary, who dissuaded him from taking that course. "It has been my misfortune," said Mr. Cann, "to be Speaker in a Parliament where the parties were so evenly divided that my actions were frequently regarded with suspicion. Not infrequently I have overheard comments in the chamber which were not intended for my ears, but which caused me considerable pain. I have striven to the utmost to be an impartial Speaker, and to that end I cut myself away from the party with which I was associated, and discontinued attendance at caucus meetings. On returning home last Thursday evening I discussed the position with my wife, and finally decided to retire. Later that night I communicated the fact to my colleague in the representation of Broken Hill, Mr. Griffith. The caucus had nothing whatever to do with it. I am sorry, of course, for the position was one of great honour, but under the conditions of the last couple of months I would not think of continuing to act."

Mr. Briner justifies the refusal of the Independents to support the motion for an adjournment of three weeks, but he considers the Government might fairly have been left in possession for a few months longer, provided they did not bring forward any extreme proposals. Mr. Briner considers a dissolution should be avoided, if possible, for two or three months.

RETURNED TO THE FOLD.

MR. DUNN'S POSITION.

Mr. Dunn, who resigned the Mudgee seat on account of the terms of the proposed Conversion Act repeal, has decided to return to Labour. The caucus handling of the proposal has removed his objections.

"He's returned to the fold," said Mr. Carmichael yesterday, "I have it on the best authority that Mr. Dunn recognised that the position has changed altogether as far as he is concerned. He was under the impression that the majority of the party approved of the repeal of the Conversion Act without recognition of existing rights. He has now discovered his mistake, and understands that all existing rights are to be preserved. He has decided that the only existing impediment between himself and the party has been done away with, and that he can fully subscribe not only to the planks of the platform, but the methods of carrying them out. He will stand again as a pledged Labour candidate if the necessary selection can be secured."

On Saturday, it is said, Mr. Dunn was interviewed by certain earnest members of the party, and in the end he sent a telegram to the Mudgee League that he would run for the seat if selected. Mr. Dunn is not yet quite in the fold, but he is just outside the gate.

Mr. Horne, the other member, whose resignation caused such disaster to the Labour party, has received an invitation to stand as an independent Labour candidate. He received a wire from a strong league in his old electorate, saying that he would get the league's support against any other candidate. He has refused, however. This means a league breaking away from Labour. Mr. Horne replied, advising that the election should be treated as a referendum vote on the question of leasehold versus freehold, and that the league should abstain from active voting. He pointed out that the electorate would not be in any danger of losing its hold as a Labour seat on account of the railway works that are under progress in it.

DEATH-BED REPENTANCE.

GROVELLING FOR VOTES.

LABOUR'S HOUSE OF CARDS.

Mr. Wade is not impressed by the Labour Party's change of front with regard to the repeal of the Conversion Act. He regards it merely as a tactical move, intended to catch votes at the by-elections at Liverpool Plains and Mudgee.

"It was with surprise," he said, "that I see the party has at last consented to preserve existing rights. I say with surprise, because, after Mr. McGowen's valiant declaration at the Protestant Hall that the party intended to preserve those rights 'for 12 months only,' and that he was determined to stand or fall by that policy, this sudden change of front certainly requires very substantial explanation. It must be remembered in the first instance that the leasehold policy, which involved the repeal of all Acts which allowed freehold tenure, is a permanent feature in the Labour platform, and, if it is to be logical and effective, then existing rights must come to an end at some early date. On these lines Labour candidates faced the electors last October, but with that elasticity of conscience for which they are becoming famous whenever an indignant elector questioned a candidate he had returned to him the sympathetic answer, 'Of course, all rights will be preserved.'

"Mr. Holman claims credit for the fact that he and three of his colleagues asserted on the platform that existing rights under the Conversion Act would be preserved. No doubt by this method they gained many votes during the last campaign. Political honesty, therefore, compelled them to insist upon this promise being observed when they became members of the Ministry, yet having come into power they deliberately allowed this promise to be repudiated. They were consenting parties when Mr. Nielsen in his very first speech declared that these rights would not be recognised after some short period of twelve months. They allowed Mr. Nielsen to placard his land policy in similar terms, and until Friday morning last, revelling in their power, they adopted the Trades Hall policy, and made no proper effort to redeem the promises with which, it is now seen, they must have misled many electors. Their duty in the Cabinet was to fight against repudiation, and rather than be consenting parties to that doctrine from the mouth of Mr. M'Gowen and Mr. Nielsen to be true to their pledges, and resign from the Government. Resigning, unless under compulsion, is not a characteristic of the Labour party.

"In view of the promises which Mr. Holman says he gave to the electors to preserve existing rights, it is most interesting to note his attitude with the declaration on behalf of the Government during the debate on the Address in Reply in May.

"Speaking on behalf of the party, Mr. Holman made a statement in direct conflict with what he told the electors. He said:—'The House will probably bear in mind that the repeal of the Conversion Act is a matter to which we have committed ourselves ever since the Act was first passed. The position of the Labour party then and now is perfectly clear and distinct. We were opposed to the passage of the Conversion Act; we oppose it still, and at an early opportunity we propose to repeal it.' Later on Mr. Holman said they were prepared to give the holders of homestead selections an additional seven or eleven months within which to convert, and after that the fee simple of all unsold land was to remain in the Crown.

"On Tuesday night last, in moving my motion, I claimed that the action of the Government in refusing to preserve in their entirety the rights of all persons entitled to convert their holdings was embarrassing to settlers, and inimical to the best interests of the State. What took place then? Did Mr. Holman and his colleagues remember that promise they made to the electors, when they were anxious to secure every possible vote? Not at all. They resisted the motion by speech and vote. They negatived my claim for justice to these settlers, and they endorsed repudiation.

"Their backsliding had caused discontent in the minds of two of their supporters, who finally declined to brand themselves with repudiation, and as they could not support their party in voting against my motion they resigned. Yet, even then, with the conscientiousness of wrongdoing, and all the contempt and unpopularity of repudiating statutory contracts, on Wednesday morning the Labour party in a solid body voted in favour of repudiation.

"Then the house of cards began to tumble down. In the course of the next day the Ministry had ceased to exist. The party was in revolt. Their conduct was about to be judged by the electors. They felt they had no case to put before the public or indignant settlers, and in the last hour of their death-bed repentance they announced the Liberal party was right; that Mr. Horne and Mr. Dunn did the honest thing in repudiating the Labour party; and they now come along cringing and whining when they want more votes, and urgently want them for the two by-elections, for the first time as a party professing the doctine that they have been denouncing right through this Parliament. They hope by this to wipe out the wrongs they have done to settlers, but what weight will the public give to this sudden conversion in view of their continuous resistance on every occasion when the Liberal party put forward the claims of the settlement lessees and homestead selectors?

"What guarantee have the electors got that this deathbed repentance, wrung from them through fear of immediate death, will be honoured if by some mischance they recover their strength? Four leading Ministers admit they deceived the electors last campaign. Why should they not again deceive the public just as often and as soon as they can safely do so. Never in the history of responsible government has there been such an abject crawling and grovelling for votes as has been manifested by this Government. The complaint against the party has always been that they will promise anything to secure votes, but the performance of these promises is much more difficult.

"I should think, so far from strengthening themselves in the eyes of the public, this sudden somersault and casting away of their principles in the short space of 48 hours should fill the electors with grave suspicion as to their motives, contempt for the sudden change, and an absolute distrust of their honesty. Another remarkable feature is that they now throw the unfortunate Mr. Nielsen overboard. While these gentlemen were quite content to adopt and endorse his policy when their seats seemed safe, now that danger threatens, and the ship is about to be wrecked, they do not hesitate to change their opinions, and in cowardly fashion throw their colleague to the wolves.

"Another question has to be answered. It now turns out that this threat of a 12 months' time limit was untrue. I have all along contended that each day's delay was causing trouble to those settlers who desired to convert, but to whom it was not convenient to convert forthwith. Something like 1800 applications for conversion have been lodged since the M'Gowen Government came into power. A number of them have been approved, and not one of them, as it now turns out, need have taken that action. Many of them, no doubt, have been put to inconvenience in raising money for the purpose of conversion, which might have been better spent in improving their property, and they are now under an obligation to pay instalments on their conditional purchases—annual sums about four times as great as they need have paid as lessees. This means they have been simply fooled, and if any of them are in the Liverpool Plains or Mudgee electorates, no doubt they will have some questions to ask the Labour candidates.

"It may be this declaration will appease the wrath and anxiety of some supporters of the party in Parliament. It is remarkable that the only promise made is to preserve existing rights. Mr. Holman used similar words at the opening of Parliament last May. Mr. Nielsen himself always talked of preserving existing rights, but from the speeches it is abundantly clear that what they have always meant by existing rights applies only to those who have taken up selections since the passing of the Conversion Act in 1908. Those who took up rights before that date may even now find, if the Labour party is returned to power, that even with this somersault their rights are not protected."

THE COMMERCIAL VIEW.

SPEECHES BY EX-MINISTERS.

MR. GRIFFITH AND ACTING-GOVERNOR AGAIN.

At the annual commercial travellers' banquet on Saturday evening the political situation was referred to by two Ministers, Mr. Griffith and Mr. Trefle.

A letter of apology from Mr. Wade was read stating that he would have attended, but at the last moment he had been prevented by important events. He wished them a happy function. The veiled allusion to the formation of a Liberal Cabinet being probably in process was signalised by enthusiastic and long-sustained cheering.

Mr. J. Wallace, ex-president of the Commercial Travellers' Association of New South Wales, in proposing the toast of Federal and State Ministries and Parliaments, said that, as to State politics, he really did not know what the position was. "Have we," he asked, "got a Government?" (Loud laughter and applause.) We know Parliament is very much alive, but the Government seems to be dead, and it is fitting to speak well of the dead. (Roars of laughter.) Of the late Administration I would just like to say that they have been like young men in business, who in order to demonstrate their vigour and vim are somewhat apt to overlook many things. I think that the Ministry tried to do overmuch, which accounts for the position they have got themselves into at the present time. They have been keen to make laws rather than administer the multiplicity of laws we have at the present time. (Loud applause.) We would be better off as a country if we sent all our members of Parliament away on a five years' trip. (Loud laughter and applause.) They would have their views broadened, and come back better men. (Cheers.) But we must give Mr. Holman's Administration credit for having plenty of "go" and a desire to do good. (Hear, hear.) We look upon Mr. Griffith as a commercial man, because he has been going in for various enterprises—State brick-making, quarrying, lime-making, and all sorts of things. (Great laughter.) I would advise any commercial travellers who are not in a good billet to ask Mr. Griffith if he wants a few salesmen to dispose of his surplus stock. (Renewed laughter.) But I think Mr. Griffith might have left these various enterprises to commercial men to have carried on. (Applause.) We come now to the third political division, to our friend Mr. David Storey. (Cheers.) I think it is about time that we had a commercial man in the Ministry of New South Wales. (Loud cheering.)

Mr. Griffith, who was greeted with loud applause, said:—"I have in my time been called many things, but this is the first time that I have been called a corpse. (Great laughter.) I have been accused of many things, but never before of being dead. (Renewed laughter.) I am not sure that I am not here under false pretences. (Laughter.) I am not quite sure whether I am a Minister or not. (Great laughter.) I know my resignation was accepted some days ago, but up to midday to-day I have been administering my department. With regard to the political position, I admit we are in a fix. (Hear, hear, and laughter.) As I said, my resignation has been accepted, and I am administering my department, but whether I am going to get any salary I don't know. (Loud laughter.) I know, however, that I am here as the guest of the most intelligent and progressive body of business men in the Commonwealth, and, although things are politically mixed, they will very soon sort themselves out. The position seems to be, as far as I can judge, that a few months ago the electors said emphatically, and by a majority of many thousands, that we were to be the Government of the country. The gentleman who is to-day Acting-Governor has said that somebody else is to be the Government. That is just the position, and in a week or two we will know whether the will of the people or the will of the gentleman acting as Governor will prevail. I am afraid that though I nearly am a dead man—(laughter)—that that won't continue very much longer. After I have had a couple of days' sleep you will find I am a very live man when I meet them in Parliament. (Cheers and laughter.) Mr. Holman would have been pleased to be here, but he is a man of a finer and more nervous temperament than myself, and the strain of this week has told more upon him than upon my more robust constitution." (Cheers.)

Mr. Trefle, ex-Minister for Agriculture, who also met with a hearty reception, said:—"I feel rather like my friend Mr. Griffith. I don't know whether I am not here under false pretences or not. (Laughter.) I heard the remark of Mr. Wallace as to the wisdom of sending members of Parliament away on a holiday for five years. Now, if that could have been put into effect about a week ago—(great laughter)—it would have been appreciated. If Parliament had departed on a five years' holiday about a week ago Ministers would not have grumbled one whit. (Laughter.) But it has been willed otherwise, and Ministers will have to bow to the inevitable and accept the position as it is. (Hear, hear.) I had an idea once that Parliament was a place where a member could do wonderful things for his country, but when I got into Parliament I found there was an Opposition as well as a Government. My first impulse was that perhaps this idea of non-party government was the correct one, as I saw a great deal of waste of time and energy in Opposition tactics. (Laughter.)

Mr Griffith: There should be no Opposition. (Roars of laughter.)

Mr. Trefle: I began to see that under our system of party government Oppositions perform useful functions.

Mr. Griffith: If they are not too strong. (Great laughter.)

Mr. Trefle: I admit I don't like them to come within measurable distance of being equal to us. (Loud laughter.) But it would be an unhappy day for the country if Ministers might come together, whether they be the cream of the land or not, and there existed no organised method of criticising their work. (Hear, hear.) Some description of Opposition should be maintained to keep Ministers straight and keep their administration pure and above suspicion. Our Ministry, as the mover of the toast said, consisted of novices in office, but I am pleased to say that our opponents have been able to find very little in our administration to criticise. (Cheers.) The motion of censure launched against us from time to time consisted of the same old hash, and was really a tribute to the administration of our offices. (Cheers.) Some of our Ministers have been working at such a pace that four or five months in opposition will do them good, and give them a rest. (Laughter, and cheers.)

Mr. David Storey, who was received with considerable enthusiasm, said:—"So far as concerns the remarks made by Mr. Wallace regarding the tangle which exists in our State Parliament, all I have to say is that members of Parliament will not get a holiday on full pay for five years, or for one year, or for one month. (Laughter.) I think, in fact, that they will have to do without any pay for a period—(loud laughter)—and become like commercial travellers, going through the country—(cheers)—looking, not for orders for commodities, but to try to catch the votes of the people, because a dissolution must soon come. (Cheers.) The mover of this toast was good enough to say that he hoped I would have the honour of being a Minister to represent the commercial travellers. (Cheers.) As to that, all I have to say is that I was an apprentice in public life many years, and have been a journeyman for many years also, and I feel thoroughly fitted for any position. (Laughter and cheers.) But, so far, the Acting-Governor has not sent for me. (Loud laughter.)"

MR. BEEBY'S OPINIONS.

MR. STOREY'S HEAVEN-BORN MISSION.

MUDGEE, Sunday.

Mr. Beeby, interviewed here, said the general tone of the meeting of Mudgee Labour sympathisers, held on Saturday evening, was that Mr. Dunn had acted precipitately and foolishly in resigning, and in not giving his leader a definite notice of his intention, and thus terminating what promised to be a useful political career.

Speaking with reference to the political situation generally, Mr. Beeby said there had been only two courses open to the Lieutenant-Governor, in view of the developments since Mr. Cann had resigned, which left the parties equal. One was to grant a prorogation till the by-elections were over, and the other was to send for Mr. Wade. It seemed almost regrettable that Mr. Wade should get a prorogation till the by-elections when one was refused to Mr. Holman. Mr. Wade would have to face the House on Tuesday, provide a Speaker, and obtain an adjournment of the House. To have any possibility of success, Mr. Wade must come to terms with Mr. Storey, and developments in that direction would be awaited with interest. During the last nine months Mr. Storey had been just as candid in his criticism of Mr. Wade and his party as of the late Government, and had avowed his mission in life was to break the machine politics of the Liberal organisation as well as of the Labour party. "Will he forego this heaven-born mission, and become part of the Wade machine," continued Mr. Beeby. "If he be included in the new Cabinet, can he carry with him the support of the six other Independents who have been so flagrantly insulted by the members of the Wade party? A Cabinet, which includes both Messrs. Wood and Storey, will, I think, add to the gaiety of nations."

CASE AGAINST DISSOLUTION.

POLITICAL PRECEDENTS.

The pivot of the whole political situation is the Lieutenant-Governor Sir William Cullen. The question whether his Excellency can be induced to grant a dissolution is the one of the hour. Labour members argue that another appeal to the country following so closely on the elections is unnecessary.

One prominent member on Saturday quoted some precedents. "There was," he said, "that of Lord Carrington in 1886, when Sir John Robertson resigned. Sir John recommended a dissolution. Upon that recommendation Lord Carrington wrote:—

> The present Parliament was opened on November, 1885, and a resolution adverse to Mr. Dibbs's Government was carried. The Ministers resigned on December 17. Your Ministry assumed office on December 22, and on February 16, 1886, an adverse vote was carried against you. These two votes following each other so rapidly, and both so soon after Parliament met, indicated no doubt a difficulty of forming in the present Assembly a Government capable of carrying on public business. But I can't at present arrive at the conclusion that there are not materials in the Assembly for the formation of a Government stronger than either of those which I have mentioned. I think, therefore, that an opportunity should be offered for the formation of a new Administration. For that purpose I must be permitted to decline the adoption of your recommendation to dissolve.

"In somewhat similar fashion Sir Hercules Robinson, 11 years earlier declined to act on the recommendation of the same statesman when he was defeated on a vote of censure moved by Sir Henry Parkes in the third session of a Parliament. On that occasion the Governor refused to assent to the Premier's recommendation that he should dissolve the House unless supply could first be obtained. Upon the House refusing supply, he sent for Sir Henry (then Mr.) Parkes to form a new Cabinet. This same general view was taken by Governor Bowen in New Zealand in 1872. He said the existing Parliament elected for five years was barely 18 months old. No measure of urgent importance, upon which the public was divided, was before the country. The Governor was not, therefore, satisfied that a dissolution would materially alter the even state of parties.

"This case is a very striking one, inasmuch as the Stafford Ministry, which was beaten in October, had only been in office four weeks, the previous Vogel Ministry having been beaten by a majority of two a month before.

"An exceedingly interesting case in point arose in the Victorian Parliament in 1875. Mr. Francis, as Premier, introduced a Constitution Reform Bill, which was carried on its third reading by two votes only. He refused to go on. He retired from the Government, and obtained the appointment of one of his colleagues, Mr. Kerferd, as Premier. After a few months more Mr. Kerferd was defeated on a taxation measure, and Mr. Berry (afterwards Sir Graham Berry) was afterwards made Premier. A few months later the Berry Ministry was defeated in turn, and it advised the Governor to dissolve the Assembly, on the ground that its powers were exhausted, and that no further Ministry could be formed. The Chief Justice, Sir William Stawell, who was Lieutenant-Governor for the moment, refused a dissolution.

"Lord Normanby, dealing with a Victorian crisis, when Sir Graham Berry was again Premier, laid his guiding principle down in these words:—

> The Governor can't admit the principle advanced by Ministers that a Parliament has a right to a dissolution whenever he may advise one. It may be true that in England there may be no direct evidence of a Minister having been refused one, but the Governor would ascribe that circumstance, first, to the fact that English statesmen have been reluctant to advise a dissolution except when their claim was undoubted; and, secondly, to the circumstance that the same publicity is not given in England to the communications between the Crown and the Government as is done in the colonies, and he feels perfectly confident that under circumstances such as those which exist here at present no Minister would ask for a dissolution.

ELECTORAL DIVISIONS.

PENDING REDISTRIBUTION.

A matter which is of great importance at the present juncture is the redivision of the electoral boundaries. It is understood that, the figures of the census having been made available, the report of the Statistician, which is necessary to enable the Commission to be formed, and to get to work, has reached a state of completion. Arrangements have been in motion in the Chief Secretary's department for some time in regard to this work.

The obligations of the Electoral Act will cause the proceedings for the alignment of the boundaries to go forward automatically.

There is an enormous discrepancy between the number of voters on the roll in many of the electorates, and, according to the Act, these must be equalised as soon as the result of the census is made known officially. The voters in some electorates are three times as numerous as those in other electorates, creating a disparity which is illegal under the Electoral Act, inasmuch as there is a definite limit set to the elasticity allowed to the quota, beyond which there is no legal sanction.

This adds to the political tangle. The retiring Ministry has so far been refused a prorogation by the Lieutenant-Governor, so that it is hardly likely, should Mr. Wade take office, prorogation will be granted to him. The question then is, can a dissolution be granted while the electoral divisions are not in the condition the law demands they should be? Can a general election take place before the redistribution is made?

PAIRS.

The matter of pairs for the two absentees, Mr. M'Gowen and Mr. Macdonell, has been a point of difficulty in the retiring Government's calculations. In the event of the Opposition declaring that Mr. Macdonell, who is in a hospital in Melbourne, is no longer to be given a pair, the Labour party is a vote short of its full strength. Now that things have reached their present pitch of political finesse one man's vote means perhaps the difference between victory and a rout. A Minister has been informed, however, that if pairs are broken one will be provided for Mr. Macdonell in the Independent corner. Mr. Briner is understood to be willing to give it.

It is also stated that Mr. Levien, as the "Father of the House," is ready, if need be, to pair with Mr. M'Gowen should Mr. Wade consider his arrangement with Mr. M'Gowen to be at an end.

THE BY-ELECTIONS.

MUDGEE SEAT.

SELECTING LABOUR CANDIDATES.

MUDGEE, Sunday.

Messrs. Beeby and Thrower, Ms.L.A., arrived in Mudgee from Sydney last night. They came by motor car, but when within a mile of town they experienced a breakdown, and had to complete the journey to Mudgee on foot. Their car was afterwards towed in behind that of Mr. Carl Johnson, who came from Portland. A large meeting of Labour supporters was held at the Town Hall later in the evening. Messrs. Beeby and Thrower attended, and also Mr. Carl Johnson and Mr. Daniel Clyne, two of the candidates for the Labour selection. Mr. G. A. Dewar, president of the league, presided.

Mr. Beeby explained the difficulty in the party in regard to the Conversion Act. He said Mr. Nielsen had been keen upon the leasehold principle, which was the aim of his political life. A majority of the Government were in opposition to Mr. Nielsen, who had on several occasions tendered his resignation, which his colleagues would not accept. At a caucus meeting a few weeks ago, Mr. Dunn was present. It was arranged to let the repeal of the Conversion Act stand over till the return of Mr. M'Gowen, and if then the difficulty arose, Mr. Nielsen's resignation would be accepted. The resignations of Messrs. Horne and Dunn came somewhat as a surprise, because they understood this arrangement.

The chairman read a telegram he had received that night from Mr. Dunn, as follows:—"As I find the caucus has removed my objections to the repudiation of leasehold rights, I am prepared to seek re-election if the local leagues will nominate me."

The general tone of the meeting was decidedly against entertaining Mr. Dunn's nomination. Mr. Dunn is still a member of the league. Eleven names were submitted to the meeting by the central executive, and included those of Messrs. Daniel Clyne (Mudgee), and Mr. Carl Johnson (Portland). The meeting was addressed by Messrs. Johnson and Clyne. On the names being put to the meeting Mr. Johnson was selected by a majority of seven over Mr. Clyne. None of the other candidates securing votes. Mr. Johnson's name will be submitted to the central executive. Gulgong has submitted Mr. Clynes's name.

The central executive is sending six lady canvassers to-morrow. Some of the leading Labour speakers will assist in the campaign. Mr. Thrower proceeds to-morrow night to Stuart Town, at the end of the electorate, where he will conduct a campaign till polling day. If Mr. Johnson is selected, he will have no trouble in getting round the electorate, as he has a motor car at his disposal. An organising meeting of the league was held this morning. Messrs. Beeby and Thrower were present. It was decided to open offices in Mudgee, and Mr. Carmichael, Acting Treasurer, will act as secretary. Mr. Beeby left Mudgee this morning by motor for Sydney.

LIBERAL CAMPAIGN OPENED.

MUDGEE, Sunday.

The Central Liberal Association of the Mudgee electorate has received wires from Stuart Town and Hill End, stating that the selection of Mr Gilbert has given complete satisfaction.

No time is being lost by the Liberal party's workers. A meeting was held last night, when an itinerary was arranged for the district. Mr. Gilbert visited Cullenbone, Greenswamp, Gulgong, and Home Rule yesterday. At each place he was cordially received. All arrangements have been perfected for the first week's tour of the electorate. In this respect the Liberals have an advantage over the other side. Advices from all parts of the electorate show that the Liberals are closing up their ranks, and the magnanimous action of Mr. E. J. Lowe is appreciated.

LIVERPOOL PLAINS.

Mr. Harry Lestrange, the Australian Workers' Union organiser in the Liverpool Plains district, is nominated for the selection. He is also well-known in P.L.L. circles. He was secretary of Namoi electorate council last year, and chairman of the land committee at this year's conference.

QUIRINDI, Sunday.

On Saturday afternoon the Liberal League held a special meeting to select a candidate to contest the Liverpool Plains seat. After discussion, Mr. John Perry accepted nomination, and will run as the selected candidate for the Liberal party and the Farmers and Settlers' Association combined. This explodes the idea that the Liberal and Country parties are separated. Forty speakers are being arranged for by the Liberal committee.

All the leaders on both sides are expected to take part in the contest. Several Liberal organisers are in the electorate now. The Labour League is quiet, but confident.

COOLAH, Saturday.

On seeing Mr. Horne's statement in the "Herald," Labourites here were bitterly disappointed at his action. They are, however, confident of again winning the seat.

SAILOR DROWNED.

SUFFERING FROM DELIRIUM TREMENS.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

An inquiry was held yesterday into the circumstances of the death of Adolph Molander, a Swedish sailor from the barque Yola, whose body with the hands manacled was found in the bay on July 20.

Dr. England said that on June 20 he visited the Yola and treated Molander, who was lying on the bed handcuffed, and with his feet tied with a rope. Molander told the witness that he himself had asked to be put under restraint, as "the devil was standing in a corner of the room waiting for him." The man was suffering from delirium tremens, and witness thought that the restraint was reasonable. Molander no doubt managed to free the rope binding his feet.

The Coroner said that the captain of the Yola had treated Molander in a kindly manner, and that there was no evidence of foul play.

A verdict of "found drowned" was recorded.

RAILWAY CROSSING FATALITY.

NEWCASTLE, Sunday.

Fanny Beresford, a married woman, aged 37 years, was run over at the Hannell-street railway crossing at about 8 o'clock last night, and was killed. Deceased, who was living with her husband (Harry Beresford) in Wickham, attempted to cross the railway line when a light engine, travelling towards Hamilton, struck her. Death must have been instantaneous, as the body was terribly mutilated.

The Tighes Hill and Mayfield trams cross the railway at the spot where the accident occurred, and the railway gates are controlled from the signal-box. The large gates were locked on the approach of the engine, but it is stated that someone held the small gate for pedestrians in such a way as to prevent the signalman from locking it. The coroner will hold an inquiry to-morrow.

FOUND IN THE HARBOUR.

At the City Coroner's Court on Saturday the Coroner (Mr. Stephen Murphy) concluded an inquiry into the death of Carl Swanson, a seaman, who was found floating in Darling Harbour, near the Pyrmont Bridge, early on Saturday last. Evidence was taken, which showed that the deceased, who was a Swede, was last seen alive on board the vessel Urilla, which was lying at the Fresh Food and Ice Company's wharf late on the Friday night. He was then somewhat under the influence of liquor. The Coroner returned an open verdict, and strongly commented on the necessity for universal teaching of swimming, it having been proved that the deceased was unable to swim.

Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery is invaluable for the treatment of Influenza. Obtainable everywhere. 1s 6d and 3s.—Advt.

LEADERS OF THOUGHT.

LAW SOCIETY'S DINNER.

"The value of a University," said Sir Edmund Barton, senior puisne Judge of the High Court, speaking at the University Law Society's dinner on Saturday night, "does not consist in the mere extent of its curriculum or the number of subjects which it teaches. The true value of a University lies in its capability for inculcating habits of high thought and advanced culture.

"It was in the latter sphere," he continued, "that the University of Sydney, in common with kindred institutions, should strike deep roots, and not remain merely an establishment for turning out men with a knowledge of how to earn their living. The University of Sydney embraced in its curriculum as many subjects as could reasonably be covered with the money at the disposal of the Senate, and if the latter body were told that they should increase the number of subjects dealt with by the staff, their best answer was, 'If the money is forthcoming, there need be no trouble on that score.' Let the University, however, do its duty in the manner he had indicated, and it would then be able to reflect that at all events its graduates in after life could look back with pride to their association with it. (Applause.) It was a matter on which he felt very strongly. The University would not succeed if its only mission in life was to manufacture and turn out professional men. It was looked to by all who had its true interests at heart to imbue men with such habits as would make them not merely successful practitioners, but true leaders of thought. The Sydney University, perhaps, could not hope yet to imbue its students with the love of tradition. It was not old enough, and its isolation prevented it from having ideas tried by time, like those of older institutions; but in the meantime they could hope that their Alma Mater would develop along sound lines as a school of advanced thought." (Applause.)

Mr. Justice Higgins, in proposing the toast of the University Law Society, spoke in a similar strain. He was glad to see that the name of the University was associated with the Law Society. The more law and lawyers were associated with the highest culture and training that a country could give the better for the country. It had been stated that the man who knew chemistry and nothing else, knew very little about chemistry, and the same remark could apply to the law. He (Mr. Justice Higgins) had had an experience extending over 24 years on the council of the University of Melbourne, and during that time he had become more and more convinced that the broad culture a University gave imbued life with a fulness and interest which made men more susceptible to taking new ideas. Wentworth's ideal was that every poor man should send his son to the University, and, moreover, be able to meet the expense. He (the speaker) hoped that that glorious ideal would some day be realised, for the strength, force, and impetus it would give to the national life could hardly be measured. (Applause.)

The dinner of the Sydney University Law Society was held at Sargent's Cafe, George-street. The president (Mr. A. J. Kelynack) occupied the chair, and amongst those present were Mr. Justice Barton, Mr. Justice Higgins, Mr. Justice Gordon, Mr. Acting Justice Ferguson, and Mr. Acting Justice Rich, Professor Peden, Mr. Mitchell, K.C. (Vic.), and Mr. Bevan (Solicitor-General). The toasts honoured included "The King," "The University," proposed by Mr. Bevan, and responded to by Mr. Justice Barton; "Acting Justices Ferguson and Rich," proposed by Professor Peden, who said that the dinner was primarily intended to mark the honour done the Law School by the elevation of two members of its teaching staff to positions on the Supreme Court Bench; "The University Law Society," proposed by Mr. Justice Higgins, and replied to by the president; and the "Bar," proposed by Mr. Justice Gordon, and replied to by Mr. A. B. Piddington and Mr. Mitchell, K.C.

A MERCHANT'S JUBILEE.

MR. G. J. COHEN ENTERTAINED.

THE GOODWILL OF ALL EMPLOYEES.

A unique event in the commercial life of this State was celebrated on Saturday night, when about 150 employees of the firm of David Cohen and Co., of Sydney, Newcastle, and London, assembled at Sargent's Cafe to meet Mr. George J. Cohen on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of his joining the firm. Mr. W. W. E. Wynn occupied the chair, having on his right the guest of the evening and Mr. S. R. Levy, and on his left Mr. S. S. Cohen.

The chairman, in extending a hearty welcome to Mr. Cohen, said that the employees in all the departments of the firm had enthusiastically joined in the celebration. Mr. Cohen possessed in a marked degree that rare talent of tact which enabled him to manage men and to be a leader among them—guiding with firmness combined with kindness. But it was not in the kingdom of finance alone that Mr. Cohen's name had become prominent. In works of philanthropy he had been the author of a vast amount of good to his fellow-man. His charitable donations to his own city of Sydney had been large and frequent, and in England he, in conjunction with the late Mr. B. W. Levy, devoted the whole of a very extensive bequest to the building and endowment of hospitals. The most worthy feature, however, of Mr. Cohen's character was his modesty and reticence, for he withheld his name as much as possible in connection with these magnificent and generous deeds. They would see, therefore, that they were honouring one who was in a very high degree worthy of being honoured. (Applause.)

Mr. J. W. Griffiths, in supporting the toast, said he had worked on Mr. Cohen's right hand for 20 years, and had always found him a most just employer. (Applause.)

Mr. Ross extended hearty congratulations on behalf of the Maitland branch, and Mr. D. M'Clelland performed a similar duty on behalf of the travellers.

Mr. Houston and Mr. Slater, employees of over 40 years' service in the firm, then handed Mr. Cohen a handsome illuminated address, designed and written by employees. The address paid a great tribute to Mr. Cohen's justice, philanthropy, and commercial and financial talents.

Mr. Cohen, in acknowledging the presentation, said he did not deserve the praise they had showered on him. He was completely taken by surprise on receiving that most beautiful address, and he could assure them that he would treasure it as long as he lived. It was a gratification to him to know that he had possessed the goodwill of those with whom he had been associated for so long. As he looked round he could see many who had been associated with the firm for 20 years, and a few who had been with them for over 40 years, and they still had the firm's confidence, and carried out their duties with unabated earnestness. It was 75 years ago, he said, that the firm was established in Maitland. In those days their business was chiefly with squatters, who all had stores on their stations. There were no railways then, and the goods, perforce, had to be despatchd by bullock waggons. He had known drays to take supplies, and bring back wool, the journey occupying a whole year. They would readily understand that many of them in those days would have found it hard to get a position as commercial traveller. Business, however, was carried on in a totally different manner, and storekeepers only ordered once or twice a year. Fifty years ago the population of Sydney and suburbs was about equal to that of North Sydney at the present time. He was born near the Tank Stream, somewhere to the right of the present A.M.P. building, and he had seen a marvellous growth in the city of Sydney. He remembered in the early days that Bridge-street was looked upon as a kind of suburb, all the business at that time being transacted at Miller's Point. In concluding his remarks, Mr. Cohen paid a high tribute to the loyalty of the staff, and said he would like to do something on his own part to commemorate the occasion. He had therefore decided to forward their chairman a cheque for £1000, to be distributed among the employees. (Applause.)

Mr. J. S. Lord proposed "The Firm," and Mr. S. R. Levy, in responding, said he had been a member of the firm for a quarter of a century.

Mr. S. S. Cohen proposed "The Employees," which was responded to by Mr. W. Symington; and the following contributed to the musical programme during the evening:—Messrs. Purcell, Wardrobe, Larsen, Walton, Harrison, Quinan, White, Tracy, Bruce, Chambers, and P. A. Pawley.

LABOUR TROUBLES.

RECENT PORT KEMBLA STRIKE.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

The dispute which last Friday resulted in the cessation of work at the electrolytic works at Port Kembla was settled, after considerable negotiations, on Thursday, by the employees' representative and the secretary of the company in Sydney. The men are to resume work at once in their old positions, with the exception of Sargood, who will remain in the yard pending the wages board's decision. Any action of the other men shall not prejudice their position with the company. Secondly, the matters of the disratement of Sargood to be referred to the wages board for settlement. If the decision is adverse to the company the company will pay him his old rate from the date of disratement. At midday about half of the former employees turned up to work, whilst it is expected that the remainder will be at work on Monday.

WALLSEND WHEELERS.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

The conciliation board appointed to decide on certain matters affecting the wheelers of the Wallsend colliery met to-day. The wheelers at Wallsend colliery ceased work recently, and only resumed on the management agreeing to pay them 2½d per ton on the gross weight of the coal wheeled. Certain other questions relating to the payment for handling timber, etc., were left open for decision by a conciliation board. Judge Scholes has been appointed chairman. Messrs. Ross and N. J. Clark represent the proprietors, and Mr. A. Lewis represents the wheelers. The board at its meeting to-day merely discussed preliminary matters, and decided to meet again next Wednesday.

CARTERS AND DRIVERS.

STRIKES IN HOBART.

HOBART, Sunday.

The Employers' Association, consisting of employers of carters and drivers, met on Friday to consider the untimatum of the Carters' Union that an agreement to pay the wages must be sent to the secretary by noon on Saturday. It was decided to reject the terms offered. The association decided to join the Tasmanian Employers' Federation. A special committee was appointed to deal with the dispute.

At a mass meeting of the carters and drivers held on Saturday night it was decided by a large majority (the numbers are given unofficially as 148 to 200) to cease work until the demand for a minimum rate of £2 2s for single-horse drivers and £2 7s for drivers of two horses are granted. The strike is to be a general one, and the breadcarters, who are now working under an agreement with the bakers, and receiving a minimum of £2 per week, are also to be called out. It is officially stated that the union now has over 450 members, a large number having come in during the last few days. The union has a promise of support from the Tasmanian Trades and Labour Council, and from the Federated Carters and Drivers' Union of Australia.

UNIONISTS FINED.

HOBART, Sunday.

John Jackson, Thos. Taylor, and John Sherston, members of the Carters' Union, were charged at the City Court on Saturday under the Master and Servants Act with refusing to perform the orders of their master, John Evans. They pleaded guilty. Counsel for the prosecution stated that the men were engaged in carting coal from the wharf, and at the command of the union officials they refused to proceed with the work. Mr. Wise, P.M., fined each £1, and ordered that 10s of their wages be forfeited, besides paying the costs of the prosecution, amounting to £2 5s.

TROUBLE IN MELBOURNE.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

About 1000 members of the Carters and Drivers' Union attended a meeting to-day to consider the action of the Government in dividing the Carters and Drivers' Wages Board.

The following motions were adopted:—"That the actions of the authorities for the administration of the Factories Act as applied to the Carters and Drivers' Wages Board in emasculating the powers of the board by the excision of sections of the calling is not conducive to the peace and present prosperity of the public, and if such a course is persisted in drastic action shall be taken to enforce our demands."

"That this meeting pledges itself to loyally support the executive of the Federated Carters and Drivers' Union in demanding the restoration of the original powers of the board, and are hereby instructed, in the event of such demands not being complied with, to confer with the Trades Hall Council, the Stevedores, the Wharf-labourers, the Seamen's, and the Amalgamated Society of Railway's Employees' unions for the purpose of insuring concerted action to enforce compliance with the demand."

VALUABLE PEARLS.

CHARGE OF STEALING.

PERTH, Saturday.

After a hearing extending over 10 days, a sensational case of alleged pearl stealing at Broome terminated on Friday evening. A young man, Walter Bevan Cochrane, a recent arrival from England, had been committed for trial at Broome on a charge of having stolen two pearls valued at £1200, from W. C. P. Hawkes, for whom he worked as a shell opener on the pearling boat Clifford. Gordon M'Intosh, a pearler, was at the same time committed on a charge of having received the two pearls. The case was remitted from Broome to the Perth Criminal Court, on account of the local feeling at Broome.

The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, and the accused were discharged.

During the preliminary hearing at Broome the magistrate said that only one pearl out of every three found its way to the owners of luggers.

WIRELESS RECORD.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

MELBOURNE, Saturday.

There was an abrupt ending in the Criminal Court yesterday to the case in which Robert Charles Lindsay, medical practitioner, was charged before Mr. Justice Hodges and a jury of twelve with having murdered Annie Neander, of Longwood, on June 2. The case for the Crown was opened on Thursday, and the examination of witnesses was proceeded with this morning.

The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, in accordance with a direction by the Judge, and Dr. Lindsay was discharged.

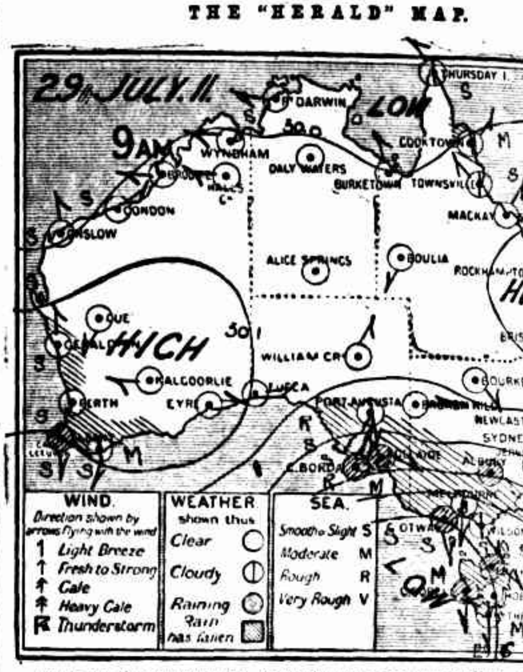
AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.



During the past 24 hours the Antarctic disturbance has expanded northwards, over the south-eastern States, and gained considerably in energy. Its centre is now to the west of Tasmania. The greater part of eastern Australia is covered by very flat barometric conditions, whilst a slight dip in the isobars to the north indicate some monsoonal activity there. The very extensive "high" which covered the greater part of the continent on Friday, and reached as far eastwards as New Zealand, has now become disconnected. Both high pressures showing on the chart, one between New Caledonia and the Central Queensland coast, and the other over Western Australia, are now quite nondescript in character.

NEWCASTLE, Sunday.

Mr. I. Chapman, general manager of the Seaham and Abermain Colliery Company, was in Newcastle on Thursday, and, in referring to the improvements mentioned in the "Herald," said he wished to make it clear that these were being carried out at Abermain colliery, and not Abernethy Main colliery, as stated. In addition to those works already mentioned, Mr. Chapman said the company had also arranged for the sinking of two shafts. These will work the lower seam, which has already been determined by means of the diamond drill. It is anticipated that when the whole of the works now being carried out are completed, the total output of the Abermain property will be over 7000 tons per day. The new mines, which will be equipped with the latest machinery, will probably be ready for mining operations within the next 18 months.

CONDUCT ON TRAINING SHIP.

THE VICTORIAN ALLEGATIONS.

MELBOURNE, Saturday.

Mr. Boyd, president of the committee of management of the training ship John Murray, in commenting yesterday upon the allegations made in the Legislative Assembly against the administration of the training ship, said the committee would welcome an inquiry if it was conducted by a competent man or tribunal. With respect to the affidavit made by the father of one of the boys on the training ship, and read, the charge hinted at was fully investigated in January last, and a report was made to the Government. The only charge that was proved was that the man in question had been under the influence of drink, and it came out in evidence that he was skylarking with a dozen boys on the deck. The man in question was summarily dismissed on a charge of insobriety. With regard to the alleged kidnapping of a boy, the lad was placed in charge of the committee, and unless the whole thing was to be a screaming farce, it was the duty of the committee to keep him under its charge, and train him for the period it was given control over him, one year. The parents, if they wanted him, could apply for a writ of habeas corpus.

A FATAL BLOW.

MELBOURNE, Saturday.

The Coroner held an inquiry to-day concerning the death of Michael Burley Remington, a plumber, aged 52 years, who died in Melbourne Hospital on July 22.

Edmund Mackley stated that on July 17 he heard voices raised in altercation in Ascot Vale-avenue. Witness went to the spot, and found Remington lying on the ground. A man named John Dourne was standing over deceased putting his coat on. Witness asked Dourne if he had struck Remington, and he replied, "You can have the same if you want it."

The Coroner found that Remington died from cerebral hemorrhage, the result of a blow unlawfully struck by Dourne. Dourne was committed for trial on a charge of manslaughter.

"DEPLORABLE LEVITY."

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The president of the Methodist Conference, the Rev. A. McCallum, at the Wesley Church to-day, delivered an address entitled "The Church and the Marriage Question."

He illustrated the deplorable levity with which so many young people treated what should be the most solemn moments of their lives, by narrating an experience of his own, in which he had been flippantly asked to "run the thing over in the house," because the bridegroom was too drunk to attend the church. He had refused, but he regretted to say that some clergyman in a black coat was found willing for the sake of a fee to thus degrade his holy office as a minister.

NEW SETTLEMENT HOUSE.

THE UNIVERSITY AND THE FACTORY GIRL.

The University Women's Society recently acquired premises in Blight-street, Newtown, for the greater facility of social work among the poorer classes of the district, and the New Settlement House, as it is named, was formally opened on Saturday by Lady Cullen, the chair being taken by Mrs. Wilson. Lady Cullen said that she hoped the society would accomplish much good work in their new building. She regretted the Girls' Club was not in as flourishing a condition as she would desire, and suggested that the girls might be moved to take a more personal interest in the work. Much interest had been taken in the competitions carried out by the society last year, and she hoped that they would be continued.

Mrs. Harper said that the idea of settlements such as this had been tried with great success in England. It was a happy idea to found a settlement in Newtown, for there were conditions unusually favourable to its success. It was particularly right that it should be undertaken by undergraduate girls at the University, because it led to a common understanding between people of apparent difference in their situation in life. One of the great tragedies of life was that people living near to one another, and with all the great things of life in common, should live so utterly apart as to become distinctly antagonistic. That was why she was so anxious to see this settlement a success, where there were various activities, such as the Girls' Club, afternoons for children, or evenings for mothers, always going on, and by means of which they might establish that common understanding which they desired. But all this was only a means to an end. She had had experience of something like work of this sort in England, where she had taken a girls' class on Sunday afternoons. She had about 150 girls, about as rough as they could be, and the experience had done her an enormous amount of good. The main thing was not the class itself, but the personal relations she formed with the girls, their lives and environment. She had learnt what heroism goes to the making of the working classes. We all rested on a common basis, and the great fundamentals of existence, its joys, its needs, its sorrows, belonged in common to us all. Living, as we did, in a democratic country, ahead of the other countries as far as the conditions of the worker were concerned, it was surely a good thing that girls at the University should come into contact with the working people, who after all carried on their shoulders the weight of all civilisation.

A vote of thanks to Lady Cullen and Mrs. Harper, proposed by Principal Thatcher, and seconded by Mrs. Barff, was accorded by acclamation.

LAW SOCIETY'S DINNER.

"The value of a University," said Sir Edmund Barton, senior puisne Judge of the High Court, speaking at the University Law Society's dinner on Saturday night, "does not consist in the mere extent of its curriculum or the number of subjects which it teaches. The true value of a University lies in its capability for inculcating habits of high thought and advanced culture.

"It was in the latter sphere," he continued, "that the University of Sydney, in common with kindred institutions, should strike deep roots, and not remain merely an establishment for turning out men with a knowledge of how to earn their living. The University of Sydney embraced in its curriculum as many subjects as could reasonably be covered with the money at the disposal of the Senate, and if the latter body were told that they should increase the number of subjects dealt with by the staff, their best answer was, 'If the money is forthcoming, there need be no trouble on that score.' Let the University, however, do its duty in the manner he had indicated, and it would then be able to reflect that at all events its graduates in after life could look back with pride to their association with it. (Applause.) It was a matter on which he felt very strongly. The University would not succeed if its only mission in life was to manufacture and turn out professional men. It was looked to by all who had its true interests at heart to imbue men with such habits as would make them not merely successful practitioners, but true leaders of thought. The Sydney University, perhaps, could not hope yet to imbue its students with the love of tradition. It was not old enough, and its isolation prevented it from having ideas tried by time, like those of older institutions; but in the meantime they could hope that their Alma Mater would develop along sound lines as a school of advanced thought." (Applause.)

Mr. Justice Higgins, in proposing the toast of the University Law Society, spoke in a similar strain. He was glad to see that the name of the University was associated with the Law Society. The more law and lawyers were associated with the highest culture and training that a country could give the better for the country. It had been stated that the man who knew chemistry and nothing else, knew very little about chemistry, and the same remark could apply to the law. He (Mr. Justice Higgins) had had an experience extending over 24 years on the council of the University of Melbourne, and during that time he had become more and more convinced that the broad culture a University gave imbued life with a fulness and interest which made men more susceptible to taking new ideas. Wentworth's ideal was that every poor man should send his son to the University, and, moreover, be able to meet the expense. He (the speaker) hoped that that glorious ideal would some day be realised, for the strength, force, and impetus it would give to the national life could hardly be measured. (Applause.)

The dinner of the Sydney University Law Society was held at Sargent's Cafe, George-street. The president (Mr. A. J. Kelynack) occupied the chair, and amongst those present were Mr. Justice Barton, Mr. Justice Higgins, Mr. Justice Gordon, Mr. Acting Justice Ferguson, and Mr. Acting Justice Rich, Professor Peden, Mr. Mitchell, K.C. (Vic.), and Mr. Bevan (Solicitor-General). The toasts honoured included "The King," "The University," proposed by Mr. Bevan and responded to by Mr. Justice Barton; "Acting Justices Ferguson and Rich," proposed by Professor Peden, who said that the dinner was primarily intended to mark the honour done the Law School by the elevation of two members of its teaching staff to positions on the Supreme Court Bench; "The University Law Society," proposed by Mr. Justice Higgins, and replied to by the president; and the "Bar," proposed by Mr. Justice Gordon, and replied to by Mr. A. B. Piddington and Mr. Mitchell, K.C.

A MERCHANT'S JUBILEE.

MR. G. J. COHEN ENTERTAINED.

THE GOODWILL OF ALL EMPLOYEES.

A unique event in the commercial life of this State was celebrated on Saturday night, when about 150 employees of the firm of David Cohen and Co., of Sydney, Newcastle, and London, assembled at Sargent's Cafe to meet Mr. George J. Cohen on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of his joining the firm. Mr. W. W. E. Wynn occupied the chair, having on his right the guest of the evening and Mr. S. H. Levy, and on his left Mr. S. S. Cohen.

The chairman, in extending a hearty welcome to Mr. Cohen, said that the employees in all the departments of the firm had enthusiastically joined in the celebration. Mr. Cohen possessed in a marked degree that rare token of tact which enabled him to manage men and to be a leader among them, guiding with firmness combined with kindness. But it was not in the kingdom of finance alone that Mr. Cohen's name had become prominent. In works of philanthropy he had been the author of a vast amount of good to his fellow-man. His charitable donations to his own city of Sydney had been large and frequent, and in England he, in conjunction with the late Mr. D. W. Levy, devoted the whole of a very extensive bequest to the building and endowment of hospitals. The most worthy feature, however, of Mr. Cohen's character was his modesty and reticence, for he withheld his name as much as possible in connection with these magnificent and generous deeds. They would see, therefore, that they were honouring one who was in a very high degree worthy of being honoured. (Applause.)

Mr. J. W. Griffiths, in supporting the toast, said he had worked on Mr. Cohen's right hand for 30 years, and had always found him a most just employer. (Applause.)

Mr. Ross extended hearty congratulations on behalf of the Maitland branch, and Mr. D. M'Clelland performed a similar duty on behalf of the travellers.

Mr. Houston and Mr. Slater, employees of over 40 years' service in the firm, then handed Mr. Cohen a handsome illuminated address, designed and written by employees. The address paid a great tribute to Mr. Cohen's justice, philanthropy, and commercial and financial talents.

Mr. Cohen, in acknowledging the presentation, said he did not deserve the praise they had showered on him. He was completely taken by surprise on receiving that most beautiful address, and he could assure them that he would treasure it as long as he lived. It was a gratification to him to know that he had possessed the goodwill of those with whom he had been associated for so long. As he looked round he could see many who had been associated with the firm for 25 years, and a few who had been with them for over 40 years, and they still had the firm's confidence, and carried out their duties with unabated earnestness. It was 75 years ago, he said, that the firm was established in Maitland. In those days their business was chiefly with squatters, who all had stores on their stations. There were no railways then, and the goods, perforce, had to be despatched by bullock waggons. He had known drays to take supplies, and bring back wool, the journey occupying a whole year. They would readily understand that many of them in those days would have found it hard to get a position as commercial traveller. Business, however, was carried on in a totally different manner, and storekeepers only ordered once or twice a year. Fifty years ago the population of Sydney and suburbs was about equal to that of North Sydney at the present time. He was born near the Tank Stream, somewhere to the right of the present A.M.P. building, and he had seen a marvellous growth in the city of Sydney. He remembered in the early days that Bridge-street was looked upon as a kind of suburb, all the business at that time being transacted at Miller's Point. In concluding his remarks, Mr. Cohen paid a high tribute to the loyalty of the staff, and said he would like to do something on his own part to commemorate the occasion. He had therefore decided to forward their chairman a cheque for £2500, to be distributed among the employees. (Applause.)

Mr. J. S. Lord proposed "The Firm," and Mr. S. H. Levy, in responding, said he had been a member of the firm for a quarter of a century.

Mr. S. S. Cohen proposed "The Employees," which was responded to by Mr. W. Symington; and the following contributed to the musical programme during the evening:—Messrs. Purcell, Wardrobe, Larsen, Walton, Harrison, Quinan, White, Tracy, Bruce, Chambers, and P. A. Pawley.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

MELBOURNE, Saturday.

There was an abrupt ending in the Criminal Court yesterday to the case in which Robert Charles Lindsay, medical practitioner, was charged before Mr. Justice Hodges and a jury of twelve with having murdered Annie Meander, of Longwood, on June 2. The case for the Crown was opened on Thursday, and the examination of witnesses was proceeded with this morning.

The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, in accordance with a direction by the Judge, and Dr. Lindsay was discharged.

THE YOST TYPEWRITER
FOR BEAUTIFUL WORK.
The centre guide in this machine is a practically unwearable device of hardened steel that guides each type with unfailible accuracy to the paper.
That's why "Yost" typewriting is always in perfect alignment.
The type strikes from a pad.
The writing is always clear and sharp—no blur, no smudge.
And the Imperial Type is the most graceful and legible of any that you can buy in any machine.
PRICE £27.

FORMETTES FORMETTES
FORMETTES

it has been overcome, and patients can take them with every assurance that they will not only overcome obesity, but, as well, act as a tonic to the heart, and, by removing the fat surrounding the internal organs, will rapidly overcome difficulty of breathing, heart palpitation, etc. Formettes will quickly reduce your weight, and restore that charm of stylish, girlish slimness, supple waist, and shapely limbs which are yours by right.

You should bear in mind that not only is Obesity dangerous and uncomfortable, but it makes you look considerably older than you actually are. Formettes are sold by all Chemists, Drapers, etc., at 5/3 a carton; or may be obtained direct, post free, from S. H. Henshall, Chemist, 246 Clarendon-street, South Melbourne, Victoria.

MOST
WORLD!

Who will deny that, with the cutting winds and generally chill and cheerless nights, the most sensible thing a body can do is

TO GO TO BED,

COMFORT AND ECONOMY, you could do very MUCH WORSE than to come this way for ANYTHING AND EVERYTHING calculated to make
BEDFORDSHIRE A COMFORTABLE COUNTRY.
FIRST AND FOREMOST COME

BLANKETS!

We rather fancy ourselves as purveyors of Blankets and we have thousands of Friends who agree with us. There's that we are so fond of talking about. Australian Wool, mark you, full double bed size, soft, warm, heavy, and fleecy.

SOVEREIGN BLANKET

Oh, Blanket Bay has been our special preserve this winter.

Don't make your own sheets—let us do the work for you. This is not benevolence, but just plain business. We like to tell the WHY when we make a strange statement, and here it is:—Our Electric Power Machines turn out work so well, and at such a tiny cost, that it pays us to CHARGE ABSOLUTELY NOTHING for making Plain Goods like Sheets, and by giving YOU the benefit convince you of our unquestioned
